

Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas

GIANT SPENCER VARIETIES

The best that can be procured for winter flowering under glass.

Five Good California Varieties

Early Snowflake, large, pure white, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., \$1.25; oz., \$2.00.

Early Spring Maid, beautiful cream-pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Melody, soft rose-pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Song Bird, pale pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Heather Bell, rich mauve, changing to lavender, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

YARRAWA

The most popular winter-flowering Sweet Pea. Color is beautiful rose-pink with a slight salmon tint. We offer a selected strain of this variety. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 40c; oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$2.25; lb., \$8.00.

Six Splendid Australian Varieties

CONCORD Spencer types

The Concord Varieties of Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas are perhaps the most advanced and finest of all. The colors are distinct, clear and true. They flower earlier than any other type, and the blossoms are of large Spencer form, with long stems. Unfortunately they are shy seeders and, therefore, the seed is scarce and expensive. We are obliged to offer in packets only this year.

Prices, any of the following:

Pkt. (50 seeds), 40c; 5 pkts., $1.75.

Concord Pink, beautiful delicate pink.

Concord Crimson, fine ruby red.

Concord Lavender, light lavender blue.

Concord White, large, pure white.

Concord Salmon, soft salmon pink.

Concord Blue, dark purple blue.

We have on hand fresh seed of Giant Flowered Cyclamen in all popular colors, also Primula, Cineraria, Calceolaria; Perennial Flower Seeds for summer sowing and Annuals for winter flowering under glass.

GROWING DARWINS IN THE GREENHOUSE

The place of greatest honor, the center of the stage, the front page of the trade journal—these are now the rightful positions of the Darwins, when tulips are under consideration. The Darwins have long deserved such high distinction, but have only attained it during the last season.

WHY didn't somebody think of it sooner? That is the question which is often asked when a new and serviceable article is invented, or when a new and advantageous use is discovered for some old contrivance or commodity. Sometimes, of course, the most remarkable feature of the new invention or discovery is its intricacy or mystery; we are awestruck by the scientific genius and knowledge therein displayed. But just as frequently the most obvious characteristic of the new device is its simplicity and easy adaptability; the wonder is that someone did not stumble onto the idea ages ago. The beholder exclaims: "Why, yes! Of course! Just the right wrinkle! And as plain as two plus two. The opportunity was clearly visible; how did it escape notice so long? Why wasn't I the lucky guy to see it first and pocket the biggest profits?"

A Plunge Into Popularity.

Such is the situation, in some degree at least, with reference to the Darwin tulips. As soon as anyone thought of putting them to the test, they proved themselves to be the most admirable of bulbous flowers for greenhouse use. Why, then, didn't somebody think of it sooner? That is the natural inquiry. The Darwins' sudden bounce into popularity may be startling at first glance. But when their merits are considered, the real marvel is, not that they have jumped into favor at one bound, but that they did not do the jumping long ago.

The lack of early appreciation of the Darwin tulips is partly explained, however, by the fact that they were not classified as a distinct race until comparatively recent times. Their present name was given to them only a little more than a quarter of a century ago, in honor of the great evolutionist, Charles Darwin. In view of their relatively modern origin, it is not surprising, perhaps, that their popularity as bedding plants does not date back more than about fifteen years. The reason for astonishment is that as forcing stock they were practically an unknown quantity until two or three years ago. Not until the last two winters have the greenhouse Darwins appeared in the wholesale markets and been prominent on exhibition tables. There was a tremendous increase in the importation and forcing of Darwins last season, but even now only a limited number of florists who specialize in bulb forcing have tried them. However, these few pioneers in the work have been so well rewarded that their example will surely be followed by many other growers.

Some of Their Merits.

As outdoor bedding plants, the Darwins are so much superior to the ordinary early tulips that there is little room for comparison between the two classes. The Darwins, while a little more expensive, have the advantage of wearing better than the early section, and, when left undisturbed in beds, they flower far better the second and third year than the first. The same statement holds true, also, if they are planted in clumps in the hardy herbaceous border.

The Darwins are a stately race, with long, strong stems. The outdoor flowers have stems varying from twenty-four to forty inches in height, according to the variety of the plants and the nature of the soil. Under glass the stems average eighteen to twenty-four inches high in February and are somewhat taller in March.

The flowers have a wide range of colors, comprising rose, maroon, claret, heliotrope, red, crimson, purple and other deep, rich shades. However, there is no really pure white in the group and there is no good yellow, unless the cottage tulip, Inglescombe Yellow, sometimes called the "Yellow Darwin," is included in the list. Most of the colors are improved by the protection of glass.

In the cut flower market the greenhouse Darwins have been bringing about twice the prices of the ordinary early tulips. They will not endure hard forcing, but are of great value in prolonging the tulip season and their high prices are partly due to the fact that they reach the market after the other classes of greenhouse tulips have mostly disappeared.

Their Greenhouse Culture.

Being naturally May-flowering sorts, of course they cannot be forced into bloom successfully as early as such tulips as La Reine, Yellow Prince, White Hawk or Thomas Moore. One or two varieties, however, can be flowered in fine condition by the middle of February, while all can be had in crop during March. In the last two seasons pans or beds of them have been attractive features at the large spring exhibitions in New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

For forcing purposes the bulbs should be placed in flats containing five inches of soil, or in pans. If pans are used, fairly large ones are preferable, and for commercial purposes 10-inch sizes have proved much better than 8-inch. As a compost a mixture of fibrous

Such is the situation, in some degree at least, with reference to the Darwin tulips. That is the natural inquiry. The Darwins' sudden bounce into popularity may be startling at first glance. loam and old, well-decayed manure will be found suitable. If the loam is heavy, add some leaf-mold and sand. I store the bulbs, after they are placed in pans and flats, on the floor of a roomy cellar and give them several soakings of water before covering them with sand or coal ashes. Many beginners in bulb culture imagine that, if their bulbs receive a watering after they are placed in the soil, they can be covered and left to care for themselves until they are wanted for forcing. Where this is done there is certain to be a large proportion of blind bulbs, owing to an insufficiency of moisture in the early stages of growth.

Varieties for Successive Crops.

While nearly all varieties of Darwins may be forced, some come in season much earlier than others. William Copeland, lavender, and Pride of Haarlem, bright rose, are generally considered the best two for blooming in February. Directly following these we get Bartigon, carmine red; Rev. H. Ewbank, heliotrope lilac, and William Pitt, deep scarlet. To come along a little later a splendid half dozen are Glow, vermilion red; Loveliness, carmine rose; Gretchen, pale rose; Farncombe Sanders, rose scarlet; Massachusetts, vivid pink, and Baronne de la Tonnaye, bright rose.

As already stated, there is no pure white Darwin, but White Queen comes the nearest to that color. La Tulipe Noire, the black tulip, is somewhat high-priced, but is a giant among its fellows, carrying larger blooms than any other Darwin. It cannot be forced quite so early as other varieties named, but has great substance and wonderful vigor, and is, in general estimation, the most noble of all the Darwins.

The Hollanders who have canvassed the trade in the United States this year found a wide interest in Darwins and were quick to take advantage of it. They have booked many more orders than heretofore for these varieties and if they are able to ship the bulbs there will be a material increase in the supply of cut flowers of Darwin sorts next spring, although there probably will never be another season that will see so many flowers of the early-flowering varieties.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

THE LABOR QUESTION.

Perhaps my experience in handling men to advantage may be of benefit to florists who are striving to overcome the labor situation, for hand in hand with the coal trouble is the labor trouble.

This year, for the first time in thirty years, I have experienced a shortage of laborers, but I have overcome this shortage by having the men work on contract. The men receive a certain amount of money for emptying a bench of plants, and a certain amount for refilling the bench. This system cuts down the number of laborers required to one-third. The men do more satisfactory work, and they do not "loaf" because they get paid for just what they accomplish. Three years ago it cost $14 to fill a bench, labor being forty per cent cheaper than it is now; yet this year it cost me $10, by the contract system. This method saves time and money.

Then there is the problem of obtaining experienced growers, etc. Back in the eighties, when floriculture in the United States was in its infancy, I used to train even the firemen and then sit up all night to see if they carried out my instructions. Even today I train the inexperienced men in all branches of floriculture. I hear the question, Where do you get the men to train? There are plenty of men, under and over military age. The trite phrase, "It pays to advertise," is true, and people are always looking for betterment. Just what does the growing end of a commercial floricultural establishment offer to the man choosing a vocation? A good salary, employment winter and summer, rain or shine, splendid working conditions and a chance for physical development. It is an everyday occurrence for a man to rise out of the ranks, to become a foreman, manager or owner.

A question naturally arises: After spending three years in training a grower, suppose he quits, when he is experienced and when he is needed most? My answer is: Be optimistic when your right-hand man leaves you; begin over again and train another; believe that you have given a man a vocation which will be useful to him during his lifetime and which, after he leaves you, will perhaps benefit some other florist. It is the coöperation in town, state and country that keeps the wheels of progress in motion.

PUBLICITY FOR FLOWERS

STATE FAIR ADVERTISING.

As It Concerns the Retailer.

There have appeared in these columns treatises dealing with various forms of publicity employed by the retail florist in furthering his business, but little seems to have been said anent the advertising pros and cons of retailers' exhibits at state fairs, or exhibitions that are supposed to be state-wide in scope. So perhaps a sort of analysis of such advertising, strictly as it concerns the florist who does a local business, will be opportune.

Let it be understood at the outset that this matter of florists' exhibits at

SOCIETY OF IOWA FLORISTS.

Meets at Des Moines.

The annual meeting of the Society of Iowa Florists was held at Des Moines August 29. Officers for the ensuing year were elected, plans for the first Iowa flower show to be held in Des Moines November 8 to 11 were discussed and, after the meeting, the visitors were entertained by the local florists on an automobile trip about the city, followed by a dinner.

The officers elected were: President, H. E. Lozier, of Des Moines; vice-president, A. H. Smith, of Boone; secretary and treasurer, Wesley Greene, of Des Moines; directors, George S. Woodruff, of Independence; G. A. Heyne, of Dubuque, and W. C. Davison and J. S. Wilson, Jr., both of Des Moines.

J. S. Wilson, Sr., manager of the forthcoming flower show, gave a report of the preliminary arrangements for the exhibition. A. J. Zwart, chairman of the committee on the guarantee fund, reported that the work of his committee was progressing rapidly. Others were called upon and expressed the opinion that the show would be a success.

Visit Fort Dodge.

After the meeting the members were taken in automobiles for a visit to the leading greenhouses. A trip through the parks followed. One of the interesting places visited was the cantonment at Fort Dodge, which, when completed, will be the scene of the training of 45,000 army officers and men, preparatory to going to France. Dinner followed the automobile trip.

Those present from Des Moines were:

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson, Jr., Wesley Greene, John Rogers, Frank H. Page, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lozier, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Lozier, Winona Nichols, Paul Battles, Mr. and Mrs. F. Roenfeld, William Trillow, George Kurtzweil, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. D. Fulmer, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wilson, Curtis C. Hunt, Miss Esther Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Zwart, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Johnston and George McMahon.

Those present from other parts of the state were:

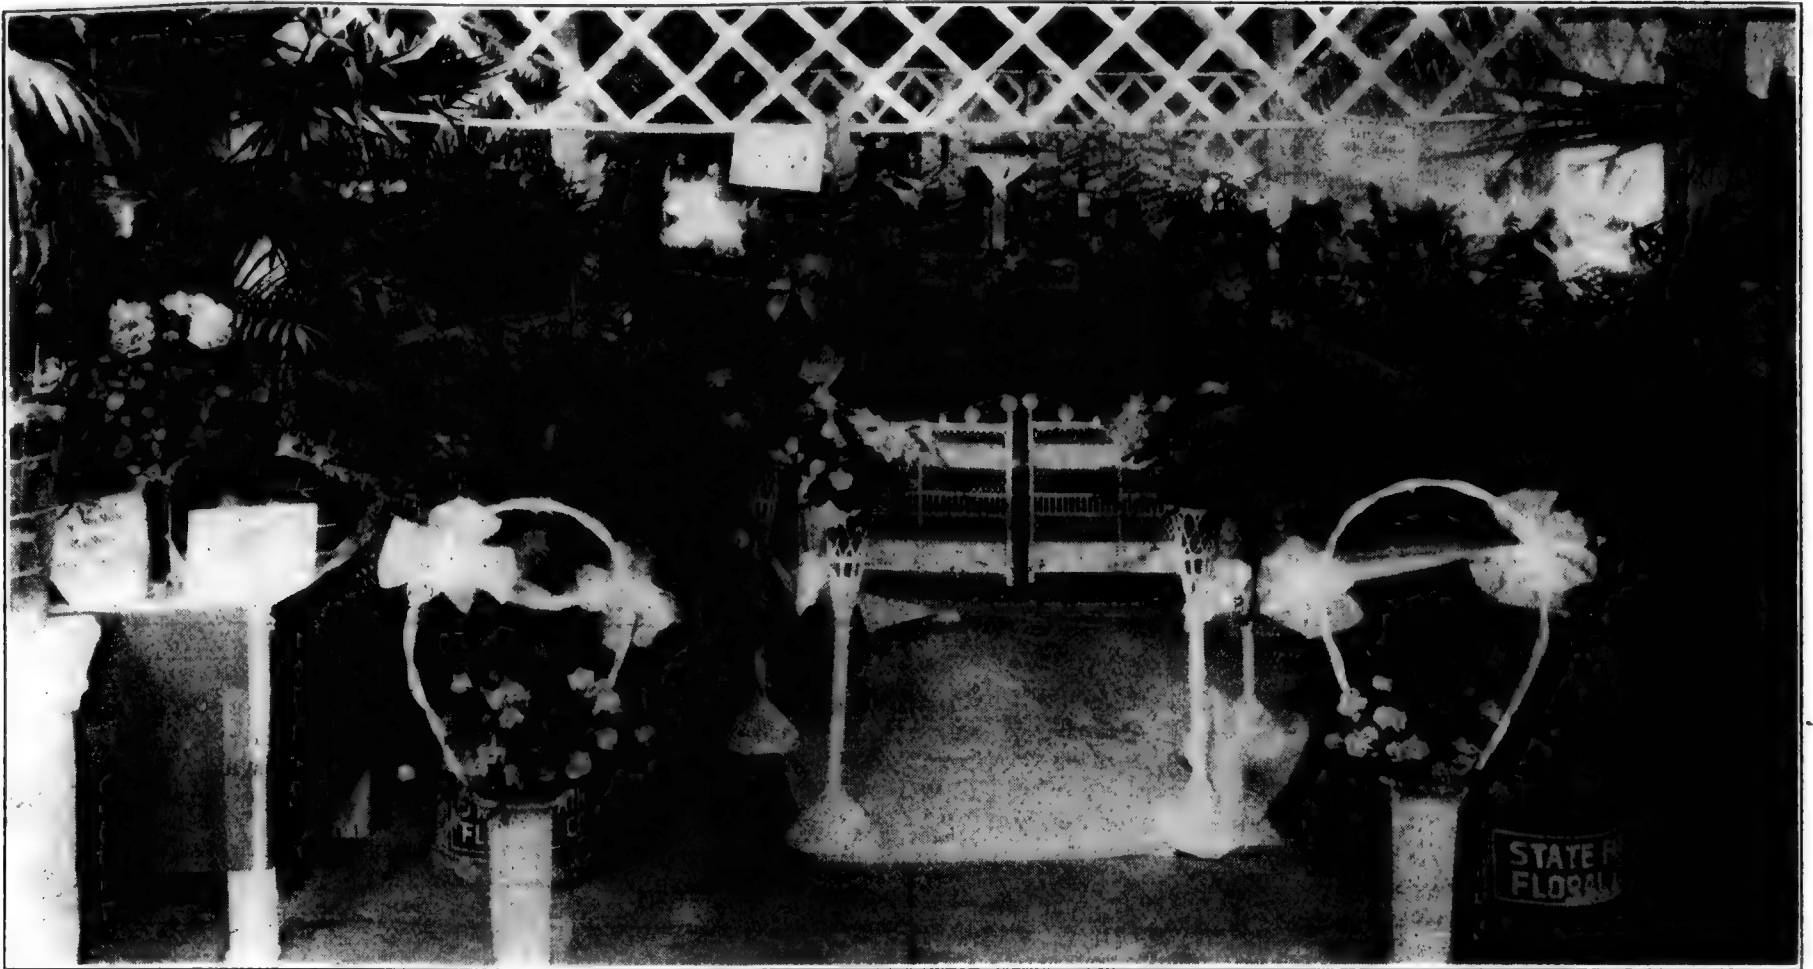

Arthur H. Smith, of Boone; Mr. and Mrs. M. Kurtzweil, of Altoona; James L. Denmead, of Marshalltown; R. Trudenchua, of Marengo; C. L. Van Meter, of Monticello; George A. Heyne, of Dubuque; Homer Richey, of Albia; George S. Woodruff, of Independence; W. F. Jeffrey and John Reardon, of Ames, and William Laisle and Lillian Burkayd.

F.

state fairs is no small item. Each year sees a larger number of them pack their displays, ship them to the exhibitions, dispatch representatives to stage the displays and then keep the representatives on the grounds until the affair is over. The bills pile up. There is the cost of display materials and space; bills covering express, and cartage at the grounds; representatives' transportation and hotel expenses.

Good Advertising Also Profitable?

It is a general belief that displays of this description are good advertising, but it nevertheless would be interesting to have someone supply facts and figures giving the returns traceable to such advertising and, further, showing whether or not the "good" advertising also was profitable advertising. Perhaps the average exhibitor would maintain that there is no sure way of checking up the results; that such exhibits class as "straight" publicity—simply a means of keeping one's name before the public. If the returns cannot be made to prove the profitableness of the advertising, perhaps enough weak links can be found in it to prove that returns really cannot exist in numbers sufficient to pay the expenses incurred and leave something over in the till.

A State Fair Display by a Florist in the City in which the Fair is Held is an Excellent Means of Advertising.

The attendance at any state fair is supposed to be representative of the state. Each town or city sends a representation according to its size and distance from the fair grounds. Then there are the farmers and a comparatively small number of out-of-state visitors.

From this it is clearly apparent that the retailer who exhibits at a state fair is advertising to the entire state, or rather to a representation of the state. But what does that profit the florist whose business is not state-wide, but local, and confined to the territory in which his establishment is situated?

When It Is Wasteful.

As an example, let it be assumed that there were 200,000 visitors at the Illinois state fair at Springfield last year, and that 20,000 of these were from Chicago. Now suppose that a Chicago retailer, one who carries on a business within the city limits, were to enter a display at the Springfield fair. At a glance it may be seen that, although he would be advertising to 200,000 people, his prospects would number only 20,000, inasmuch as this was the number of Chicagoans at the fair. The Chicago retailer would be in the same position as the medical advertiser who paid for the entire circulation of a popular magazine in order to reach a small number of the readers who were medical men. His advertising would be rated as ninety per cent wasteful, for only one-tenth of the attendants at the fair are residents of his territory. There may be mail orders and F. T. D. orders in the remaining nine-tenths of the attendance, but mail-order flowers as yet do not amount to much and the F. T. D. orders would be handled by other florists at the receiving ends, and these may prefer some other Chicago retailer to the exhibitor.

Why Go Away to Advertise?

Then there are other points to be considered by the Chicago state fair advertiser. What kind or type of people are his 20,000 prospects? How many of them are in the flower-buying class? How many are men? How many are women? It is certain that a sifting process of this sort would make for a big reduction in the 20,000 and leave a small field of live prospects. Last, but not least, there is the alternative for the Chicago advertiser to consider. Instead of leaving his territory, would it not be more profitable for him to remain at home and spend his money on one of the local and less expensive forms of publicity? His attendance then would be as large as the city, and not 20,000.

It is patent that the small-town florist who goes to the state fair will have a greater percentage of wasteful advertising than the large city florist, for the small town's representation at the fair is much smaller than that of the large city. If there were two retailers in one town, and one of the two made a display at the state fair, it is certain that the stay-at-home could more than offset his competitor's publicity by using a few inches of space in the town's daily press.

Where the Tables Turn.

But quite another angle presents itself in the case of the florist who carries on a local business in the city or town in which the fair is held. Here practically the entire population goes to the fair and the florist, so situated has an opportunity to advertise his flowers and name to his entire field, besides the large out-of-town crowd. Furthermore, this exhibitor has little expense incidental to his display—no express bills, hotel expenses, etc.

As a good example of the last-mentioned class, a state fair exhibit of the State Fair Floral Co., of Sedalia, Mo., is cited. The State Fair Floral Co. conducts a large business at Sedalia, where the Missouri state fair is held each year. As shown in the accompanying illustration, the company had an unusually good exhibit. The design behind the wedding gates was a first premium winner, and the display undoubtedly was profitable publicity. Practically Sedalia's entire population saw the show and the expense incurred by the company surely was much smaller than would be that of a St. Louis florist, who would have to send his display and men across the state, and at that advertise to only a small portion of the St. Louis people.

Advertising First; Prizes Second.

In arranging his exhibit at the state fair, the florist should remember that his kind of business, his name and his address are of more importance than the prizes and first premiums offered by the fair promoters. The florist who hopes to make his state fair advertising pay dividends must feature his name and address. The signs or posters should be attractive and large enough to hinge the display with the advertiser; otherwise, the display is simply a decoration and not an advertisement.

A few years ago a clever state exhibitor distributed inexpensive souvenirs to the spectators who stopped at his booth. Each recipient of the souvenir was politely requested to write his name and address in a large book. By this method the advertiser secured a good-sized mailing list, which he later circularized to good advantage in advertising Christmas gifts.

How It Sums Up.

To summarize, an analysis of state fair advertising, as far as the retailer is concerned, would result in something like this: The profitableness of state fair advertising by the big city florist, who does a local business at some distance from the fair, is doubtful; the profitableness of state fair advertising by the small-town florist, who carries on a local business at some distance from the fair, is more doubtful; the state fair advertising by the florist who has his business in the town or city where the fair is held, should be good.

In closing, it seems advisable to point out that the exhibitions spoken of here are those which are state-wide in scope, whether horticultural, industrial or plain, old-fashioned fair. Flower and municipal shows in cities or towns, at which the attendance is made up mainly of local people, afford good advertising for the local retailers in each instance. Further, seedsmen and plantsmen who do a mail-order catalogue business find state exhibitions profitable advertising, inasmuch as their market is as wide as the country and each show visitor a possible mail-order customer. But even the mail-order houses are restricted when the exhibitions are held at a great distance from the home city, by reason of the high expense.

FLORISTS ANSWER CALL OF MARS

THE TRADE IS TRAMPING.

Many Go to Camps.

Florists in many cities are deserting their businesses and are going to the army cantonments, where they will be prepared to fight. The Review hears of many of them; others are modest about the service they are rendering their government. Their friends will be giving them their due by letting the trade know about them through the columns of The Review.

Swenson Is Drafted.

One of the widely known men in the allied trades is Hilmer V. Swenson, head of the company of that name, who is a specialist in florists' mailing cards and other advertising matter. Mr. Swenson has been drafted, examined, accepted and ordered to the training camp at Rockford, Ill. Mr. Swenson came into touch with the florists' trade when, while a general advertising man, he was called on to prepare some special work for Schiller the Florist, Chicago. The business, now grown to large proportions, serving one florist in nearly every city, will be continued by Mr. Swenson's brother, Philip.

Canadian Florist Killed.

News has been received at Brampton, Ont., that Arthur Maltby, well known among the florists of that city, had been killed in battle in France August 15.

Is Driving Ambulance at Front.

John S. Carter, head of the Nicotine Manufacturing Co., St. Louis, Mo., recently received a letter from his son, John S. Carter, Jr., who is driving an ambulance at the front near Verdun, France. The young man told his parents that he is in good health, but has had several narrow escapes from being hit by German shells.

St. Louisians Ready.

Adolph Kuehner, of the H. G. Berning staff, and Julius Schaeffer, of the Mullanphy Florists, both of St. Louis, have passed their physical examinations for entry in the United States army. Neither young man claimed exemption. While waiting to be called into the service they are continuing in their employments. Richard Edwards, son of W. J. Edwards, of Kirksville, Mo., has joined the navy.

Bostonian in Hospital Service.

A son of Henry R. Comley, the Boston retailer, has joined the field hospital service and is now at Camp McGinnis, Framingham, Mass. Mr. Comley is a first-class private and expects to be sent to France as soon as the training period is over.

Ribbon Men to Fight.

Three of the employees of the ribbon house of Lion & Co., New York, will help fight our battles in France. Harold S. Lion volunteered and is training at Mrs. Julius Roehrs.

(President-elect of the Ladies' Society of American Florists.)

Fort Schuyler with the Eighth Coast Artillery. Maurice Le Vine and Benj. Rosenbaum were drafted, examined and did not claim exemption.

Baltimore Youths Go.

Benjamin Wagner, of John L. Wagner & Sons, Baltimore, Md., and Ward Perry, son of J. J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co. Baltimore store, are now in service. Mr. Wagner is with the Fifth Maryland regiment at the training camp at Anniston, Ala. Mr. Perry is encamped with the field artillery at Pikesville, Md.

Californian Called.

Louis Picetti, manager of the seed and plant department at the Emporium, a San Francisco department store, for Navlett & Co., of San Jose, who operate the department, has been drafted and expects soon to be called. Mr. Picetti's two brothers also were called by the first draft.

Gude on Exemption Board.

A. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., is too old for soldiering, but he is serving his country as chairman of the exemption board in District No. 11 in the District of Columbia. He has given practically all his time to the work for several weeks.

An Honor to Famous Ancestor.

W. Earle Riedel, son of H. C. Riedel, of Riedel & Meyer, New York city, recently passed his eighteenth birthday and has applied for enlistment in the navy. He is a direct descendant on his mother's side of John Quincy Adams, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Gains Fourth Promotion.

William Polykranas, son of George J. Polykranas, New York city, has been given his fourth promotion since he joined Battery B of the Twenty-first field artillery, now in camp at Leon Springs, Tex. Mr. Polykranas has been made first gunner, which is equivalent to first sergeant, the highest rank among non-commissioned officers.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

College Florists' Section.

A meeting of the college florists' section of the S. A. F. was held in connection with an informal dinner at the Hotel McAlpin Wednesday evening, August 22. Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell University, acted as chairman and arranged for the meeting. A. C. Beal, of Cornell University; President R. C. Kerr, of Houston Tex.; N. L. Mulford, of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; W. W. Ohlweiler, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis; N. E. Palmer and George B. Palmer, of Brookline, Mass.; A. S. Thurston, of the Iowa State College, Ames, Ia.; J. Whiting, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass., and E. I. Wilde, of Pennsylvania State College, State College, Pa., participated in the discussion of the relations of educational work to horticulture and especially with reference to floriculture.

It was the consensus that there was a great deal of work to be done to encourage a greater and more cordial coöperation between the commercial men and the educational institutions. Many phases of organization work in connection with floriculture were brought up for discussion and the subjects introduced were so numerous, and of so much general interest, that it seemed advisable at another time to make the program somewhat more specific.

President Kerr strongly advised a definite organization, so that in the future definite provision could be made for the meetings of this section in connection with the meetings of the S. A. F. With this organization in mind, Prof. E. A. White was selected temporary chairman and W. W. Ohlweiler temporary secretary, until permanent organization could be arranged for at St. Louis next April, during the National Flower Show.

The men present were agreed that an effort would be made to provide for a greater attendance of men interested in the educational features of floriculture at the coming convention at St. Louis, and it is quite likely that a definite program will be provided at that time.

The discussion proved of considerable interest and opened up many new points of view, and in this connection it is requested that others interested in the subject communicate with either the chairman or the secretary before the St. Louis meeting.

W. W. Ohlweiler.

MR. WILSON'S PLEASURE.

During the New York convention the Society of American Florists sent the following telegram:

To His Excellency Woodrow Wilson,
President of the United States,
Washington, D. C.:

The Society of American Florists, in thirty-third annual convention assembled at New York, transmits to you its resolution by unanimous vote expressing its confidence in you as the nation's head in this hour of deciding conflict for freedom, democracy and rule of the people, by the people, for the people, pledging you the loyal support of its entire membership to this end.

The telegram was signed for the society by R. C. Kerr, president, and John Young, secretary.

Students of the President's state papers, with their "May I's" and "May I nots," will enjoy his reply beginning, "Let me give myself the pleasure," and there will be no doubt the communication had his personal attention.

NATIONAL GARDENERS.

The summer meeting of the executive board of the National Association of Gardeners was held at the Murray Hill hotel, New York, August 23. Ex-President William N. Craig occupied the chair in the absence of President Thomas W. Head.

The secretary's and treasurer's financial reports showed the association to be in a flourishing condition; 116 new members have been added to the association's roll since the Washington convention in December, 1916, and forty-five delinquent members have been dropped from the membership roll for non-payment of 1916 dues.

William F. Gude, of Washington, an honorary member of the association, who was chairman of the committee that planted the yew at Washington's tomb, Mt. Vernon, Va., last April, attended the meeting and made a report of the successful planting of the tree.

The operations of the service bureau received the consideration of the executive board and after a long discussion

THE PRESIDENT REPLIES

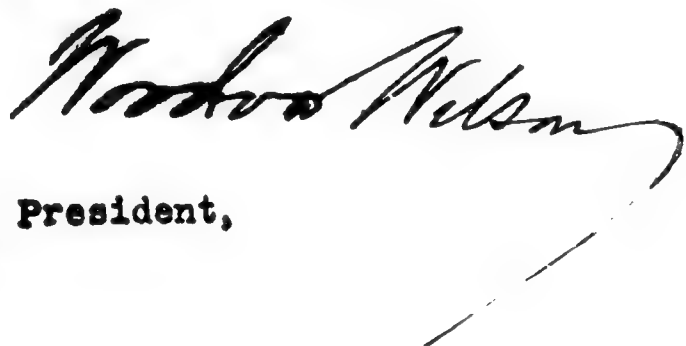

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

August 23, 1917

My dear Mr. Kerr:

Let me give myself the pleasure of acknowledging the receipt of your and Mr. Young's telegram of the twenty-first of August, and telling you and the members of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists how deeply I appreciate your generous expression of confidence and approbation. With warmest thanks for your pledge of support, believe me

Cordially and sincerely yours,

Mr. Robert C. Kerr, President,
New York City.

it was decided that the association was not yet in a strong enough financial position to extend the activities of this department beyond its present scope. It was recommended that the bureau be maintained along the lines on which it is conducted at the present time until the next meeting of the board, which will occur in Chicago at the time of the annual convention, when the subject will again come up for attention.

It was decided that the members of the association who have already enlisted and who may enlist in their country's cause should be carried on the books of the association, without payment of dues, until the termination of the war.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with the different local horticultural societies within reasonable distance of New York to plan for a suitable date for a meeting in New York city to formulate plans for closer coöperation between the local societies and the national organization.

December 4 to 6 were voted as the dates for the Chicago convention. The general program for the convention will be in charge of a local committee appointed by President Head.

WHO HAS AGENCY CONTRACT?

I was wondering if you have, or know of anyone who has, a copy of an agency contract—something which might be used as a written agreement between a retail florist and his agents, who receive commissions on their orders. I have about 200 agents in small towns near this city, and I would like to get something that other florists have used in dealing with their agents. We give our agents a commission of twenty per cent.

G. W.—N. D.

The Review has no copy of such a contract, neither does it know of a florist who has. Will someone in the trade help out G. W. with a copy of a contract such as he desires? Ed.

Schenectady, N. Y.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mott announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Dorothy, to Roy Ferris Myers, August 27, at the church of the Transfiguration in New York city.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Hard-wooded Plants.

Hard wooded plants, where planted out, must have an abundant water supply now, while their growth is being made. Once they become dry at the root they are practically ruined. This is specially true of ericas and azaleas. All hard-wooded plants of this type make fine, hair-like masses of roots and soon perish if allowed to become dry. Give this class of plants a good hosing about midday, as well as in the evening. Where your hydrangeas are planted out use the sprinkler on them, if you have such facilities. These are not hard-wooded plants, but suffer severely from lack of moisture at the roots.

Cyclamens.

It is time to make a sowing of cyclamen seed if this has not already been done. From this sowing you can be assured of fine plants for Thanksgiving and Christmas next year. Purchase the best strain of seeds obtainable and be sure to have a good proportion of red and bright pink colors, as these sell especially well at the holidays. With little probability of any azaleas arriving this season, the demand for cyclamens is certain to be better than ever. Sow either in pans or shallow flats, which should be well drained. Use a light, leaf-moldy compost, containing a good dash of sand. Spread the seeds evenly over the surface. Firm the surface and then dust a little sand over the seeds. Keep the seed receptacles moist, shaded and warm. A house with a minimum temperature of 60 to 65 degrees will suit them.

Cyclamens for flowering—the coming fall and winter are now bristling with buds. It will be best to pick off any flowers which may open thus early. The plants should have a gradually reduced amount of shade, to keep them stocky. This does not mean, however, that they should have anything like full sunshine. They will be benefited by a spraying each afternoon. To keep aphids and thrips in check, use a weak nicotine spray once a week. Where the plants are being grown in coldframes, remove the sashes at night unless heavy rains threaten and use elevated lath screens during bright sunshine. The final pottings should not be longer delayed unless you want your plants to hold back until spring.

Bouvardias.

Bouvardias are quite tender and are injured even by a temperature a few degrees above freezing. The foliage may not show it, but the embryo flowers are likely to be chilled. Dig the plants up carefully, so as to retain a moderate ball. If they are to be benched, be sure to soak them well, spray frequently and shade them from direct sunshine. If potted, keep them outdoors in partial shade and spray several times a day. Before many days have passed, root action will become vigorous and shading can be gradually dispensed with. Bouvardia Humboldtii now is flowering outdoors and proves specially valuable at this season, when choice, white, sweet-scented flowers are scarce. Owing to the numerous weddings during the present summer, the call for flowers of this character has been unusually strong.

Cinerarias.

Keep the cineraria seedlings in a cool, well ventilated house, or, better still, in coldframes. They may not have been making rapid growth, but watch them a little later, when the cool nights arrive. Keep a sharp outlook for green caterpillars, the larvæ of the cabbage moths, which are particularly fond of cineraria foliage. Kill as many of the white moths as possible and thus reduce the danger of defoliation. Keep the cinerarias potted along and spread out. The earliest sowings, intended for flowering from Christmas onward, are now in 5-inch pots; a late sowing is just ready for pricking off. Use at first a light compost, containing plenty of leaf-mold; later shiftings will call for a richer soil.

Transplanting Evergreens.

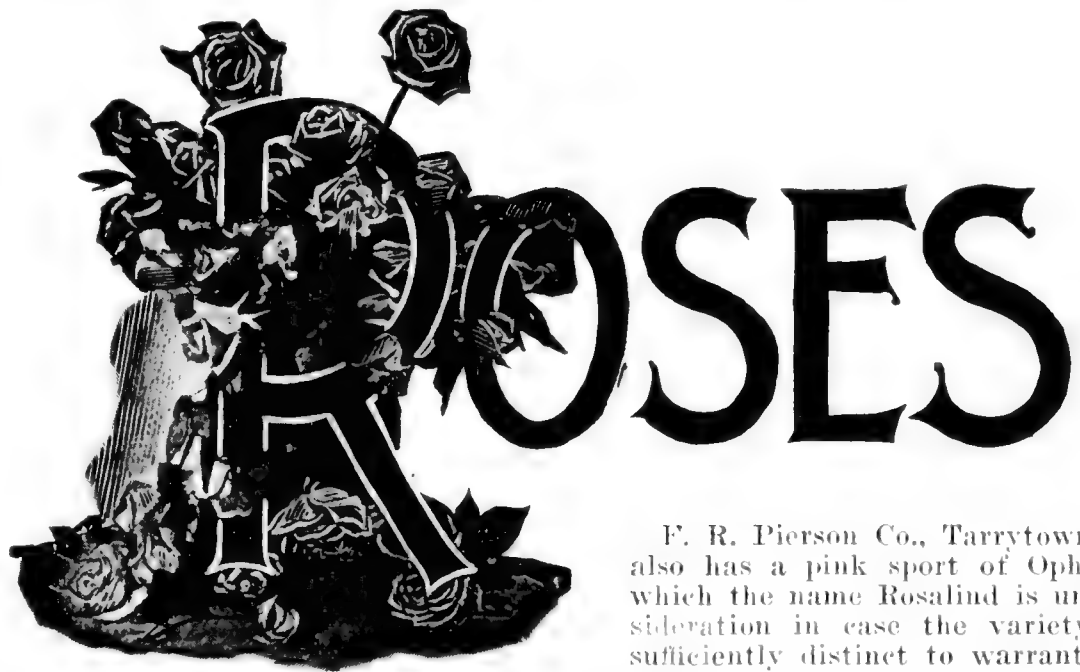

April and the first half of May probably form the best period of the year for the successful transplanting of all evergreens. The next best period is the latter part of August and in September.

There are certain limitations, however, to this work in late summer. It will not pay to have nursery stock of this character shipped from a distance, but if plants can be got from some nearby nursery, or are to be transplanted from one's own grounds, success is much more probable.

Ideal conditions for the planting of evergreens are: Immediately after heavy rain, when moist balls of earth can be had; when the weather is cool and cloudy and when care is taken not to allow wind and sun to dry the roots. A soaking watering after planting and a mulch of some kind to hold in the moisture will make success more certain, as will later syringings and waterings during dry weather. I have successfully transplanted many evergreens in August and September, including kalmias, rhododendrons, retinisporas, abies, pinus, sciadopitys, taxus and juniperus. Too many transplant stock and then allow it to take its chances. The cause of so many dying each winter is not so much cold as dryness at the roots. It is especially necessary to soak all recently planted evergreens thoroughly just before the ground freezes.

Hardy Perennials and Biennials.

Take advantage of spells of cloudy, damp weather for transplanting such useful plants as Canterbury bells, foxgloves, larkspurs, coreopsis, gaillardias and any others you may have. These, if sown at all thickly, will soon spoil and there is danger in delaying the work. Once they are transplanted into beds in nursery rows, keep the soil frequently stirred about them to conserve moisture. Place foxgloves and Canterbury bells a foot apart in the rows. They have yet quite a long growing season before them and make tremendous headway in late August and September.

SPORTS OF OPHELIA.

The sportive proclivities of Ophelia rose are well known and a number of new varieties thus obtained are approaching the stage that will warrant dissemination. Of these one which has attracted much attention and favorable comment is a distinct shade of pink growing in the establishment of Dailledouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y. Application has been made to register it with the American Rose Society under the name of Ophelia Supreme and during the meeting of the S. A. F. many rose growers made the trip to Flatbush to see it growing.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., also has a pink sport of Ophelia, for which the name Rosalind is under consideration in case the variety proves sufficiently distinct to warrant its dissemination under a different name from other pink sports.

HILL'S COLUMBIA.

It is open to question if anything in the rose world has attracted more attention in the last year or two than has the work of E. G. Hill at Richmond, Ind., where Ophelia has been used in raising a large number of seedlings. First of these to reach the stage of impending dissemination is the variety which has been christened Columbia. Joe Hill says his father selected the name because this is "the gem of the roses." At any rate it has drawn the close attention of every rose grower who has visited the Hill establishment. Columbia is a seedling of Ophelia and Shawyer. The color is distinct, although it more nearly resembles Shawyer, the center of the flowers being flushed deep pink. The illustration was prepared by photographing a bunch of the cut blooms after Joseph Hill had carried them around with him for two days and shows what can be done with young stock. The flowers were cut August 25 and 26 from plants propagated this spring. The stems were about thirty-six inches long.

ROOT-GALL ON ROSES.

Under separate cover we are sending you a piece of wood cut from a Mock rose plant, upon which, you will note, there is a large growth of matter, in a round form, the growth of which is at the point where a bloom was cut. Will you inform us as to the name of this trouble, the cause, the remedy and any other particulars that you can give with reference to it? We have a number of plants that are attacked in this manner.

L. D. T.--Ga.

Your rose is affected with a disease called root-gall or crown-gall. This is by no means a new or rare disease. It attacks roses both under glass and outdoors, and is also found on many trees and shrubs. It is a bacterial disease, the scientific name of which is Bacterium tumefaciens. The bacteria enter the plants through minute wounds and seem to start the development of cells which result in the formation of galls, which are sometimes much larger than the one on the plant you sent. This season I have seen several benches of roses that were badly attacked. The affected plants seemed weaker than the others. It is reasonable to suppose that the energy needed to develop these large galls must be expended at the cost of the plants' general welfare.

Healthy plants, when set out, are often attacked by an infection in the soil, if the soil has not been thoroughly sterilized. Look over all stock carefully at planting time. Reject any that show any traces of disease. While you can cut off the affected parts of the plant, you cannot cure the disease by doing this. I would advise destroying the affected plants by burning. When replanting, disinfect the benches and use sterilized soil, if possible. A good deal of this diseased stock is being disseminated on greenhouse-propagated roses and it is time something was done to prevent this.

C. W.

THE COILED SLUG.

I am enclosing sample of a small green worm we have working on some of our roses. The plants infested with them have been cut down and restarted and of course the worms play havoc with the young foliage. We have been picking them off, but at best this is a slow method and takes up too much valuable time. This worm attacks the under side of the foliage and while feeding is coiled up like a snake and, unlike the leaf roller, does not attack the tips of the growth. We would appreciate any information you could give us on this, as to the name of the pest and the best way of getting rid of it.

C. F. C.--Wis.

The small green worm apparently had made his escape from the envelope in which you enclosed him, but the appearance of the rose leaves and the description in your letter indicate that probably this is Emphytus cinctus, commonly called the coiled rose slug. The larvae, about three quarters of an inch in length, feed on the edge of the leaf, with the body coiled beneath it.

The easiest treatment for the average grower is the application of one of the standard nicotine extracts. If a forty per cent solution is used, employ one part in 800 parts of water. This is about one teaspoonful to two gallons of water. The efficiency of the solution is increased by the addition of a small amount of soap. Arsenate of lead is effective if used at the rate of two pounds in fifty gallons of water, or about one ounce in one and one half gallons. The objection is that it leaves a whitish deposit on the foliage, but this will not count with young plants, from which cutting will not begin for some time. Hellebore also may be used against the coiled rose slug. It can be powdered on in its dry form, diluted with double its weight of cheap flour, if there is such a thing as cheap flour in these days.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

MUMS IN THE SOUTH.

Control of Pests.

From now until the flowers are cut, chrysanthemum plants in the south require particular care and attention. Insect pests of all kinds are apt to be in evidence, such as green fly, spider, thrips, mealy bug, etc. Mealy bug is not so common as any of the others, but when it does appear it is a menace and hard to get rid of. Spraying with coal-oil emulsion, diluted twenty to one, is the best remedy. The spray must reach the crown whorl of leaves, as it is these the pest clings to, and it cannot be reached by syringing with the hose. Any of the tobacco extracts, regularly applied, will keep the other pests away. Regular daily syringing from every side of the beds is also a good safeguard.

Taking the Bud.

In trying for early flowers, many growers take buds about the time recommended for the northern states, but such buds never develop into satisfactory flowers. The last week in August is the earliest that buds may be taken to get good flowers, even on the early varieties. After September 1 nearly any bud will make a good flower. As a rule, the plants in the south do not make buds so soon as in the north, often being from ten to fifteen days later. The crown bud makes the best flower, so that any crown bud developing after September 1 may safely be taken.

Feeding.

A heavy mulch of fairly fresh cow manure, if given early in the month of August, has helped wonderfully. Before applying the mulch, a good sprinkling of bone flour, followed by air-slaked lime, should have been given. Feeding liquids should be given as soon as the bud is taken, and applied once or twice a week until the flower first shows color, when all feeding should stop; otherwise the petals of the flower will be burned.

Strong manure water, alternated with sulphate ammonia and nitrate of soda, one pound to forty gallons of water, are the most commonly used liquid fertilizers. Guano, half a peck dissolved in fifty gallons of weak manure water, is also good for a change. A light top-dressing of cotton seed meal, immediately watered in, may be used, but this is such a powerful stimulant that great care must be taken not to overdo it. L.

SWEET PEAS IN THE SOUTH.

It is none too soon to sow seeds of sweet peas in the house if blooms are wanted for the holidays. Solid beds give the best results. The winter Spencers, which are really the only ones worth growing, grow extremely tall and often require ten feet of head space. Use a good compost and plant in rows four feet apart. After the seeds are well germinated thin out to almost six inches in the rows. To prevent loss from wilt, draw the rows up into ridges, drill a small furrow on top and water the furrows and both sides of the ridges thoroughly. Place a thin layer of clean sand in the furrows, sow the peas and cover lightly with more sand.

Until the young plants are ready to train up the supports, do the big bulk of watering on both sides of each ridge only. In four years I have not lost a plant by this method. The plants may be mulched when two feet in height and after beginning to bloom should have strong manure water every week. The night temperature should not go over 50 degrees. Ventilate the house freely, avoiding extremes, to prevent mildew on the vines. L.

FREESIAS IN THE SOUTH.

As soon as the freesia bulbs arrive the first batch are started off. If wanted for cut flowers only, they may be planted along the edges of the carnation benches. They will flower from the beginning to the end of January. For pot plants we first put five bulbs in a 4-inch pot and use these later to make up large pans. This may seem the longest way around, but we always procure the most shapely plants in this way. To get them in bloom for Christmas, they require a much higher temperature than carnations. The flowers do not seem to "take" specially well at the holidays, and the extra heat draws the plants to a rather ungainly height. Allowed to mature in a cool temperature, the plants are of a strong, healthy nature and sell remarkably well. The variety Purity is considered one of the best to grow. L.

CALENDULAS IN THE SOUTH.

The calendula pays well in the south. It is easily grown on solid beds, in a carnation temperature. Seeds sown now will be in time for the holidays and the plants will continue to bloom for the rest of the season. Sow the seeds in flats, and after one transplanting they can be set out in the flowering beds. These plants make rank growths and require plenty of space, say 12x18. A single wire support, carnation style, will keep the plants in place. Any good, ordinary compost will grow them successfully, and they seem to be immune from disease. Neither are they "touchy" on the water question, seemingly adapting themselves to all conditions, wet or dry. L.

MIGNONETTE IN THE SOUTH.

Mignonette grows easily in the south, and where the flowers are in demand it is a good paying crop. The first seeds may be sown in the northern section from September 1 to 15, and in the southern section at least two weeks later. The beds should be worked fine and laid off in squares 8x8 inches, and a few seeds dropped at each corner. When the seedlings are well up, thin them out to the strongest plants, and when large enough pinch them once. Two flowers can be taken from each plant.

The plants require some support as they grow, and they need a great deal of attention to keep the side shoots removed. The cabbage worm is fond of them in a small state and will require picking each day until the plants are fairly well grown. The soil used should be well enriched and manure water should be given twice a week when the plants are making buds. A night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees suits them. L.

CALLAS IN THE SOUTH.

Callas should be started into growth now. Where the old plants have been kept half dormant for the last two months, trim off the bad and decayed foliage, rake the surface soil and give a good coating of manure prior to watering thoroughly. The majority of growers in the south, I believe, grow callas in solid beds or benches, rather than in pots, and such practice I have personally found the better. It is a mistake to suppose that callas require to be water-soaked all the time. They like much water, but it can be overdone. L.

HARDY PERENNIALS

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Lysimachia Clethroides.

This lysimachia, with veronica-like spikes of pure white flowers, is one of the finest of perennials for cutting and is splendid in design work. It belongs to the same family as the well known moneywort, which is botanically Lysimachia Nummularia. L. clethroides grows to a height of two feet and blooms from July until September. It spreads with great rapidity and should be divided and replanted every other year in order to keep it in its best condition. Retail florists who need white flowers in the hot months will find this a most useful hardy perennial.

Planting can be done in either fall or spring. Fall planting, however, gives best results.

Statice Latifolia.

The sea-lavender statice, with its much branched and airy panicles of violet-blue flowers, at this season makes an attractive and useful plant in either the herbaceous border or rock garden. The flowers have excellent keeping qualities and are often cut and kept in a dry state as everlasting. I have found them to work in nicely in floral designs where the particular shade of blue is wanted. Plants succeed well under quite adverse conditions, but in good soil and in an open, sunny location they produce immense heads of flowers. Plants may be grown from seeds or divisions. It is not too late to sow seeds in a coldframe, where they should be wintered to flower next summer outdoors.

Euphorbia Corollata.

Similar to the popular Gypsophila paniculata, Euphorbia corollata is one of the most useful of florists' hardy flowers, carrying large, delicate sprays of pure white flowers which are of great value in design work. It is also effective in baskets and vases arranged with colored flowers. Every florist should grow some of this euphorbia.

Veronicas.

The veronicas, or speedwells, are attractive and useful herbaceous plants. All are of easy culture and well adapted for cutting. At present the variety longifolia and its improved form, subsessilis, are at their best. Spicata and spicata alba, of dwarfer habit, are also in bloom and make neat and compact clumps. All the veronicas like good soil and there is a wonderful improvement in the spikes when they receive liberal treatment. Some of the dwarf creeping forms, of which there are a number of varieties, are excellent in the rockery. Many are easily propagated from seeds, which usually come true. Root division usually is practiced with longifolia subsessilis.

Salvia Azurea.

Everyone knows the scarlet sage, Salvia splendens. It is a popular but heavily overplanted subject. The hardy border salvias are more or less neglected, but there are several desirable ones. S. azurea grandiflora now is carrying spikes of sky-blue flowers which attain a height of three to three and one-half feet, while S. virgata nemorosa makes a shapely bush of blue flowers two to three feet high at this season. S. patens, of a wondrous deep blue color, can scarcely be called a perennial, but if the roots are lifted and stored in sand over winter and not allowed to dry too much, it will winter nicely and flower in June and July.

Physostegia Virginiana.

Physostegia virginiana, better known as the false dragonhead, has considerable commercial value for cutting. In addition to the rosy lilac form there is also a charming pure white variety. This perennial spreads rapidly and if not divided and replanted once in two years it will soon become something of a nuisance and the flower spikes will deteriorate in quality. It blooms from July until September and lasts remarkably well when cut. In good soil it attains a height of four to six feet.

Stokesia Cyanea.

Sometimes called the giant cornflower, Stokesia cyanea is certainly one of the most beautiful of perennials at this season. Its large, sky-blue flowers are as large as asters and are freely produced for many weeks. There are pure white and pink forms, but the blue is by far the most attractive. Seed sown in spring will make strong flowering plants the following season. If started even now and protected in a coldframe through winter a fair number will flower.

Solidago Viviparum.

Solidago viviparum, or goldenrods,

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

HERBERT J. EDDY.

WHEN the Canadian Horticultural Association met at Montreal, Que., August 9, 1917, its members chose as its secretary-treasurer Herbert J. Eddy, of John Eddy & Sons, Montreal. In doing so they chose a man who has had much experience in financial matters, as Mr. Eddy has charge of the finances of the firm of which his father is the head. He also manages the retail store at 4425 Sherbourne street. Mr. Eddy has been in the florists' business for a number of years. The firm owns a greenhouse range at Westmount, a suburb of Montreal, as well as the retail store in the city proper. Since the war began three years ago, the financial end of the business of all Canadian florists has been an important one, and under Mr. Eddy's management his firm has continued its pre-war success.

are such common native plants that few people realize their value in the herbaceous garden. All varieties improve much under cultivation, as do the hardy asters. S. viviparum carries immense flower heads of rich golden yellow flowers and these are just opening. I do not know of any finer feature in the perennial border than the clumps of this goldenrod in late August, and it takes but a few spikes to make an effective show in a long vase.

Pyrethrums.

At this season we may get a few stray flowers on the pyrethrums, but they are fine in June and splendid for cutting. This is the best season to divide and replant them, especially if you are growing any of the double ones, like Queen Mary. If divided now the plants will become well established before winter.

Plumbago Larpentæ.

Plumbago Larpentæ, also called Cerastigma plumbaginoides, is a beautiful, persistent blooming, low growing perennial with blue flowers similar in color to those of the greenhouse P. capensis, but deeper in color. It makes a most charming border and is most satisfactory for this purpose, as it blooms from July until the end of October. It needs a little protection in winter, not being quite so hardy as the general run of perennials. I find it does better if planted in the spring than in the fall.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

MUM BUDDING DATES.

I am appending a list of names of chrysanthemums and would like to have you write after each name the bud to be taken on that variety and the date it should be taken. E. N. S.—Ill.

The table asked for is as follows:

Variety.	Bud.	Date.
White Bonnaffon.	Late crown.....	Sept. 10
Major Bonnaffon.	Late crown or terminal.....	Sept. 10
Robert Halliday.	Crown.....	August 20
Chieftain.....	Late crown.....	Sept. 10
Early Snow.....	Crown.....	August 15
Early Frost.....	Crown.....	August 15
Harvard.....	Terminal.....	Last bud
Tints of Gold.....	Crown.....	August 10
Charles Rager.....	Terminal.....	Sept. 20
Nagoya.....	Terminal.....	Late as possible
Dr. Enguehard.....	Terminal.....	Late as possible
Yellow Chadwick.....	Terminal.....	Late as possible
Glenview.....	Terminal.....	Late as possible
Chadwick.....	Terminal.....	Late as possible
Hirondelle.....	Terminal.....	Late as possible

There is no arbitrary date at which buds can be taken. In the first place, the buds may not appear at a given date, and in the second, by some manipulation the plants can be made to produce later buds than they normally would. The list shows a selection of early to late varieties. Thus Early Frost can be taken early in August and have the blooms in shape to cut by September 20. Also Tints of Gold. Major Bonnaffon by being grown well, planted early, and a crown bud taken, say, the last days of August, will give fine flowers by the end of October. But, as generally grown, the terminal buds are taken late in September, or later if they will hold back, and the flowers are marketed for Thanksgiving or later. Some growers do not plant Chadwicks or Nagoyas until late in July, and when so treated the terminal buds are produced late, which is what the cultivator aims at when he plants late.

All of which shows the fallacy of trying to set an absolute day as the proper date for taking buds. In the list submitted the approximate time is given after which the best results can be looked for, generally speaking. Sometimes if the plants are growing strongly they may be in full growth with no indication of a bud showing, and then the grower, by drying the plant a little, can check the exuberant growth and throw it into bud. This is often necessary in the case of Marigold, which does much the best on a crown bud in August, but it is a job sometimes to get it. And the same thing obtains with October Frost.

Charles H. Totty.

TAKING BUDS ON GOLDEN GLOW.

Will you please tell me whether it is too early to take the buds from Golden Glow chrysanthemums? They have three or four buds, but no side shoots. Is it too late to cut down such mums as Golden Glow, Bonnaffon, Roman Gold, Chadwick, Enguehard and Chrysolora? The mums have been in the benches too weeks. K. E.—Ill.

As early as ready you can take buds on Golden Glow mums. Rub off all but one bud on a shoot if you want good flowers. It is too late to cut down any varieties of mums now. Your plants, undoubtedly, are getting nicely established in the benches and it would be suicidal to cut them down. C. W.

MUMS LOOK RUSTY.

Can you tell me what is on our chrysanthemums? They look like tiny worms about one-thirty-second of an inch long, yellow in color, and are lively in the fuzz on the under side of the leaves. In time they make the leaves look rusty. There are a great many of them. I syringe them with water every day, but that does not seem to do any good. L. W.—O.

The trouble is with the mum midge, which has been distributed widely over the country during the last two years. It has been mentioned several times in The Review and is a serious pest. It can be controlled by persistent fumigation with tobacco dust. Some growers claim that fumigating every night for several weeks will catch the flies as they hatch out from the yellow worm. The fly is the final stage of the insect and immediately begins reproducing its kind. Chas. H. Totty.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM MIDGE.

I am sending you a chrysanthemum plant that either is diseased or infested with some sort of insect. What is the trouble, and what is a remedy for it? J. R. K.—Mich.

The plant submitted was badly infested with what is known as the chrysanthemum midge, one of the worst pests to be found. The eggs are laid in the tissues of the leaf by a fly, and the resulting insects work their way out of the leaf. The insects multiply rapidly.

When plants are as badly affected as the one submitted, one may as well pull them up and burn them, as the flowers will be too crippled to be of any use. Fumigation, unless carried on every night, will not avail much. The midge is a real menace that will be heard of a good deal until it has run its course, like rust and other troubles to which the mum has been subject.

Chas. H. Totty.

CHRYSANTHEMUM MISTLETOE.

Of what type is Chrysanthemum Mistletoe, and what is the color of the flower? When is the proper time to take the bud and what is the date of blooming? H. G. B.—Tenn.

Mistletoe is an incurved white, occasionally flushed with light pink. It is classed as a good commercial Thanksgiving variety, blooming after November 15, when late buds are taken. It is not so large as Chadwick or Autocrat, but it enjoys a certain measure of popularity, as it has a good, dwarf habit.

Chas. H. Totty.

News from Abroad

Paris, France.—Flowers sell at high prices, but there is so small a supply that the industry of flower growing and selling may be described as overwhelmed in the war.

London, England.—Many British gardeners now in the trade in the United States know H. B. May, of Edmonton, and have worked for or with him. They will regret to learn that he is able to speak only with the greatest difficulty in spite of a recent operation on his throat.

London, England.—Last year the government allowed the importation of one-half the previous year's quantity of Japanese lily bulbs and this season the trade had hoped to get in a quarter of the normal number, but thus far the trade petition has been unanswered and the ban is absolute.

London, England.—The trade has not given up hope of obtaining French bulbs this year. Although the government has stated that no importations will be allowed, it is reported that steamers from Marseilles are not full and the Horticultural Trades' Association has decided to make another effort to obtain permission to import bulbs.

Spalding, England.—Not content with prohibiting the importation of all bulbs, the agricultural committee for Lincolnshire is bringing pressure to bear on narcissus bulb growers here to reduce their acreage. There is strong protest against a ruling that no fresh land be put under bulbs, as it has been the custom to put each planting on fresh land as a precaution against disease.

London, England.—Anent the proposal of the government to prohibit the use of lumber for making packing cases, a nurseryman says: "Some of the wholesale growers of flowers already are refusing customers who are unable to return empties. What will become of the plant trade if no boxes are available in which to pack them? The export trade to America cannot be carried on without the wood to make the cases. People talk glibly about the necessity of fostering the American trade, but this will be the last drop in the ocean of difficulties and tiresome formalities which already hedge about this trade. Raffia commandeered by the government, packing paper five times its former price, labor scarce and dear, fuel threatened by prohibition for horticultural purposes, by no means exhaust the list of a nurseryman's troubles."

BEGONIAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

We have a block of Chatelaine begonias in 6-inch pots—full size—and nearly every one a good specimen. We want these to be big, fine plants for Christmas, and we do not know how to handle them for the best results. Will a shift to 7-inch pots be sufficient, and when should this be done? When they were shifted to 6-inch pots they were cut back. Should they be cut again? We are keeping the flowers picked off.

W. M. V.—Ga.

A shift to 7-inch pots or deep pans, called three-fourth pots, can be given now, and a mixture of old cow manure and loam used. If you keep the flowers picked off until the last of October, this will permit them to carry plenty of bloom for Christmas. This begonia is practically an all-the-year-around bloomer, and if kept well fed and watered, will never be out of flower. A night temperature of 50 degrees will suit it better than one 10 degrees higher, and the plants will be much stockier.

C. W.

SCALE ON PALMS.

Please advise me how to take care of palms. What is the best soil to use in repotting them? They are full of scale and appear sunburned. I have them outdoors. How soon should they be housed?

G. C. Z.—N. Y.

If the palms in question are infested with scale insects, the first thing to do is to clean them with a sponge or cloth dipped in strong soapsuds. A solution of one-half of an ounce of Ivory soap to one gallon of water would answer for a job of this kind. A small brush, such as a soft tooth brush, is also a convenient tool to clean some portions of the leaves and stems, but do not rub too hard with it, else it may scratch the plant.

It may be safer not to repot the palms at this season, if you purpose keeping them in a dwelling for the winter. Remove some of the top soil and then top-dress with a mixture of rather heavy garden soil and manure, using one part of the latter to two parts of the soil. Press this down firmly in the pots or tubs. The plants will be safe outdoors until about September 15, and possibly a little later if the season is warm.

FALL OR SPRING PLANTING?

Kindly inform me whether the following stock can be successfully planted in the fall or whether it would be better to wait and plant next spring: Lilacs, honeysuckles, rambler roses, Rose of Sharon, irises and Berberis Thunbergii.

W. B.—Mich.

Lilacs will do much better if they are planted in the fall; so will Ioniceras, or bush honeysuckles, and all varieties of irises. The last named will succeed better if planted now, especially the German, Japanese and Siberian varieties. Rambler roses and the Rose of Sharon, or althæa, would do better if planted in early spring. I hope you will try fall planting of some of your stock. Far too many growers leave all planting until spring, although, as a matter of fact, nearly all herbaceous perennials and many deciduous shrubs do much better if planted in the fall.

C. W.

Richmond, Va.—Ira L. Anderson & Son have been granted a permit to build a greenhouse on Forty-fourth street, between Springhill and Belvidere avenues. It will cost $3,989.

Bartlesville, Okla.—A. E. Meyers, proprietor of the Meyers Floral Farm, is building an addition of Dietsch greenhouses. A Kroeschell boiler is being installed to heat the range.

Muskogee, Okla.—The Muskogee Carnation Co. found the season of 1916-17 the best in the history of the enterprise and two houses have been added this season, each 28x100, using material supplied by the A. Dietsch Co., Chicago.

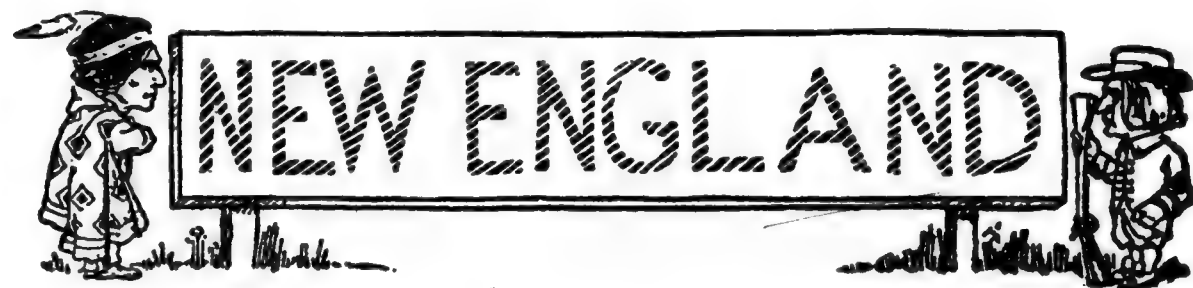

Deer Park, Ala.—The drought that hit the seedsmen and growers in this section hard during the summer was broken August 1. Since that time there has been good growing weather, but the prospects for a crop are poor, declare L. H. Read & Co.

Ada, Okla.—Rains during August did much for florists, says W. E. Pitt, proprietor of the Ada Greenhouse. Carnations indoors are looking fine, and the outdoor chrysanthemums are good, although they have been getting too much rain and not enough sunshine.

Bonham, Tex.—The City Greenhouses, Baxter Sitzler, proprietor and manager, are erecting another greenhouse, 35x100, to help take care of the increased demand.

Sherman, Tex.—Coal dealers have advanced the price of fuel 50 cents per ton during July and August, declares H. O. Hannah, who with his son, Fred, owns the Sherman Greenhouses. The price now is eighty per cent more than it was three years ago, Mr. Hannah adds.

Houston, Tex.—Walter Westgate, of the Roselynn Nursery & Floral Co., includes a wholesale business in holly, wild smilax, mistletoe, Florida gray moss, palm leaves, cut ferns, etc., with his business in nursery stock and native plants. He says the trade in decorative greens is increasing steadily. The dry weather has ruined the cut fern business, but there is an increasing call for Florida gray moss, which florists are finding useful in a large number of ways. Aside from its decorative uses, in its natural state or colored green or brown, the Florida gray moss is taking the place of sphagnum for filling wire designs, for hanging baskets, for the tops of flower pots and in packing plants for shipment.

Hinsdale, Mass.—L. B. Bague & Son are celebrating their fiftieth anniversary in the fern business this season and have sent their patrons a handsomely engraved card of greetings.

Bridgeport, Conn.—John Reck & Sons report most satisfactory business. As they are in the best part of the city, they receive a good share of the liberal purchasing in this munition town.

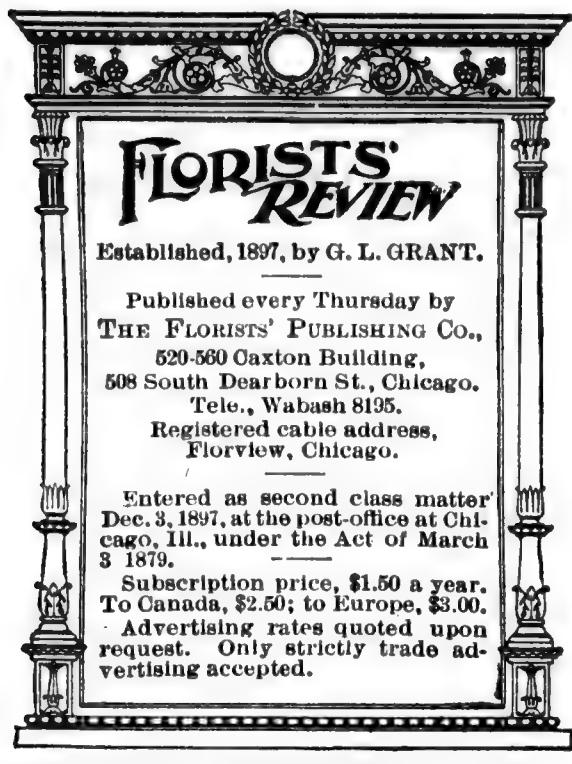

Portland, Conn.—Otto Keser & Sons have passed through a strenuous season and now that Otto, Jr., has joined the army for the front it means more work for father, who, fortunately, has a splendid helpmate in Mrs. Keser.

Rockland, Me.—Rockland had a flower sale for the benefit of the Red Cross August 22, which netted $120 for the fund. The success of the day is attributed to George H. Glaentzel, who has a flower store in the Odd Fellows' block, and his daughter, Miss Anna Glaentzel. Mr. Glaentzel and Miss Glaentzel made special bouquets which a number of the Rockland girls sold on the streets.

Westerly, R. I.—The annual fair of the New London County Agricultural Society opened at Norwich September 3. The floricultural departments this year were unusually large.

Saxonville, Mass.—Raymond W. Swett, whose specialty is gladioli, recently has taken up dahlias. His bed in the S. A. F. Convention Garden at New York contained twenty-nine of the type known as Newport Singles. Mr. Swett endorses the opinion of the originator, Mr. Robertson, that these never will take second place to any single sorts.

Providence, R. I.—Willis S. Pino says fortune has indeed smiled upon his business this season; even at this late date counter trade is brisk. Mr. Pino commented on the liberal free publicity given the business by the local press, unconsciously, it is believed. The same paper in its trouble column, in answer to a correspondent, advised him to tackle the seedsmen from whom the seed was purchased. "And a hard job we have had with some, but we came off conquerors," said Mr. Pino.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE antirrhinum rust seems to have been giving many growers trouble this summer.

THERE probably never has been a year when September found the retailers as a class so confident of good business soon to come.

IT is an old saying that the only difference between the rut and the grave is the length and breadth, so it is wisdom to keep out of the rut.

THE West Floral Co., London, Ont., has been forced by increase of business to double the size of its store since the war began. This should be reassuring news to the trade in the United States.

PRIVATE gardens are said to have produced vegetables valued at $350,000,000 this summer. Those of the vegetable gardeners who usually grow flowers will be extra hungry for blooms this fall.

THE first 1918 calendar to reach The Review arrived August 28, from A. W. Warren, of Corry, Pa., who each year sends his customers, and customers only, he says, the prettiest calendar he is able to find. The 1918 subject is W. Haskell Coffin's "The Girl of My Dreams."

THE trade might as well make up its mind to do without European or other imported stock for the duration of the war. With embargoes on every side and freight space difficult to procure, the risks are greater than the probable profit for the man who does not protect himself with the aid of much experience.

UNANIMITY.

The old grouch was dying. "Are you ready to go?" asked the minister.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Then that makes it unanimous."

The florist now is ready to buy goods for a good fall and winter business. When the man with something to sell the trade has placed his ad in The Review telling the florists that he is ready to sell, that makes it unanimous, with results for the advertiser like this:

Kindly discontinue my carnation ad in The Review. I had splendid results; in fact, I sold out.—Jacob Schulz, Louisville, Ky., August 24, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

F. T. D. AT STATE FAIRS.

That the annual state fairs offer an exceptional opportunity for acquainting the public with the trade's facilities for the telegraph delivery of flowers is the belief of Samuel Seligman, who has written the following letter to Albert Pochelon, secretary of the F. T. D.:

Having the welfare of F. T. D. at heart, you may find it of interest to follow out my suggestion in taking advantage of the many state fairs throughout the United States this fall. I enclose a complete list of these state fairs, their dates, etc.

I sincerely believe the representative florists in the towns or cities in the vicinity of these state fairs will gladly cooperate with you by putting over one of the greatest F. T. D. publicity stunts without any actual financial expense other than giving up some of their employees' time for the state fair. The florists have enough prestige in their local communities to get the local Western Union or Postal Telegraph manager to cooperate in placing some sort of telegraph booth, and in this way explain to the public the wonderful possibilities and the actual service rendered by the F. T. D. in delivering flowers the world over. Not only this, but the live, wide-awake florist can work up an effective telegraph F. T. D. window during state fair days, without interfering with his usual floral displays, as in these days he is in want of an attractive window, and he can follow out such ideas and F. T. D. windows as heretofore shown in the trade paper.

In The Review for August 2 the leading article had to do with F. T. D. windows and a half-page illustration showed a Kemble & Goodman state fair display readily adaptable to either use.

A SORE SPOT.

Even as a certain kind of grocer substitutes saccharine for sugar, or some clothiers sell cotton mixtures to the man who pays for all wool, so some florists are said to have their own little get-rich-quick game. The pastime popularly known as "getting away with it" may bring a fat profit at the moment, but anybody with half a mind knows that it will eventually lead a business to the graveyard of dead patronage. Methods of the circus grafter fortunately are known for what they are, but the unfair tactics of some merchants do not even have this commendable feature of carrying a red light.

One of the lighter habits of a few retail florists is to use stale, poor stock when the buyer pays for the best in the market; and some deluded tradesmen seem even to consider it proof of their cleverness to be able to dress up old stock so that the goods look, in the eyes of the buyer, worth the price. It is immaterial what is the reason—whether the use of poor stock is forced because of the lack of good stock, whether the wholesale supply is too far away or whether the retailer is guilty of greed—for as long as the customer pays for something he does not get, he is not dealt with fairly. Of course, when the customer discovers that he is being victimized, he tries the "other fellow." One retailer loses a customer, another retailer gains one—the operation that separates business success from plain business.

Of all the black sheep, the one who specializes in peddling poor values as good values is the most damaging to the florists' business. He provides the trade in general with a succession of black marks. Funeral work is white meat for such as he, probably for the reason that in many cases the poor keeping quality of old or inferior stock rarely has a chance to develop its true character before the eyes of the customer.

Years ago, the story goes, one retailer particularly adept in "tricks of the trade" substituted red peonies for American Beauty roses in a $50 funeral wreath, thinking that no one, not even the buyer, would know the difference. The retailer got his money in advance, for it was a collection fund, but a few hours later, while thinking what a clever bird he was, he was called up by the buyer, who demanded to know why red peonies were used instead of American Beauties. The florist kept the money, but he lost forever the patronage he had received from that source.

Of course there are comparatively few men in the trade who do not deal fairly and those few seldom are with us long.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The arrival of September has brought the customary signs of the reawakening of demand. Business is noticeably better than it has been in recent weeks, although it has been a summer of more than usual activity. The shipping trade, especially, has shown a pleasing increase, but the city retailers also are buying more freely and the market is in a healthy condition.

The supply of stock is not especially large for this time of year. Last week gladioli began to pile up and there were times when the retail stores that like to sell their flowers at a few cents per bunch were able to do business for the first time this season. Otherwise the market was not so heavily supplied in any line that it was necessary to sacrifice values. Quite the contrary, in nearly all lines prices were well maintained, demand being fully equal to the supply of good stock.

With September there has come a considerable increase in the supply of chrysanthemums. Golden Glow is seen in considerable quantities, with a few Smith's Advance for white. Weather conditions have been favorable and the quality of the stock is excellent for so early in the season. The demand, none too strong in August, shows considerable improvement. The growers of early mums are hoping for just one good, sharp early frost.

The late asters are excellent. They leave no reason for hunting for carnations, which are in extremely small supply. Easter lilies are abundant, but are selling steadily because they are the general utility flower between seasons. Valley is in moderate supply, equal to the somewhat increased demand. Catleyas continue on the short side, being, indeed, a negligible item.

Mention The Review when you write.

The rose supply is not so large as it usually is at this time of year, but there has been considerable improvement in quality during the recent cooler weather. Mrs. Russell has displaced Beauty as the item of most importance. It is in largest supply in a number of wholesale houses that formerly specialized on Beauty. Most of the stock now arriving is short to medium in stem, but there are moderate quantities of the longer grades, almost enough to meet the current demand. Next to Russell, Ophelia is the principal item in most of the wholesale houses, showing how generally the growers have turned to this easily handled variety. Milady also is in increased supply this year, many growers having planted it as their only red rose. Both Killarney and Killarney Brilliant are in reduced supply this season. The present stock is mostly short in stem, which is not a matter of concern at present, because the demand for long roses has not yet awakened. Several growers who have clung to Beauty are cutting good crops and it is one of the interesting facts that with the decreased supply increased salesmanship is necessary to realize the oldtime prices. It seems that with decreasing supply the retailers stopped pushing Beauty and consequently have stopped hunting for it. Consequently it is up to the wholesaler to push this item, formerly considered a trade bringer for him.

Greens of all kinds are in good supply, with no special demand.

August and the Summer.

The arrival of September may not mark the opening of the autumn season, but it means the passing of summer—July and August are the dull months. On the whole, it has been a good summer. Not all the wholesale houses are able to report sales in excess of other summers, but a few have done much better than heretofore. In most cases one or both of two causes are accountable for changes in the records: The shifting of growers from house to house has influenced the individual showings of commission men without affording any index to general trade conditions, or the quantity and quality of stock cut have varied so greatly this year and last as to determine the summer's record in spite of the best efforts of salesmen.

August was marked by a considerable reduction of supply in this market as compared with the same month in recent years. Roses, particularly, were few and short. While this made certain incomes less than last year, it may be a blessing in disguise, because it prob-

Prices in August have not been bad; there has been little to complain of except reduced supplies in individual cases.

August Weather.

August was much below normal in temperature, 90 degrees being reached only once, as was 47 degrees, the lowest August reading ever recorded here. It was a good month from the grower's standpoint, but the cool nights brought on mildew in a good many rose houses. The rainfall was less than half the nor-

At Peter Reinberg's mansion on Sheridan road almost every foot of available space is used for flower beds, making the grounds one of the brightest spots on that famous boulevard. Many florists are among those who stop to look, and to them the special feature is a big round bed of Beacon carnation, full of bloom.

The rose supply is not so large as it usually is at this time of year, but there has been considerable improvement in quality during the recent cooler weather. Mrs. Russell has displaced Beauty as the item of most importance. It is in largest supply in a number of wholesale houses that formerly specialized on Beauty. Most of the stock now arriving is short to medium in stem, but there are moderate quantities of the longer grades, almost enough to meet the current demand. Next to Russell, Ophelia is the principal item in most of the wholesale houses, showing how generally the growers have turned to this easily handled variety. Milady also is in increased supply this year, many growers having planted it as their only red rose. Both Killarney and Killarney Brilliant are in reduced supply this season. The present stock is mostly short in stem, which is not a matter of concern at present, because the demand for long roses has not yet awakened. Several growers who have clung to Beauty are cutting good crops and it is one of the interesting facts that with the decreased supply increased salesmanship is necessary to realize the oldtime prices. It seems that with decreasing supply the retailers stopped pushing Beauty and consequently have stopped hunting for it. Consequently it is up to the wholesaler to push this item, formerly considered a trade bringer for him.

Greens of all kinds are in good supply, with no special demand.

August and the Summer.

The arrival of September may not mark the opening of the autumn season, but it means the passing of summer. July and August are the dull months. On the whole, it has been a good summer. Not all the wholesale houses are able to report sales in excess of other summers, but a few have done much better than heretofore. In most cases one or both of two causes are account-the other summer flowers flooded the market, and much of the supply could not be moved. Consequently prices on these items were low. Roses are plentiful. American Beauties were selling at $25 per hundred for the best flowers, while Hadley, Russell and Ophelia roses brought from $6 to $8 per hundred. Quantities of the new crop of short-stemmed roses sold as low as 25 and 50 cents per hundred. The latter, however, are improving in quality, while the demand for good stock is increasing.

New carnations have arrived, but they are short-stemmed and of poor quality. Valley continues scarce and in little demand. Lilies sold slightly higher, the prices being $4 per hundred for longiflorums and $3 per hundred for rubrums. The supply of orchids is increasing. Gigas sold at $1 apiece, while none of them brought less than 50 cents.

There is an abundance of dahlias, but only the newer varieties and the best flowers seemed to appeal to the retailers. Chrysanthemums are beginning to arrive, a few Golden Glows and October Frosts having reached the market. Great quantities of Hydrangea paniculata are seen. Marigolds, calendulas, delphiniums and daisies are abundant.

ROCHESTER EXPOSITION SHOW.

Attracting Great Crowds.

The annual exposition and flower show at Rochester, N. Y., was opened Labor day, with perfect weather. Thousands of people passed through the gate and by noon the grounds were practically filled. Never have the grounds been in better condition than this year. On entering the peristyle one is charmed with the wonderful reproduction of a woodland waterfall. With a natural background of arbor-vitæ, the water is seen tumbling onto logs and rocks on which moss and small trees are growing. Surrounding the pool is a quantity of ferns and aquatic plants. Near the main entrance to the auditorium are two immense boxes covered with bark and filled with asters. Looking towards the band stand is a handsome bed of Celosia cristata, undoubtedly the finest ever seen in Rochester and contributed by Hans Moller, a landscape architect of Pittsford, N. Y., who also has a beautiful display in Floral hall. Near the peristyle is another lily pond surrounded by rocks and tall dracænas.

The hall is prettily staged with benches and tables for the exhibitors, of whom there are a good number. The largest space is occupied by James Vick's Sons, who have a wonderful display of annuals and perennials. The most interesting feature is their new yellow aster, not yet named. They are showing a good quantity of bulbs. The exhibit is in charge of the Misses Burns and Fuller and George L. Case.

Notes of the Exhibits.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Do you know how you feel that a change is coming, without exactly knowing how? Some people express this idea by saying that they "sense" it; others that they feel it in their bones. Probably these people are of rheumatic tendencies—anyway, that is the market condition today.

Summer is changing to fall. Summer flowers are still here; they will be here for a while, but fall flowers have commenced, and in a week they will be in force. Of course, this means that the dahlia has come. It is still too warm for dahlias to be favorites, but they are ready for the first breath of fall weather —old friends, such as Arabella and Sylvia; the more pronounced Geisha Girl and Jack Rose, and then the new aspirants. The rains have made them quite attractive, with promise of being extremely nice soon.

Even with the accession of the first dahlias, there are fewer flowers than during the last fortnight. Asters and new-crop roses are the principal flowers, with gladioli and Easter lilies less abundant. The proportion of fine asters is a little larger than it has been. The roses are nice flowers, but rather short of stem. The first new-crop carnations have arrived. Cattleyas and valley are at an extremely low ebb.

Times of popular excitement, such as the draft parade September 1 and holidays like Labor day, September 3, are unfavorable to the flower business. In spite of these elements of distraction, the demand has been fair, rather better than of late. While no startling change is probable, better business is anticipated toward the middle of this month.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Florists' Club was held September 4 on the seventh floor of the Parkway building. Vice-president David Colflesh presided. There was a small but earnest attendance to hear Richard E. Foley discuss publicity.
W. F. Therkildson told of what had been done in New York. Arthur A.
Niessen made valuable suggestions for raising the balance of the publicity

The Cannas at Andalusia.

Those who have lately ridden over the line of the New York division of the Pennsylvania railroad past Andalusia station have enjoyed a treat. The Michell Co. seed farm close to the railroad at Andalusia is now more beautiful than it has ever been before. To see the farm when walking over it is always interesting—to see it from one of the trains that shoot by daily gives a wholly different and even more interesting idea of its scope and beauty. Of course the cannas show best under a chain-lightning bird's-eye view. Their dazzling effect is almost blinding with its brilliancy. The impression of color, of size and quality of bloom, of perfect proportions in the beds and general arrangement, arouses admiration in all who behold a canna gem in an ever-green lawn setting.

day, so he was going to be married before sailing. Although the wedding was hurriedly decided upon on receipt of the groom's orders, it was unusually pretty. It was even said by some of the guests to be the prettiest wedding they had ever seen.

The church was small and quite plain, but well lighted by large windows. There were no florists, so the flowers were supplied by the college gardeners and arranged by friends. There was a wealth of material. Curiously enough, Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora was nearly as far advanced in Maine as in Pennsylvania, so these bold white hydrangeas and soft white phloxes were used effectively in the chancel, with pine boughs for a background. The carpet on the aisle leading to the chancel was worn and shabby. Over it fragrant balsam was thickly strewn. Tall bunches of America gladioli were tied at the entrance to each pew. The bride's white, the bridesmaid's pink roses and the little flower girls' white and pink sweet peas were in harmony with the colors of the church flowers.

The Climax Line is a Good Line to Tie To

THE FACT that we have in the past seven years built up the largest Cut Flower Box business in the Country is our best advertisement. We strive to please and the results speak for themselves.

"WHEN BETTER BOXES ARE MADE WE WILL MAKE THEM" is still our slogan.

We manufacture and carry in stock for prompt shipment: Oxford Gray, Mist Green, Mist Tan, White Carnation and our popular Favorite grade—the latter a most satisfactory telescope shipping box. Holiday boxes in season. We make special sizes promptly and at reasonable charge, and specialize in attractive and up-to-date printing and embossing.

With our increased facilities we aim to make our service the best in our line, and if you are in the market it will pay you to wait for the "Climax" Salesman, or send for late price list and samples to nearest office: 141 Milk St., Boston; 2914 11th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Christian Dehn says, "Come and see our peerless avenues of maples, many of which were planted by my worthy confrere, as were some of the parks."

Someone has said that the establishment of A. N. Pierson, Inc., at Cromwell, Conn., is a Mecca for the trade. Certainly it has not been the writer's privilege to visit a more modern range, at which so enormous a business is done, amid such pastoral surroundings, as there.

Approaching from the north, a bend in the road suddenly reveals a glorious riot of blooms, each hardy plant vying with the great variety of roses, especially ramblers. An extensive rock garden and lily ponds form the foreground of the picture; ranges of greenhouses are in the rear, while stretched away far and beyond is one of the most beautiful landscapes in the Connecticut valley. The chief attraction now is outdoor stock, while the houses are nearly all planted for the call of winter. A fine growing season is being experienced.

Among the novel and unusual sights are sturdy yokes of oxen, handsome fellows, which are attached to carts filled with soil for the greenhouses. A valuable trait is their steadiness of gait. "How conditions have changed! Remember the occasion," observed A. N. Pierson, "when the convention of the S. A. F. was held at Toronto and we met for the first time? You accommodated me by paying my fare, as the street car conductor refused my good nickel and you happened to have the necessary change in Canadian coin." In those days much business was transacted at the conventions, the storekeeper usually stocking up, from samples on view, sufficient ordinarily to run through the selling season. Now it is a good form of publicity, and just as practical, as it enables the purchaser to size up the quality of the stock offered.

Judging from general appearances, the quality and quantity of both flowering and foliage plants will be quite satisfactory, and the cut flower departments will be fully up to the usual high standard. W. M.

Would You Like to Have a Profitable Nursery Business?

"I am going to retire and want you to sell my business for me. It has earned enough to keep the wolf from my door for the rest of my days; it has given my family a handsome living, with several extended trips abroad, and from its profits I have also put my sons through Yale. The business is admirably located in a large eastern city, and has been established for about 40 years."

That is the context of a letter recently received from a prosperous, well known nurseryman. If you want to secure a good paying business, with a good will of incalculable value and records which will enable you to continue its profitable operation either with or without a nursery —

This may be the opportunity of your lifetime and it costs you practically nothing to investigate.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Indications of a turn in the tide are now apparent. Outdoor flowers, such as asters and gladioli, have had many batterings from electrical storms and are not of the best quality, while the supply of good indoor flowers is somewhat meager. With the return this week of summer vacationists, the demand has picked up a little. There is no snap to business, but an unusual number of weddings, added to funeral work, use up considerable material. The late asters are now coming in and are, generally speaking, of good quality. Gladioli continue abundant and are low in price. For design work the primulinus hybrids are by far the most popular, being far less stiff than the ordinary section.

Roses have not had a good week. Double White Killarney, Kaiserin and Ward have sold particularly well, however. Small lots of short-stemmed carnations are appearing, but are not wanted. In addition to Golden Glow, some Early Frost and Smith's Advance mums have appeared. Dahlias are seen in small lots. They are not popular market flowers here, however. Valley is scarce and high and cattleya prices are away up. White bouvardia sells well for wedding bouquets at double last year's prices.

A Visit to Framingham.

At William R. Nicholson's, Framingham, a fine bench of Early Frost chrysanthemums is starting to give some nice flowers. Several houses are devoted to mums and all are looking well. The last and most recently built house of carnations was being planted August 27. The carnation plants are extra large and promising. A bench of Nellore, Keystone Pink and Phelps' White snapdragons promised a splendid fall crop. William Nicholson, Sr., retired some years ago from active business, but has a fine garden of annuals, perennials and flowering shrubs, to say nothing of vegetables of splendid quality.

Buddleia magnifica was in excellent bloom here.

S. J. Goddard has had all his carnations planted for some time and will soon have some flowers open. He is growing principally Nancy, Laddie, Rosalia, Doris, Matchless, Benora, Beacon, Pink Sensation, Yellow Prince and Merry Christmas. He also has good-sized batches of several seedlings. All plants were in splendid condition.
Cyclamens, snapdragons, chrysanthemums and other plants were all coming along in fine shape. Some fine standard fuchsias and geraniums and beds of cannas were noted at the entrance to the greenhouses.

George Melvin, who is superintendent of the Col. Charles Pfaff estate at Framingham, has one of the best laid out estates of moderate size near Boston. Some fine specimen orchids were noted in one of the greenhouses, of which there is a neat range. A kitchen garden, enclosed by a high, wide privet hedge, with board walks and borders of annuals and perennials on either side, was well laid out and attractive.
The lawns, dairy farm, window boxes and other features here are all noteworthy. Mr. Melvin's own residence is a charming and roomy one, and his collection of coins, medals, regimental emblems, etc., is extensive and interesting.

noticed some dozens of flowers of Fabia, gigas, Harrisoniae and Miss Williams. Of the latter there were fully 200 healthy specimens. Cattleyas, phalaenopsis, cymbidiums, cypripediums and other orchids were all in robust health. One of the carnation houses is being changed over for cattleyas and lilies. Retail business here is and has been good all summer.

Various Notes.

The show of children's gardens' products at Horticultural hall September 1 and 2 was the most extensive ever seen in Boston. The quality of vegetables ruled high and competition was keen. In the classes for beets, potatoes, carrots, sweet corn, tomatoes, squash and onions, there were from fifty to eighty-five entries each, and as many as forty collections in one class were staged. The interest in the productions from the children's war garden was shown by the large attendance of the public. No show of late years in Boston created more enthusiasm.

The condolences of numerous friends go out to Daniel Iliffe, our well-known local greenhouse builder, in the sudden death of his wife August 30. Interment was at South Weymouth September 1, a good number in the trade attending and sending floral tributes.

William C. Stickel, of Lexington, is sending in the finest long-stemmed white asters I have seen this season. His carnations look well. Matchless and Pink Delight are his leading stand-bys.

Penn's report more than fifty wedding orders filled last week and funeral business good. The number of war brides at present is large and florists benefit from all of them. Henry Penn has returned from a month's vacation in Maine.

Mann Bros. are shipping in quantities of white and red speciosum lilies, gentians, cosmos and gomphrenas.

rain over normal. The highest temperature was 98 degrees and the lowest 58 degrees. It could be fairly classed as a splendid growing month.

C. J. Sloane, of the Mann Co., announced his engagement August 29 to Miss Ethel Necktovich. Joe, as he is popularly called, has been in the flower business a number of years and was at one time assistant to Thomas Pegler at the old Park street market. He is one of the boys who have succeeded.

The Welch Bros. Co. is receiving extra fine Maryland, Francis Scott Key and Kaiserin roses from its shippers. August business has averaged well above that of the same month a year ago.

Harry Silvey, salesman for H. M. Robinson & Co., at the wholesale market, is enjoying a vacation at Salisbury Beach.

Charles Evans, W. H. Carr, A. F. Carr, J. McNamara and H. D. Ward had a pleasant week-end fishing trip at Weymouth September 1 to 3. Catches might have been larger, but the party made up in fun what it lacked in fish.

C. S. Andem, of Putnam, Conn., is shipping a fine line of gladioli. His specialty is carnations and his new crop is in first-class condition.

Patrick Welch returned this week from his summer vacation at Old Orchard, Me. A fair business has been done at the store through the summer. Choice flowers are at present scarce and asters and gladioli in oversupply.

In Franklin park, Boston, there are ninety acres of war gardens divided into allotments of 5,000 square feet. There are some forty additional acres outside the park, all under the direction of the park department. Potatoes and pea beans are chiefly grown, and an inspection September 4 showed them to be in fine condition.

Christofferson Bros., of Beverly, are shipping in extra fine long-stemmed asters. The late excessive rains have seriously injured aster crops on low lands, which were badly flooded.

Local bulb dealers and growers are pessimistic about getting any Dutch

The Market.

The market last week was dull as far as demand was concerned. There has been considerable stock sold for funeral orders, but outside of that, the retailers say, there is little call for flowers. There was an abundance of outdoor stock. Asters are in greater supply than demand. The same can be said of gladioli and tuberoses. These items sell at 75 cents per hundred. In gladioli, choice America and Augusta sell best. Many Mrs. Francis Kings are being dumped. Other outdoor flowers have made their appearance, among them being clematis, the first consignments of which always sell well. Dahlias are coming in quantities, although the best varieties have yet to arrive. Some cosmos also were in the market.

Few roses have arrived and only the best of the Russells, Wards and Killarneys sell well. Carnations still are small and short-stemmed. Easter lilies sell well, while orchids and valley are scarce. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

A number of local florists are planning to attend the meeting of the F. T. D. at Detroit in October. Among them are President F. H. Weber and Secretary Richard Tubising, of the Retail Florists' Association, and Vincent Gorly, F. C. Weber, Jr., and Fred H. Meinhardt.

L. P. Jensen, E. Strehle and L. Baumann, of the committee on grounds for the National Flower Show, put in a busy week grading and seeding the site for the temporary building to house the show. The big electric sign announcing the show now is in place and attracts a great deal of attention.

The Muskopf & Irish Co. has a big force of men laying out 400 acres for George C. Hawes, at Arcadia, Mo. The conservatory, 20x50 feet, has just been completed by Lord & Burnham.

The Kalisch Bros. Floral Co. is cutting a fine lot of dahlias, cosmos and tuberoses at its farm. The stock is being marketed by C. H. Kuehn.

Miss M. S. Newmann and Miss Armstrong have returned from Colorado, where they spent the summer.

Edward Eisner, manager for Grimm & Gorly, says August business has been good. The store has had some attractive window decorations recently.

Adolph Kuehner, of the H. G. Berning force, passed the physical examination for the army. He did not claim exemption and expects to be called soon.

John Nyflot is getting a big cut of gladioli at his farm in the country. The dahlia field at his Florissant avenue place promises a large supply of dahlias.

John S. Carter, Jr., son of John S. Carter of the Nicotine Manufacturing Co., is driving an ambulance at the front near Verdun, France. In a recent letter to his parents, he says he is in good health, but has had many narrow escapes since he began the dangerous work.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Kingsley, of the Mulanphy Florists, have returned from a ten days' vacation. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Seeger, of this concern, and Mr. Seeger's sister, Miss Ella Seeger, are at Waynesville Springs, Mo., for ten days. Julius Schaffer, of the same store, has been accepted for the army and is waiting for the call.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. store is being redecorated. The supply and wire department has been busy during the summer.

Theodore D. Kuebler, an aster grower, of Evansville, Ind., was a recent visitor. He is consigning a great part of his cut to the local market.

Arthur Beyer, of the Fred C. Weber staff, is away on a ten days' vacation. F. C. Weber, Jr., is doing the buying during Mr. Beyer's absence.

Harry Young is keeping busy at the orchid and fern houses on Waterman avenue since his son, Raymond, joined the army. Mrs. Young is managing the retail store on Maryland avenue.

Richard Edwards, son of W. J. Edwards, of Kirkwood, joined the navy last week.

from September 13 to September 20, so as not to conflict with the convention of park superintendents. The meeting will be held at Edwin Denker's place at St. Charles.

August 28 marked the twenty-eighth anniversary of the death of Henry Shaw, the founder of Shaw's Garden, which is now the Missouri Botanical Garden. The mausoleum in the garden was a mass of flowers on that day.

The St. Louis Seed Co. is receiving its fall supply of bulbs and has commenced filling orders. Vice-president Hummert says he looks for a big business in seeds and bulbs this fall.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle will meet September 12 at the home of Mrs. John L. Koenig, 3511 Clarence avenue. The August meeting was postponed because so many members were away on vacations.

Henry G. Berning received the first shipment of Golden Glow chrysanthemums last week and they sold quickly.

F. H. Weber says business was good during August. He is expecting a carload of decorative plants for his conservatory at the rear of the store.

Arrangements have been completed for the convention of park superintendents to be held here September 11 to 13. Ernest Strehle, L. P. Jensen and City Forester Julius Koenig have charge of the program, which calls for business sessions at the Planters' hotel and entertainment by the local organization.

The annual chrysanthemum show at the Missouri Botanical Garden will be held at the floral display house early in November.

The Market.

Market conditions remain unchanged, except that roses, which were decidedly scarce last month, are now in greater supply and of much better quality. The demand for all kinds of stock in the better grades has been normally good, increasing as usual toward the end of the week. Japanese lilies are still plentiful, but the arrivals of Easter lilies are light. Tritomas have appeared and, with marigolds, are much sought for windows. Early mums, although reported in neighboring markets, have not been offered here as yet. Now that the late asters are declining rapidly, an interval with a pronounced scarcity of the commoner flowers is in sight. Advance orders for southern smilax and other greens for store openings are being booked, and are sufficiently substantial to indicate that little, if any, curtailment will be made this fall in the amounts annually expended for this and similar purposes.

Reports from the leading retailers all point to a satisfactory, in some instances a greatly increased, August business. Inability to obtain the choicer flowers, such as orchids, valley, and, at times, white roses, in sufficient quantity, was cited as a factor in the limiting of business, where under fairer conditions a greater volume could have been done.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyckoff, of the Wyckoff Floral Co., Chagrin Falls, O., are spending their vacation in Michigan, and during their absence Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Darnell are looking after the business.

V. C. Stonebrook, of New Philadelphia, O., visited the wholesale market September 3. His firm has just completed the erection of a greenhouse, of Moninger material, to be devoted chiefly to the growing of plants for the retail trade.

W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, spent August 31 and September 1 here, calling on relatives.

Among business callers last week were D. R. White, of Sandusky, and Homer D. Hunt, of Mansfield, the former spending a day among Painesville growers.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The lecture at the meeting of the Newport Garden Club last week was by Robert Pyle, on "The Rose Gardens of the Pacific Coast." Mr. Pyle also described the gardens near Paris, illustrating his lecture by colored views. The receipts of the meeting will go to the Newport chapter of the American Red Cross Society.

Word was received here a few days ago that Benjamin Cull, formerly of this

PEPPERS FOR CHRISTMAS.

I would like to know how peppers should be grown in the greenhouse in order to have them for Christmas and after. When should the seed be sown, what is the best variety to grow and what kind of soil is best to use?

J. R. K.—Mich.

The celestial pepper is grown to some extent for Christmas and meets with a fair sale. Seeds should be sown about the end of March, the seedlings transplanted into flats and later potted off.
Successive pottings are needed and the plants are best if fruited in 6-inch or 7-inch pots. After they are placed in their fruiting pots plunge them to the brim in an empty coldframe; one where they can root through into some old hotbed manure suits them admirably.
Feed them well when the pots are filled with roots. The coral, green and small red Cayenne peppers also make attractive pot plants. Take them into the greenhouse before frost can damage them and run them moderately warm to hold the foliage well. Use a rich soil consisting of two parts rotted sod and one part dried cow or horse manure, well decayed. C. W.

Bailey's Cyclopedia

—florists' 6-volume library

Bailey's "Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture"—the recognized authority, the best work of its kind, the best for florists, growers and nurserymen—is offered in its new edition. Six volumes of advice—4000 engravings—93 full-page cuts.

Bailey's splendid work now is offered on monthly terms of $3.00 per month, or on a cash basis of $36.00 for the 6-volume set. No florist who is in the game to win can afford to be without a set, even at three times this price.

SURELY

You cannot afford to overlook the New York Market if you are a shipper of flowers.

New York prices are always the best prices and the demand is always good.

You do not need to take our word for it either—just investigate.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

S. F. LEONARD, Chicago, celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary September 4.

CARLETON CHILDS, son of John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., has started to learn the Childs business from the ground up.

WORD comes to the importers, from their Asiatic connections, that bulbs of the Chinese sacred lilies will be one of the scarce items this season. Further import orders are being declined.

A. W. CODD, president of the Success Seed Garden Co., of Spokane, Wash., was a recent visitor in San Francisco, as also was K. B. White, secretary of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE Holland bulb exporters for years have handled French bulbs and now are turning their attention to Japanese lily bulbs as a means of filling in possible losses of business due to war in Europe.

THE New York Produce Exchange has named the following as a committee on seeds to serve for one year: William Jacot, Marshall H. Duryea, Ernst Wehncke, O. W. F. Randolph and Charles Wimmer.

THE supply of bulbs from Japan, and their cost, will be influenced by the ability to secure shipping space. Japan's export trade is being restricted by the lack of ships and the fear there is that much worse conditions are in early prospect.

L. H. ARCHIAS, president of the Archias Seed Store Corp., Sedalia, Mo., recently took his three daughters, Helen, Marian and Ruth, for a motor boat trip on the Missouri river. They went from Sedalia to Jefferson City by rail, and by water to Boonville and back to Jefferson City.

A GENERATION hence, the name W. Atlee Burpee will undoubtedly still be prominent in the seed trade. This prediction is caused by the fact that W. Atlee Burpee, the third of the name, arrived at the home of W. Atlee Burpee II, Philadelphia, Pa., August 17. He is a husky youngster, it is said, and both he and his mother are in good health.

DUTCH BULBS HELD UP.

Uncertainty Greater Than Ever.

After it had seemed practically assured that at least a large part of a normal season's supply of Dutch bulbs would arrive early in September, it now is open to question if any part of the 1917 crop will reach the trade in America.

It develops that the steamer announced to have sailed from Rotterdam August 25, with 12,000 cases of bulbs in its cargo, still is in the harbor there, apparently held up by the orders of the Dutch government.

The offices of the Holland-America line in this country, which had announced the sailing, have no information as to why the vessel, supposedly the Waaldyk, did not get away as scheduled, but August 29 an Associated Press cable from The Hague reported that the Netherlands government has placed an embargo on the exportation of bulbs. The steamer agents accepted the report as true and as accounting for the unexplained detention of the loaded ship.

The Holland-America line office in New York August 20 notified certain large importers that a steamer loaded with bulbs had sailed August 18. No further information has been given regarding it, and there is a possibility that one cargo may have got away before the embargo was decided on.

The reason for the embargo is not apparent and no statement is obtainable. The crop is grown, harvested and in the cases; moreover, the large expense of selling has been met and nothing but trouble can come to the Hollanders through failure to export. It is possible the action of the Holland government is the result of a reversal of the decision of the United States to release certain loaded Dutch ships now in American harbors and that it is expected by this method to get pressure put on the United States government to effect an exchange of cargoes. outcome that bulb houses which have not yet mailed their fall catalogues are holding them up.

Any moment may change the situation, but there are those who fear another Nieuw Amsterdam affair with the Waaldyk's cargo of 12,000 cases. Practically all of these were sold f. o. b. the exporter's packing house and are the property of the American buyer. A little delay may mean that the bulbs will heat and spoil, but in any event the exporters probably will stand on their legal rights and ask that their bills be paid.

ARREST ILLINOIS SEEDSMEN.

The Illinois Seed & Nursery Co., of Makanda, Ill., is in the toils of the law, on a charge of using the mails to defraud more than forty of the largest seed houses in the country out of thousands of dollars. J. H. Bradley and his sons, Arthur and Herbert, proprietors of the company, were arrested last week by postal inspectors, and each held under large bond.

The postal authorities say the Bradleys, as officers of the corporation, bought more than $20,000 worth of seeds about the first of the year, on credit, and immediately sold them to wholesalers over the country for cash.

In May, when nearly all the seed had been sold, the postal authorities say, the firm mailed a stereotyped letter to all the creditors, stating business had been bad; that the company was a failure and that it would settle its obligations on a basis of fifteen per cent. They were able, the letter stated, to raise about $3,000, which they would divide among the creditors.

Federal officials say seeds were rapidly increasing in price at the time the sales were made, and that a large profit must have been reaped.

J. H. Bradley was fined by a federal court in 1904 and 1907, when it was alleged he collected money for orders for nursery products, and did not deliver them. The transactions were small, however, and there were indications the irregularities might be the result of an inefficient system of doing business. Following each conviction, the name of the company was changed. The present firm was incorporated in December, 1915. Small purchases were made in 1916, and paid for, thus establishing credit for the concern.

Other names under which the Bradleys have operated seed and nursery concerns are: J. H. Bradley & Sons, Bradley & Bradley, Bradley Bros., Jackson County Nurseries, Stone Fort Nurseries, Illinois Nurseries and Illinois Farms Co.

ITALIAN RED CLOVER SHORT.

Red clover seed is produced in quantities in the departments of Piedmont, Veneto, Emilia, Tuscany, Marches and Umbria. Of these departments, Emilia produces it in the greatest quantities, and the city of Bologna is the chief market and exporting center for this seed in Italy. Exports from that city have amounted to as much as 4,000 tons per year.

In normal years exports from all Italy range between 4,400 and 5,500 short tons. The seed comes upon the market the latter half of August, and it is still too early to judge its quality. According to information received from one of the greatest exporters in Italy, the 1917 crop will be extremely short, partly because of the dry weather, but more because the demand for forage led to cutting of the crop before the seed was ripe. The maximum amount available for export will not exceed 1,100 short tons. Warehouses are empty of old seed, but no prices for the new crop are quoted or will be until the seed comes to hand. Exports of seed are prohibited unless a special permit for export can be obtained from Rome. A tax of two per cent ad valorem is imposed when such permits are granted.

WILL OFFER PROTECTION.

In a circular concerning "The Agricultural Program for the Period Beginning with the Autumn of 1917" the Secretary of Agriculture has considerable to say about the farm and field seed situation and concludes: "The importation of seed from abroad is a factor which can not be estimated definitely at this time. The present high prices have stimulated importations of cheaper and, in some cases, inferior seed. The department will consider this matter carefully and the farmers will be informed fully with regard to the value of imported seed offered to them as stock for seeding, in comparison with the value of domestic-grown stocks."

LILIES A SECOND SEASON.

Will you please tell me whether Lilium giganteum and L. multiflorum will bloom a second season if planted outside? How deep should they be planted? J. A. S.—Ill.

Lilium longiflorum giganteum, if planted outdoors before the middle of November, will prove hardy and bloom early the following summer. The bulbs should be covered to a depth of eight or nine inches for best results and some sharp sand should be placed below and above them. These bulbs will flower well the first season, but only indifferently the second year. Multiflorum does not prove quite so reliable outdoors. Bulbs of any of the longiflorums, if planted out after flowering, will give a moderate second crop of flowers, usually one to three flowers per stalk. Give the bed in which they are planted a winter mulch of straw, hay or leaves. C. W.

INSECTICIDE FOR MEALY BUG.

Please inform me how to kill mealy bugs on Begonia Cinnamini and Nephrolepis bostoniensis. A. C.—Utah.

Begonias as a rule do not stand up well under treatment with insecticides, as they are likely to lose some foliage through the use of an insecticide strong enough to kill mealy bug. Careful syringing with a good force of clear water, given in the form of a fine spray and persisted in for a time, will overcome this trouble.

The Boston ferns may be sprayed with one of the nicotine solutions or tobacco extracts, used in accordance with the directions of the manufacturers. If this treatment is given each week for several weeks, the plants will be cleaned. W. H. T.

BURPEE'S SWEET PEAS

NEW EARLY OR WINTER-FLOWERING SPENCERS.

With a keen appreciation of the splendid future of the Sweet Pea, and particularly of New Early Winter-flowering or Long Season Spencers, we began crossing the Spencer-flowering Sweet Peas with the Early or Winter-flowering Grandiflora as far back as the summer of 1909. Later we have been using that magnificent Australian variety, "Yarrowa," to a great extent in our crosses.

We now offer with the greatest confidence the splendid novelties listed below. These are all true, thoroughly fixed in type and are a great improvement on the various colors.

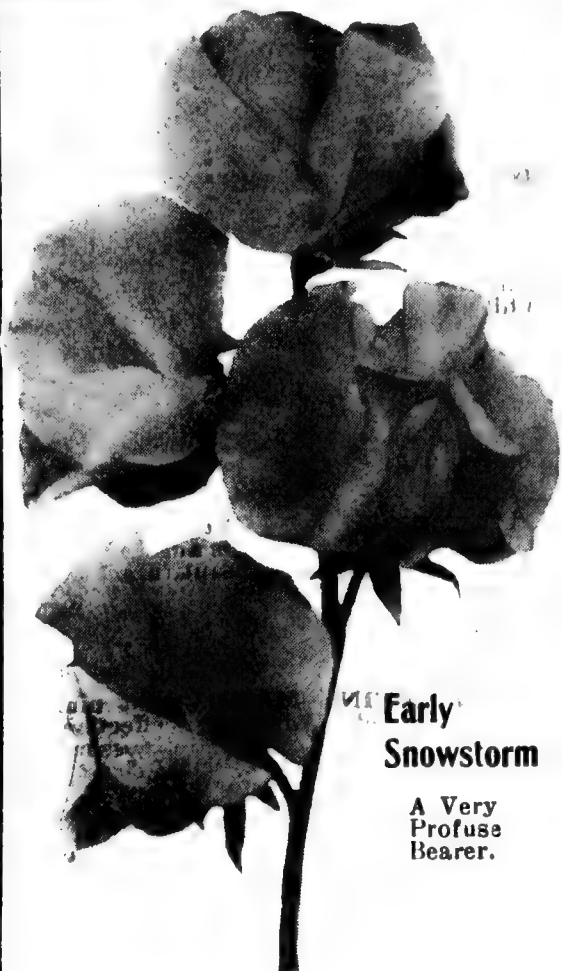

From sowing made under glass in August they may be flowered in time for Thanksgiving. September sowing will produce the finest of flowers by Christmas. If grown in the open they flower several weeks ahead of the Standard or Summer-flowering Spencers, and with proper treatment continue to bloom quite as long as that type.

Nine of these varieties were awarded nineteen Certificates of Merit by the following:

Bearer.

Burpee's Early Snowstorm A truly magnificent pure white variety; the best of the white-seeded Early-flowering Spencers yet introduced. Flowers of great size and substance, beautifully waved, borne in great profusion. Snowstorm is an appropriate name, as the plants become a perfect mass of snow-white flowers. Pkt. (12 seeds), 25 cts., less $\frac{1}{3}$.

Burpee's Early Enchantress Flowers immense in size, measuring two and one-half inches in diameter; exquisitely waved or frilled; stiff stems. Color most attractive and pleasing. A bright rose-pink, becoming deeper toward the edges of standard and wings, gradually softening in tone toward the center of the flower. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75 cts.; oz., \$1.25; lb., \$12.50.

Burpee's Early King A glowing, rich, bright crimson. Flowers are of great size, perfect form, averaging fully two inches in diameter, and are produced freely in threes and fours on strong stems of great length. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75 cts.; oz., \$1.25; lb., \$12.50.

Fordhook Pink and White The most popular color in early-flowering Sweet Peas. Similar to the old Blanche Ferry, having a bright rosy pink standard with creamy white wings, lightly suffused rose. Flowers often measure fully two and one-half inches in diameter, while the form is perfect. It is an especially early, free and continuous bloomer. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75 cts.; oz., \$1.25; lb., \$12.50.

Fordhook Pink A distinct shade of pink, suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers of large size, exquisitely waved, and usually produced in threes and fours on long stems. Particularly pleasing under artificial light. Flowers early and is a most continuous and free bloomer. Oz., 85 cts.; lb., $3.50.

Burpee's Early Pink Beauty Soft rose-pink on white ground, richer toward the edges, gradually softening in color as it reaches the center of standard and wings. The flowers are of great size, beautifully waved and finely placed on the immense stems, which usually carry three or four of the magnificent blooms. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 85 cts.; oz., \$1.50; lb., \$15.00.

Yarrowa We first exhibited this novelty at the great International Flower Show in New York, March, 1914, where we were awarded a Certificate of Merit by the American Sweet Pea Society. Seed sown in early October at Fordhook Farms, the plants come into bloom December 20, and bloom profusely until May. Flowers are exquisitely waved, and when well grown average two and one-half inches in diameter; many of them duplex or double. They are usually produced in fours on extra long, strong stems. Bright rose-pink, with a clear, creamy base. Floradale-grown seed exclusively. Oz., 80 cts.; lb., $3.00.

Burpee's Early Lavender King A first-class rich, true deep lavender throughout; flowers of large size, beautiful, true-waved form and borne in threes and fours on stems of great length. Pkt. (20 seeds), 25 cts., less $\frac{1}{3}$.

Burpee's Early Sweet Briar A most distinct and charming variety. Flowers are of good size with great substance, usually in threes and fours; lovely shade of pink throughout, with soft salmon or amber suffusion, this being more accentuated in the younger flowers and buds. A very strong grower and most floriferous. Pkt. (20 seeds), 25 cts., less $\frac{1}{3}$.

Burpee's Early Loveliness For dainty and delicate color effect, especially when bunched, this novelty stands head and shoulders above any variety we have seen. The color is white, the entire flower being suffused soft pink until it reaches the edges, which are distinctly picoteed with rose-pink. Immense size and great substance, beautifully waved and usually produced three or four on the longest stout stems. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75 cts.; oz., \$1.25; lb., \$12.50.

W. Atlee Burpee & Company have long been famous as American headquarters for Sweet Peas, and in addition to the Early or Winter-flowering Novelties listed above, we are in a position to supply a wonderful list of Standard or Summer-flowering Spencers.

We were the first to introduce the Spencer type into America, and such famous varieties as King White, Flery Cross, Primrose Spencer, Apple Blossom, King Edward Spencer and many others. All our introductions serve to justify our claims, and each year many new varieties are tried out, but only those which prove themselves of exceptional value are offered to our customers.

Burpee's Primrose Beauty An attractive shade of deep primrose, flushed with rose. Flowers of great size, splendid substance and beautifully waved in true Spencer form, on stems of great length. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 85 cts.; oz., \$1.50; lb., \$15.00.

Fordhook Rose This lovely variety is a charming shade of rosy carmine. The flowers are of largest size and usually borne in threes and fours on long, stiff stems. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75 cts.; oz., \$1.25; lb., \$12.50.

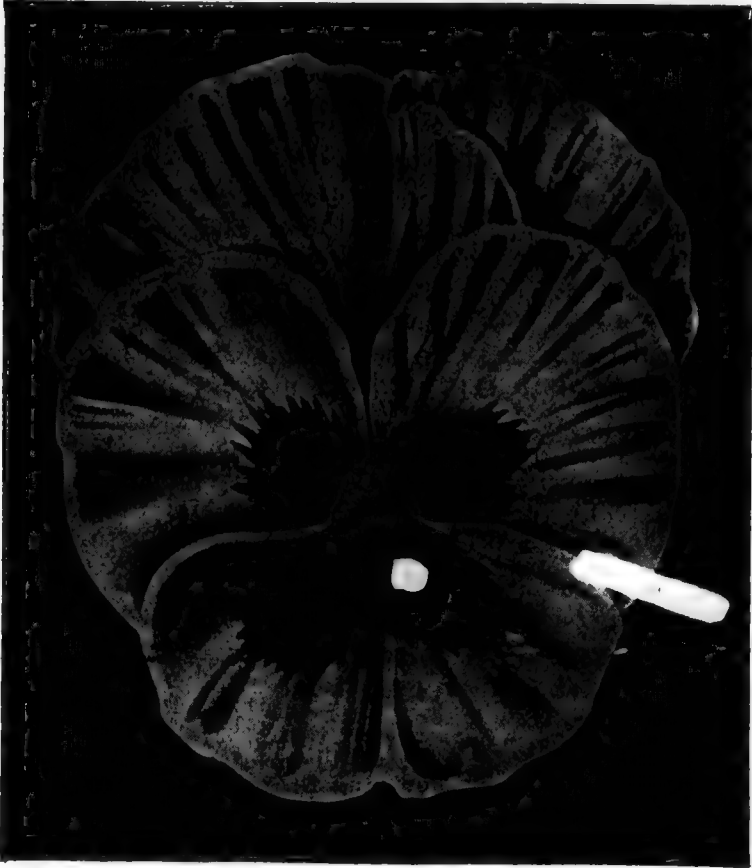

Burpee's Rosy Morn A magnificent flower of great size and substance. Flowers grown under ordinary field culture have measured fully two inches in diameter. The color is a pleasing shade of rose, with crimson-scarlet standard, while the immense flowers are usually borne in threes or fours on stiff, long stems. Oz., 85 cts.; lb., $3.50.

Burpee's Early Sankey This truly magnificent white was awarded a special Silver Medal when exhibited at the great International Show in New York, March 20, 1915; also Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915. Black seeded. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 85 cts.; oz., \$1.50; lb., \$15.00.

ONION SETS SPROUT TOO SOON.

Our onion sets seem to draw moisture and then start to grow before planting time. How can we prevent this?

K. G.—Kan.

Keep the onion sets in a cold, dry cellar. If they can be spread thinly over a fine-mesh wire and turned over occasionally, they will be less inclined to sprout.

STORAGE OF HORSE-RADISH.

I have a large quantity of young horse-radish roots to dispose of this fall or next spring, and would like to know how to handle them. Shall I dig them this fall and pack them away for the winter? If so, how should they be packed? Should they be disposed of this fall or left in the ground until spring? We prefer to dig them in the fall, as we are too busy in the spring, which is more or less late here.

A. J. L.—Minn.

Dig the horse-radish roots this fall and pack them in damp sand in a frost-proof cellar over winter. This will keep them plump. Spring is too busy a season to do what can be as well done now.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Oakland, Cal.—C. C. Morse & Co. have secured some novel designs in pottery suitable for hyacinth bulbs, and expect to put them on the market. They were designed by Joseph Kroc, a local sculptor.

CAUSES OF YELLOW PLUMOSUS.

What would cause Asparagus plumosus to shed its foliage? We have grown plumosus successfully under lath for four years, planting a batch every year. This year, however, the sprays turn yellow and drop off, both from the young and old plants. The soil is a heavy, sandy loam, and was well enriched with stable manure. We have tried different kinds of chemical fertilizers as a possible remedy, but without success. Do you think there is something lacking in the soil that the plants need? P. B.—Cal.

The probabilities are that either one of two causes is at the bottom of this trouble with Asparagus plumosus.

The first possibility is that the plants were given too much water before they became established in the new soil, and by this means the soil was soured. If this did not occur, I would investigate the water supply, to find out whether chloride of lime or alum was used in filtering the water. If you have a private water supply, have a specimen analyzed.

The use of chemical fertilizers after the plants were in such a condition would be worse than useless.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The arrival of the early mums this week gave a little more variety to the stock. Unfortunately, a good many of the earlier flowers arrived soft and not fit for long-distance shipping, but a few from some of the growers were good and doubtless will improve every day in quality. Golden Glow and a few Monrovia were among the earlier cuttings, and of the two Monrovia was the better in most cases. Heavy dews and sea fogs have softened much of the outdoor stock, especially from the lower lying locations.

Greenhouse carnations are still on the scarce side. Roses from indoors are improving a little, but are not yet first-class. The short flowers from young stock are good in color, but have little stamina. Rubrum lilies are still coming in finely and meet with a good demand. Asters are good. Field carnations are fair and there is an abundance of small outdoor flowers.

A good deal of the call last week was for funeral work; in fact, funeral orders formed the bulk of the business. Many of the regular patrons of the flower stores are still at the beaches or in the mountains, and the same applies to the shipping to the warmer sections. There are no pot plants worth mentioning. All classes of greens are plentiful, but the demand is increasing.

Various Notes.

Albert Goldenson, manager of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's store, has returned from a vacation spent at Catalina island. He reports a good time and says the fishing was fine.

By a mistake, the writer mentioned "Clarence Purdy" as the purchaser of the Freeman business on Fourth street. This should have been Stanley Purdie.

The Broadway Florist continues to do a good funeral business. The store has been altered, the workroom at the rear having been thrown into the other part of the store, by the removal of a partition, thereby providing considerably more room. Frank Nelson has returned and rejoined the force here. He is well known throughout the adjoining territory, owing to his frequent trips over the desert sections with his auto, and should prove a valuable member of the force. H. W. Turner, formerly of Montebello, is another "live wire" recently enlisted here.

S. Murata & Co. have been shipping fine early mums. J. d'Ortignac, of the staff, has been limping around during the last few days on account of an accident, but is staying with it gamely.

Wright's Flower Shop notes a decidedly better tone to business, the good stock being sent in from the greenhouses no doubt accounting for this. Thomas Wright says that he has never had such promising looking stock as this year, the roses now being cut from the young plants of Ophelia being especially good. They are trying out several of the novelties again this season.

Darling's Flower Shop reports a much bigger business than at this time last year. Wallace Boyd has returned from his vacation.

H. Vetter, of Hermosa Beach, reports fine business, especially along the line of funeral work. Mrs. and Miss Vetter both work hard in the business, and they have worked up a good trade in this flourishing place.

The L. A. Floral Co. is shipping fine asters and carnations, and reports trade picking up. J. Morris is now a member of the staff here. Paul Miller is on a vacation.

C. J. Groen has been offered a tempting price for an oil option on his land at Montebello, but it is reported he has turned it down.

The H. N. Gage Co. has put on another delivery automobile, and H. N. says that the business for August has been far ahead of that of last year for the same month. They are bringing in fine late gladioli. The company has given an option on its land at Montebello, and if the sale is effected it may move to the El Monte place.

Siebrecht, Jr., of the House of Flowers, has secured the Lewis Bradbury place at Duarte, where there is a fine range of greenhouses, a lath house and a big section of land, of which Mr. Siebrecht has secured fifty acres. As a start, 2,000 established cattleyas are on their way from the east, and these will later be

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Asters continue to play a leading part in the market. The daily receipts are extremely heavy, but it cannot be said they constitute a glut, as the orders for out-of-town shipment manage to clean up practically all the good stock not utilized locally. Dahlias are not far behind, either in quantity or quality, and it is regretted more and more by shippers of this vicinity that this wonderful flower does not hold up so well as some of its less gorgeous competitors. Locally the demand is good, however, many of the large varieties being used extensively for decorative work. Some of the growers are holding back their finest specimens for the dahlia show, but the market is well supplied at that. Chrysanthemums are in fair supply and the average quality of the daily cut is improving, but the season has not advanced sufficiently as yet for the blooms to be large-sized and hard enough for shipping long distances.

The rose market is in better condition than for several weeks, but the demand for first-class stock still exceeds the supply. A few American Beauties are arriving, after having been off crop for some time. Fine blooms in ample supply are expected in another fortnight. Ophelia shows good quality; also Shawyer and Cecile Brunner. Rubrum lilies are to be seen everywhere, and some complaints are heard that the demand is not up to expectations. Gladioli cease to attract much attention and zinnias have about gone their course for this year. More zinnias were grown for this market this year than ever before, but the flowers were especially fine and the demand kept up with remarkable persistency until well into the season. There is a large cut of amaryllis and it sells well. Violets are improving rapidly and soon will be an important item. Cut cyclamen is beginning to arrive. There is a good call for blooming plants, principally gloxinias, primroses and begonias.

Various Notes.

Albert O. Stein last week had decorations at the Palace hotel for a banquet seating 300 people, and also for the dinner at the Fairmount hotel, which was attended by about fifty people. For a formal opening of a new store on Geary street, Mr. Stein was called upon to supply forty dozen rubrum lilies, and the same week he used twenty-five dozen rubrum lilies in the decoration of the Magnin & Co. windows. Funeral work has been active at the Stein store.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray is well satisfied with business, both at her store on Geary street and her stand in the Clift hotel. She is gradually extending her shipping business and is now sending out many asters.

Frank Claverie is pleased to note that business is picking up nicely on Polk street. Besides a large quantity of funeral work, he is delivering more cut flowers to homes than for some time, and is getting an occasional wedding.

Norman Marcus, who gave up his position at the Albert O. Stein establishment two months ago with the intention of going to France with a base hospital corps, is returning to work, pending further instructions.

She reports a splendid shipping demand for asters and is sending out many early chrysanthemums. At her store on Hyde street business is well up to expectations. Mr. Gootch is calling on the trade in many cities on the trip home.

The California Floral Co. is supplying a good demand for basket arrangements of zinnias, snapdragons and other outdoor flowers. Many combination baskets of flowering plants and ferns are also sold.

Business is brisk, according to Mr. Bertrand.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, reports stock good and business active. He is looking forward to the promised increased supply of orchids in another week or two.

Frank Thatcher, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., notes many sales of cut flowers to young officers in the army. Army weddings are an important item also. While not elaborate as a rule, each one requires more or less flowers. A. J. Rossi is recuperating in southern California.

Emil Stappenbeck, manager of Charles Stappenbeck's store, on Polk street, has returned to duty after a month's vacation. His brother expects to have a fine crop of roses in about a month.

L. J. Capuro, Mark Ebel's right-hand man in Sacramento, Cal., is spending a two weeks' vacation in San Francisco. During his absence his place is being filled by Joseph Poirrette, of this city. S. H. G.

August closed without a trace of rain, which was reflected both in the quality and quantity of stock, and in business. Nearly all outdoor stock has been scorched. Zinnias, gladioli and lilies are still to be had in quantity, and the cut of carnations increases each week. Now that the schools are open, bringing the people back from their vacations, it is expected that business will improve.

Lawrence and Winnipeg Avenues
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The H. L. Olsson Co. was first in the market a week ago with mums. Mr. Olsson had some good Golden Glow mums and had a ready sale for all he could cut.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. is erecting a brick smokestack, which, when completed, will be in the neighborhood of 100 feet high. This extreme height is made necessary by the high hills which almost surround the range.

Adolph Donart has had some especially fine ferns this summer. Among some of the other florists ferns of good quality have been a little scarce. Mr. Donart found an excellent market for 5, 6 and 7-inch fuchsias, and they were as fine as have ever been seen here.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

Business is keeping up fairly well, but there is little novelty in the way of stock. Valley is entirely out of the market and lilies are scarce. Local growers have no roses to offer at present, but from indications there will be a good crop this winter. Designers are handicapped in making up large pieces where lilies come in handy for high effect. Greens are none too plentiful. Gypsophilas are about over, but gladioli are good, with a good demand, Panama being most popular. Asters are plentiful and meet with a good call at from 50 to 75 cents per dozen. Peas are becoming poor and do not keep well. Heavy dews and early morning fogs will soon put them off the market entirely.

New industries are starting up in all sections of the city. Shipbuilding plants are popping up like mushrooms. Where a month ago there was nothing but a vast prairie dotted with shrub oaks there now is a city.

Various Notes.

A. J. Burt, of Spokane, was a recent visitor, calling on old friends in Tacoma. He was on his way from San Francisco to Spokane. Mr. Burt is optimistic as to the flower business on the Pacific coast and predicts a great increase in business from now on.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Donart, of Spokane, were also visitors to our city, as well as to Seattle, where Mr. Donart formerly lived.

CHERRIES AND PEPPERS.

Please advise me how to handle cherries and peppers. I grew a nice batch and have them in 3-inch pots. The cherries I have plunged in a cold-frame, and the peppers are in a house. Both are setting fruit. Is it too early to let them do so? If so, tell me when to let them set fruit and what size of pots to carry them in. C. R.—O.

Both peppers and cherries, if in pots, will do better plunged in a coldframe for some time yet. The fruit should all be set now and some of it should be about fully grown. Place shades over the plants if cold nights threaten. The peppers are more tender than the cherries and should go under glass about September 20. Give plenty of water and liquid manure once in four or five days, if the pots are full of roots. C. W.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-president, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia..

It seems that Pæonia festiva maxima is falling from the good graces of certain growers, who have chalked against it many seasons of poor bloom. The spring of 1917 was one of its off years.

THE Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., is preparing to distribute in the trade stock of a new dwarf type of Berberis Thunbergii which is to be known as the box barberry. Confidence is felt that it will be found a universally useful novelty.

FRENCH EMBARGO ANNOUNCED.

Under date of August 25, the American consul general at Paris sent the following cablegram:

"Decree of August 24, published today, prohibits after August 25 exportation and reexportation of trees, shrubbery, and all other nursery products. Usual exceptions are made for allied and American countries."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

J. F. Rosenfield Peony Gardens, Omaha, Neb.—A 16-page descriptive catalogue of peonies, with two illustrations reproduced from photographs of the peony fields. The stock is arranged in groups according to the prices and the degree of choiceness or rareness. About half a dozen of the varieties were originated by Mr. Rosenfield, who "grows peonies and nothing else." Enclosed is a pink slip on which are offered several "special peony collections for 1917."

A. Dietzsch Co., Chicago, Ill.—"Greenhouse Builders' Reference Book," a neat, systematically arranged, well-illustrated 64-page catalogue of greenhouse materials, with a statement of the approximate cost of greenhouses of many sizes and various styles of construction. These estimates are based on the prices in effect last May, and "subject to change without notice." The pictures and descriptive matter are such as to convey a clear idea of the details of erection and equipment. Pipe fittings, hotbed sashes, paints and other supplies are included in the lists. Accompanying the catalogue is a "question sheet" for the use of prospective builders.

William Elliott & Sons, New York, N. Y.—An 8-page illustrated catalogue of bulbs and roots for fall planting, "for the trade only." "Notwithstanding the state of affairs in Europe," says the company, "we hope to receive in due season our annual supply of bulbs and roots, but wish to call attention to the rule that all orders are booked subject to crop failure or other causes beyond our control."

Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.—Autumn catalogue of bulbs, seeds, roots, plants for the house and conservatory, palms and other decoratives, hardy roses, perennials, shrubs and general nursery stock; a compact but clearly printed, well illustrated book of eighty pages, in a tasteful cover. About thirty-five pages are occupied by the hard-wooded nursery stock, which comprises fruit and nut trees as well as ornamentals.

Heatherhome Seed & Nursery Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.—"Seeds, Plants and Bulbs for Fall Planting," a 32-page catalogue, printed with blue ink on cream-tinted paper, in the plain but effective style adopted years ago by this company, known until recently as the Knight & Struck Co. The only illustration in the booklet is a picture of some artistic flower bowls, intended for the growing of bulbs with "Heatherhome prepared fiber" as the potting material. Hardy heather is listed as the "main specialty." Among the miscellaneous items offered are insecticides, plant foods, orchid peat, raffia, bamboo stakes and other supplies.

perience the dreadful slackness that has prevailed in years previous. Rather heavy funeral work, as well as a number of weddings, made business more active. Counter trade has not been brisk, but with the opening of schools and the return of vacationists a busier time is expected. It is evident that the demand for flowers is steadily growing.

Roses are plentiful, except in whites. The quality is improving and good, clean stock is seen. Ophelia, Ward, Kaiserin, Maryland, Shawyer and Hearst are among the best sellers. There is not a good demand for American Beauties. Sweetheart roses are extremely plentiful and drag somewhat. There is a large supply of gladioli of all varieties and the market is overstocked. The supply of asters is increasing, but there is a noticeable shortage of the fine grades. The season has not been any too good for this particular flower. Good flowers, however, bring good prices.

Easter lilies are plentiful and move steadily. Buddleias, scabiosas, coreopsis, bachelor's buttons and celosias arrive in fair quantities. The supply of carnations is almost nothing. Pompons are good and move well. Rubrum and auratum lilies sell, but not easily. Boston ferns, palms and rubber plants have sold well during the week. Galax, magnolias and asparagus are in good supply and fill the demands well.

Various Notes.

George B. Hart has received a large shipment of Boston ferns and palms of unusual quality.

was gotten out by the force of the H. E. Wilson store September 1. This concern has received a large shipment of bowls and dishes in "artware" and has a fine display of them in the outside window case.

Jacob Thomann & Sons say business with them is picking up, after several months of quiet, although outdoor work kept them busy.

A. Collatos, of the Aster Candy Store, had a pretty display last week which consisted of salmon-pink gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums in gilded baskets.

James Vick's Sons are busily occupied at their trial grounds at Ogden, N. Y. They report that conditions have greatly improved and that the seed harvest is well under way. The late asters are doing well and present a wonderful appearance. Extensive displays will be made at the Rochester exposition and Syracuse fair.

A new store known as the Boston Flower Shop was opened September 1, opposite the N. Y. C. station. The store is of fair size, has a splendid lighting system, two good windows, etc. It is under the management of Nick Collatos and G. Carioty.

Harry Merritt, of Irondequoit, is growing fine asters, for which he finds a ready sale.

Miss Bergin, of the H. P. Neun store, has returned from a vacation spent in Buffalo. Mr. Neun is growing good gladioli, asters and calendulas.

George Pantos was obliged to be away from his stand on Clinton avenue on account of a heavy cold and fever.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

It was an extremely dull week in the florists' business, but many seemed to expect it and were even a little glad of the let-up, which provided an interim for rest before the start of the fall rush.

There is an abundance of good stock in the market, with prices ranging about the same as last year. The only complaint I heard was on the scarcity of valley; Mr. McKissick, of the Leo Niessen Co., told me that in some cases it was impossible to get valley at all. This establishment was fortunate in having a supply of really fine orchids all summer that helped them out on the valley question. There has never been a summer when so much valley was used.

I have never seen the advance guard of dahlias as fine as they are this year, and, from the daily receipts and the dull season we are now passing through, it looks as though there would be a glut before long. Gladioli have been good this year, and at the S. S. Pennock Co. place they seem to me unlimited, but J. J. Perry, who is an old hand in handling stock in an emergency, seems to keep them cleaned up rather well.

Various Notes.

I called at Robert L. Graham's up-town store the other day and was surprised to find everyone as busy as could be. Robert, Jr., was in charge, and I thought it was a large funeral order that had everyone so busy in the work-room. I asked him the reason for it, and he invited me back to see. This store uses a large quantity of immortelles at Christmas, and the workers were finishing up their stock of designs for this holiday. I had never before seen wreaths made up so far in advance, but Robert told me that they kept well when wrapped in paper, and that getting them out of the way during these dull days was better than working nights in December. There will be dull days in September, and this might be a tip for some of the florists who put this work off until the last thing.

Another good way to keep oneself and help employed during these dull days is to go over the order books for last Christmas and make up a list of the regular customers and their orders for last year, then get these ready now, to send out the first week in December with a letter explaining that it is the customer's order for last year and that it is sent as a guide for the customer in making up his order for this year. If you will stop to think you will remember many who would come in from time to time to add to their order something that had been overlooked, in some cases after you were sold out and they could not get what they wanted. In this way you will get the complete order early and it will be a good guide for you in handling your stock. I might add here that the wholesale house might find this a big help for the holidays, as some of them tried it out last winter and it proved a big success to the wholesaler and retailer alike. In any case, it makes the customer realize that you are on the job.

In a recent issue of The Review I noticed an item that started me thinking. A. H. Hews & Co., the pot manufacturers, say they are not going to manufacture azalea pans this season,

New Gloriously Red Pepper CHRISTMAS JOY

(Hybrid of large Christmas Pepper and Bird's Eye)

With its lasting qualities and fruit extending above foliage it is far superior to the parent varieties. An excellent substitute for the scarce Ardisia.

and are thinking seriously of not making any bulb pans, on account of the uncertainty of either item coming from Europe this year in any amount. This business of no imports will not be the calamity it would seem at first thought, but it will be up to the growers to supply something to take the place of the imported stock. There are many blooming plants that can take the place of the azaleas, and the American growers can be depended upon to have something just as good as azaleas. As for imported bulbous stock, we all know that at times during the winter there is a glut of bulbous stock in the market that materially reduces the price of other flowers; so if no Dutch bulbs were to come, I do not know but what it would be a good thing for the trade. There will have to be something to take their place—the ingenuity of the growers can be depended upon.

I believe that the florists' business is going to be different this winter, both in the matter of stock handled and the customers dealt with. There will be people buying flowers this winter who never bought them before, and it is a chance for everyone in the retail business to make new customers. The man who was earning $2,500 a year before this war started in many cases has had his earning capacity doubled. The same might be said of the earnings of small manufacturers. Factories that could hardly exist before the war now are running night and day. These people will all have money to spend and the florist is going to get his share of it.

Tate.

Joliet, Ill.—The Chicago Carnation Co., a new corporation, has bought the retail establishment of Mrs. A. C. Rott, and has leased the greenhouses of the old Chicago Carnation Co. Those interested in the new company are William Kellsner, P. W. Peterson and Miss Bessie Wunderlich, all formerly with the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., and William Heggie and Dr. M. W. Cushing, both of Joliet. The new company, which is under the management of Mr. Peterson, will grow carnations and cuttings for the trade, and will devote one or two of its houses to pot plants for its retail store at 407 East Jefferson street.

Dreer Specials in Ferns

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosum

The Glory Fern (Ruhm von Mordrecht)

This splendid Fern, which so closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense in appearance and which does not require the special skill and care in growing that is necessary to produce good plants of A. Farleyense, has quickly made a place for itself not only on account of the fact that it can be produced for little over half that of growing Farleyense, but also because either in a cut state or as plants used in decorative work, it will outlast the old variety ten to one, making it an available subject where Farleyense cannot be used at all. Since its introduction some five or six years ago there has never been a supply large enough to meet the demand.

We have this season prepared an extra large stock and we offer

2 1/4-inch pots.....	$1.50 per doz.;	$10.00 per 100
3-inch pots.....	2.00 per doz.;	15.00 per 100
4-inch pots.....	3.50 per doz.;	25.00 per 100
5-inch pots.....	9.00 per doz.;	75.00 per 100

Asplenium Nidus Avis

Bird's Nest Fern

A splendid healthy lot of 2 1/4-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; fine 3-inch pots, $2.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

CYRTOMIUM ROCHFORDIANUM COMPACTUM

ASPLENIUM NIDUS AVIS (Bird's Nest Fern)

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum Compactum

Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

A splendid compact growing form of Cyrtomium Rochfordianum which originated with us. A variety which is meeting with universal favor. It is valuable either as a small plant or for growing on into specimens. We offer a fine stock.

2 1/4-inch pots.....	$6.00 per 100;	$50.00 per 1000
3-inch pots.....	1.25 per doz.;	10.00 per 100
4-inch pots.....	2.50 per doz.;	20.00 per 100

We also offer seedlings in flats, about 200 plants to a flat, at $3.00 per flat.

Pteris Rivertoniana

Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

This is one of the most distinct and desirable of the many crested forms of Pteris now grown.

2 1/4-inch pots, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Pteris Childsi

This beautiful variety is to Pteris what Farleyense is to Adiantums, and like that variety produces no spore, so that propagation is by the rather slow method of division, which will keep it a rare variety. The plant is of strong growth, attaining a height of about 20 inches; fronds large, pinnae deeply dentated and undulated; tips crested. Makes a beautiful specimen for exhibition.

Fine plants, 5-inch pots, 75c each.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business remains about the same as last reported, with funeral work, as usual, keeping the average total satisfactory. Cut stock has improved in quality and increased in supply, with gladioli by far the most conspicuous item of all. The spikes are at their best, with the prices fair. Asters are more plentiful and of better quality. Rose receipts are large for this time of the year, but the demand is not heavy.

Various Notes.

Adolph Mohr has acquired a new delivery truck.

Henry Kusik had a little excitement last week when his car was stolen from in front of his store, but recovered near Olathe, Kan.

W. J. Barnes had a banner week in funeral work.

T. J. Noll reports that his supply department is in a state of great activity at present. A large consignment of supplies is expected in a few days.

W. J. B.

Washington, D. C.—W. F. Gude says the florists in other cities can get a fair idea of the condition of business and of the difficulty of getting help by considering the fact that since war was declared the government has added 17,000 persons to the list of employees in local departments.

Bartlesville, Kan.—J. C. Steinhauser, who owns the Steinhauser flower stores and greenhouse establishments in Pittsburg, Kan., and Bartlesville, has purchased the property here that he leased several years ago, and will put up two new greenhouses, 27x100 and 27x55 feet. He also will put up a 1,000-barrel tank. When this is finished, Mr. Steinhauser will erect a house 25x200 feet at Pittsburg, and repair the damage recently done to his boiler house there by a storm.

The Market.

Business is unusually good. Gladioli and dahlias are satisfactory and are finding a ready market. Asters are not so good this year on account of the extremely dry weather. Snapdragons, centaureas, Golden Glow and nearly all of the other outdoor flowers are in good demand. Roses are fair and clear every day.

Various Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., are spending a week here with Mr. Kerr's father. They are on their way home from the S. A. F. convention.

The closing week of our three summer theaters called for many artistic baskets and bouquets. An especially fine one was a large basket of American Beauties made by the Park Floral Co.

Herbert Clausen says that business is unusually good at the American Flower Shop.

Mr. Robbins, Jr., of Robbins & Son, Loveland, Colo., was among the visitors last week. R. S.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Asters arrived in larger quantities last week. The flowers were of better quality and a greater number of varieties were shown. Hydrangeas are plentiful; so are gladioli. Roses are in fair supply, but are not of good quality. Tritomas and other flowers help make a variety, although there is no great choice at present.

Various Notes.

George Penek had a number of parrots in a recent window display at his Broad street store.

Hutchinson's Broad street store in Elizabeth is again open, after being closed during the month of August.

Fred Wolfinger, of Broad street, has redecorated his store preparatory to the opening of the fall season. R. B. M.

Canton, O.—Leo Heitger has sold his flower store at 10 Park Row to the Brown Floral Co., which took charge of the place August 21.

Mattoon, Ill.—A. D. King, whose establishment was wiped out by the cyclone last spring, is rebuilding five houses, using material supplied by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago.

The Market.

Business continues to be quiet and stock somewhat poor in quality. There is no trouble in disposing of all good stock, however, as there is a scarcity of it. A good many of the roses arrive in an open condition.

Beauties are in good demand and bring good prices, selling wholesale at $2.50 to $3 for specials. Russell is plentiful and sells well. Short-stemmed Killarneys, Wards and Ophelias are in over-supply. Gladioli and asters also are a glut, the best selling readily and the short stems and poorer grades piling up. Valley has been scarce. Orchids are not much in demand, only small varieties being received. Lilies, the few to be had, are not in much demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

One would have to go a long way to see better pot plants than those of Joseph Streit. There is no empty bench in his houses.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses, 20x300 feet, of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These had been in bloom constantly since November.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy art paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

SAVE COAL NOW THE CRY.

Every manager of a greenhouse establishment, in which coal is a prime necessity, will see the trade's great interest in a campaign for fuel economy, the first gun of which was fired last week by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, coöperating with the Council of National Defense. Heretofore, the committee declares, the man who used more coal than he needed might feel that he caused no loss except to his own bank account. Few were influenced by thought of conserving the world's supply of coal. Today coal is a sinew of war, is the conclusion, and he who unnecessarily reduces the country's available stock of coal may curtail the nation's energy in the great conflict. In the great concentration of national energy toward prosecuting the war, men are not available to open new coal mines to meet extravagant needs. Transportation facilities are burdened to the limit of capacity. These and other factors establish a definite limit to the amount of coal which can be made available for use during the war.

Another important phase of the situation comes from the control of coal prices by the government. An effect of such price regulation may be reduction in output.

"Opposed to these limitations on the available supply of coal is the greatest demand for coal ever known," the committee continues. "The railroads are requiring more coal than ever before. The war and its stimulation of industry has called upon our factories for an output beyond all previous peak loads. Our allies depend upon us for coal. Good use can be made of all available coal."

"Under these circumstances all business men are called upon to give thought to avoiding the waste of coal. Let every man consider how his coal requirements can be reduced. Let all organizations of business men engage in a vigorous effort to promote the discussion of wasteful methods in coal consumption and the adoption in all boiler plants of those stoking methods which produce power without waste of coal."

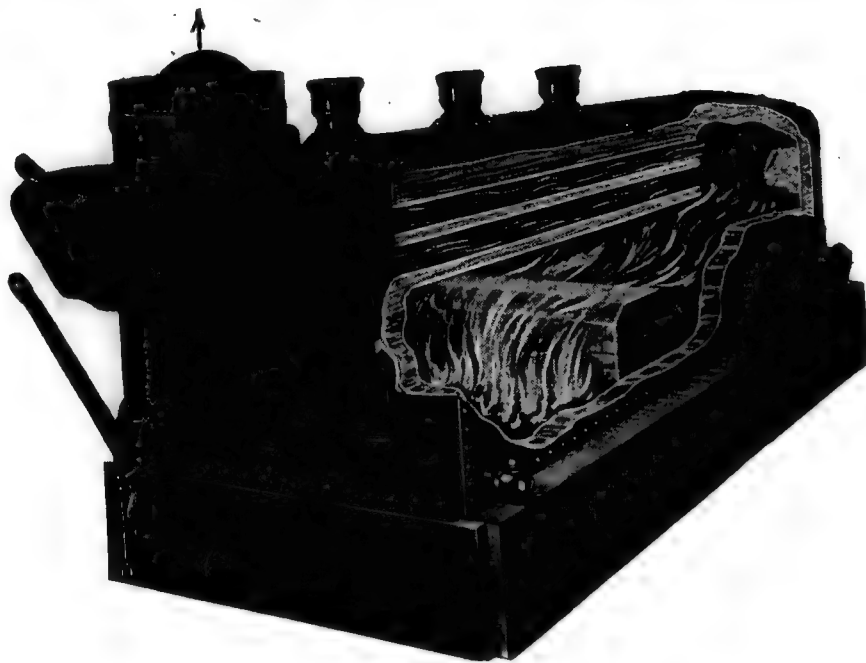

Public obligation and selfish interest combine to make this the time for business men to undertake the long delayed concerted effort to improve boiler house practice, the Bulletin says. "No man today can say whose requirements may remain unsatisfied if the available supply of coal is distributed without meeting all requirements."

The Bureau of Mines has made a study for years of stoking methods. Elaborate investigations and experiments have been conducted and the results of what has been done are available to every user of coal. The director of the Bureau of Mines desires that users of coal call upon this division of the government for advice and assistance.

In this connection it may be said that the Bureau of Mines has analyzed samples of coal from all sections of the United States and is prepared to give information regarding the best uses to be made of different kinds and grades of coal. Detailed experiment and investigation enable the bureau to give effective assistance in bringing about improved stoking methods. Their tests and the experiences of users of coal demonstrate that an amazing saving may be had without change of coal or equipment by merely controlling the fireman and his methods of putting coal under the boiler.

The executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is forming a special committee to act as a clearing house of efforts to reduce the unnecessary consumption of coal.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds is in limited supply. Lilies continue on the short side, but are in active demand. The season for gladioli is drawing to an end; the flowers show this by their inferiority. Snapdragons have been most satisfactory for this time of year. Roses are not in the least conspicuous. A few carnations find their way to the market, but as yet they are not in quantity. Cosmos and physostegias are valuable additions, and statice continues to be popular in bouquets, baskets and funeral pieces. Buddleias, phloxes and cut hydrangea blooms are largely utilized in funeral work.

A few rarely fine asters are available, but they are by no means ample. Dahlias have put in their appearance, but the crop is not promising. Ferns have begun to be in good favor again, and they will soon be in greater demand. In another week the schools will be opened, and there will be several hundred schoolrooms to be made as attractive as possible.

The Market.

September opened auspiciously, with a number of large wedding orders booked and two important funerals. These caused the removal of a considerable quantity of stock, in which lilies, hydrangeas and gladioli were the best sellers. Roses, also, had a good call for funeral work, but they have had such short stems that they have been suitable only for set pieces. Asters are of exceptionally fine quality and are used extensively in funeral sprays. Crego is the best variety in the market, and the stock is plentiful. Gladioli are of first-class quality and in good supply. Lilies are available in every seasonable variety. American Beauties are in moderate supply, but the demand is limited. Field-grown carnations do not cut much of a figure.

There are practically no cattleyas and the supply of valley is small. There is a good variety of outdoor flowers, including antirrhinums, calendulas, cosmos, daisies, larkspurs, delphiniums, hardy hydrangeas and zinnias. Sweet peas are out of the market, but there is a fine lot of gypsophilas.

Business during the month of August compared favorably with that of the same month last year. Funeral work has been in almost unceasing demand, and there has been a good demand for flowers for the sick-room and wedding decorations.

Various Notes.

Miss Catherine Vesey, daughter of Judge W. J. Vesey, is playing an important part in "The Knife." Judge and Mrs. Vesey went to Chicago last week to spend a short time with Miss Vesey, who is on her way to California.

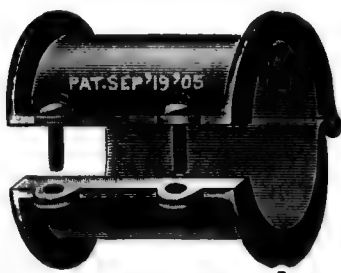

C. S. Ford, representing A. Herrmann, of New York, was a recent visitor to the trade here.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are cutting some fine longiflorum lilies. They have had a good run on funeral work. Carnations are shown in good quantities.

Some excellent asters and gladioli were noted at the Flick Floral Co. store. This concern had a large quantity of work for the funeral of Justin N. Study.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a good business last week. The men are cutting fine Ophelia roses at the greenhouses at Lindenwood.

Paniculata hydrangeas, combined with America gladioli, were featured in a good window display at Edgar Wen-

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The flower display at the Canadian national exhibition in Toronto last week was hardly up to the standard of previous years. A. Sheridan took an easy first prize for the dinner table decoration, and the Dale Estate again captured the $100 prize for an orchid exhibit, the stock reflecting great credit on the grower. New varieties of dahlias proved of more than ordinary interest to the public, but asters and sweet peas were in no way deserving of mention. It seems almost impossible to bring in stock at this season of the year that does justice to the producer. A rock garden artistically designed by the Sheridan Nurseries proved a special attraction in the horticultural section and took a well deserved first.

Work proceeds but slowly in connection with the replanting of greenhouses in this neighborhood and stock remains scarcer than ever before at this time of year. However, the feeling is general that the demand for flowers is going to be heavy during the coming season.

Carnations in the fields have been benefited considerably by the recent rains and are now being brought in in fine condition. Orchids are scarcer than ever this month, although the demand is heavier than usual. Valley is on the way from Denmark and should be here shortly, Providence and the submarines willing. French bulbs have already arrived.

Friends who knew Arthur Maltby will regret to hear that he was killed at the front August 15.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor here last week; also C. W. Main, of Amherst, N. S., and M. Pappas and W. H. Hay, of Montreal. W. G. P.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The cool weather has improved the roses, and carnations will soon be much better. Asters are plentiful and of good quality. Business is fair.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana will hold its October meeting in Evansville, on the last day of the month. The Evansville Florists' Club expects to show the members a good time, and hopes for a large attendance.

Julius Niednagel is not much improved in health.

Waldemar Niednagel's claim for exemption from the draft was not accepted and he must serve in the army.

Karl Zeidler is glazing his new houses. He is cutting a fine lot of roses, and the carnations are doing well. The solid benches for carnations have been raised, as it was found that the plants did better in raised beds.

The recent rains were most welcome to C. E. Gysemans, of the Evansville Nurseries.

Theodore Kuebler's asters were much improved by the recent rains and are producing fine flowers. His shipments to St. Louis are bringing good returns.

Mrs. J. C. Elsperrmann and boys are busy getting the new house in shape, in addition to other work. E. L. F.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24 3/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

The Market.

Business is fair. The supply of stock has diminished greatly, but, taken as a whole, it is sufficient for present needs. The shipping business is fair.

Roses are in fair supply and meet with an excellent market, but at low prices. As soon as the aster season wanes they will be better property. The asters are in heavy supply, but there are many excellent blooms. The receipts of Easter lilies are fair. Rubrum lilies meet with a fair market. Gladiolus offerings are sufficient for present needs, and few dahlias may be had. Wild smilax is having a good sale.

Various Notes.

"If a Concern Rightly Takes Care of its Customers it Will Have the Right Kind of Customers to Take Care of"

SO simple—so plain as day is the above statement that it seems almost needless to mention it.

But it isn't a mention on our part.

It is repeating the words of one of the country's biggest business heads. The reason he is at the head of a big business is mainly because he is a big enough man to see that the biggest thing in a big business is just that right care of his customers.

In like fashion we have always believed that buying a greenhouse of us should not be a horse jockeying deal, where the buyer had to keep his eyes open or have some sort of a spavined or wind-broken proposition put over on him.

To get ahead of our customer never seemed like the right kind of getting ahead to us. Naturally, however, we expect a customer to pay what a thing is worth. Our part is to see to it that it is worth what he pays and more if possible.

In making these statements about our business policy, we are not for a minute endeavoring to make you think we are a set of Sunday school teachers of the goody-goody sort.

Not a bit of it.

Like yourself, we are in business for business.

The fact, however, that the customers do come back to us year after year, makes us think we'd better keep right on doing business in the same old Hitchings dependable way.

And you know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

A Couple of Comments on Ease of Installation

E. H. Sunbury, of Wamesit, Massachusetts, writes the following:

"The Skinner System of Irrigation is the simplest and easiest to install, as well as the most practical I have ever heard of."

This is what Mr. R. Scheffler, of Wheaton, Illinois, writes:

"The Skinner System can be put up by any handy man."

EFFICIENT HOUSES

Our long experience in greenhouse construction enables us to give the best in service, material and workmanship, and the purchaser of ICKES-BRAUN construction can invest without a doubt as to the efficiency of his houses. Each detail is perfected and approved—there is no experimenting with your money.

Our new "LEAK-PROOF" gutter continues to prove its superiority. In a new range of houses recently erected, for which we furnished 11 runs 200 feet long, there was not one single leak noticeable during a downpour which filled the gutter to overflowing. Have you anything similar to show?

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business in general, while not rushing, has kept up well, and seems to compare favorably with that of last year. Funeral work has been playing a good part in the total sales. The outlook for the immediate future is not so bad as conditions would seem to make it.

Roses are coming in plentifully, and the new crop is surely in fine form. The longer stock is moving nicely and the shorter stock is taken up by the trade without much difficulty. There are practically no carnations in the market at this time, and it looks as though the plants for this stock will be particularly scarce. The cut of asters is large, but the supply is moving nicely. The stock is good. Orchids are scarce. The demand is fairly strong, though somewhat erratic, and some orders were turned down. Gladioli are extremely plentiful and move slowly. Bargains seem to be in order and prices in consequence are down.

Valley remains in about the same condition, with a good demand and a small percentage of good flowers. Lilies are plentiful, but the surplus is light. This stock is not bringing the prices it should, but the cut is moved.

Various Notes.

J. E. Matthewson, accompanied by his son Edwin, both of Sheboygan, Wis., visited the city August 28. They made the trip to attend the funeral of a relative.

P. J. Kersten, of Devils Lake, N. D., was in town August 28. Mr. Kersten was making a trip to Chicago, in preparation for next winter's business. During his stay here he visited the Holton & Hunkel Co. range at Brown Deer, Wis. Mr. Phillips, with John Rindfleisch, of Beloit, Wis., was a visitor the same day. He was on his way north for a short stay. H. J. S.

Anaconda, Mont.—John W. Jackson, for seventeen years connected with the State Nursery & Seed Co., Helena, Mont., has purchased the greenhouse range of R. M. Greig. Mr. Greig had been in business here twenty-eight years. He will remove to Oakland, Cal., where his family went recently.

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER with You the WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction, which permits of great strength without the need of heavy, shadow-casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the results of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

PANSIES.

Being a pansy fancier, I have grown for 16 years for pleasure and profit. In 1916 I spent six weeks hunting a place centrally located to grow pansies for the trade. We are located about 1600 ft. up on the north side of a mountain, which gives us long hours of sun. Our dews are like rain. Soil just suits pansies. Makes them short and bushy and we are growing a million and giving our customers the best that money and skill can produce. Our gardens are perfect in every respect. Though it gets 20 degrees below zero at times, we can ship all winter. Our method of sprouting is not known to the trade. It gives strong, healthy, bushy, thrifty plants. I am offering the finest plants that can be had anywhere, of the best strains, and our prices are based on good values. Steele's Giant Private Mastodon in bud and bloom, $5.00 per 1000; Giant, mixed, in bud and bloom, $4.00 per 1000; 6 to 8 at $3.00 per 1000; our Ozark Mammoth strain, large, for greenhouse use, $3.50 per 1000. This strain cannot be beat. Giant Trimardeau, 4 to 8, $2.50 per 1000. Our packing is perfect; light strong crates; can ship anywhere all winter; good service. Let us grow your stock and get quality. Our terms are cash, hence, good service.
Ozark Pansy Gardens, Westplains, Mo.

FEW FLOWERS ON CALENDULAS.

Our calendulas in the garden seem to run entirely to buds and small flowers, and seem to be drying out. We have not been able to give them much water lately, and thought possibly this might be the cause. If we had picked the buds back, would we have had better results? Do you find it pays to give this much attention to them? The flowers seem to have an extraordinary number of buds, but only small flowers with extremely short stems. A. E.—Mo.

Calendulas are of the easiest culture, but, like all other annuals, must have a reasonable amount of moisture at the roots to do their best. Given good soil and plenty of water, no other annuals will give more flowers with a minimum of care. The seeds should not be sown thickly. Calendulas are vigorous growers and need considerable room. Disbudding is often done where these are grown under glass in winter, in order to secure long stems and fancy flowers. C. W.

HOLLYHOCK RUST.

I am sending some hollyhock leaves which are affected with some disease or fungus. I have tried tobacco juice, but it does not have any effect. Any information as to the cause and remedy for this will be gladly received. G. S.—Can.

The leaves are affected with hollyhock rust, Puccinia malvacearum. Once plants are badly attacked, it is best to destroy them by burning and stop growing hollyhocks for a year. The disease can be controlled to a great extent if the plants are sprayed once a week with Bordeaux mixture from the time growth starts in spring until the spikes are well advanced. Try the annual hollyhocks; they are less subject to rust than the perennial type. C. W.

"TANK GRADE" CYPRESS

No other lumber manufactured is subjected to such close inspection and is graded so carefully as Cypress. It is the only variety of wood in which there is such a class as "TANK GRADE." Other woods have Firsts and Seconds, but "TANK GRADE" Cypress represents a choice, handpicked, selected quality—the very cream of Firsts.

For greenhouse construction, those who are accounted reliable among the contractors use none other than "TANK GRADE." Of course they put in "pecky" for standards and benches, but when it comes to sash-bars, sash, hot beds, cold frames, tanks, tubs, plant boxes, etc., it is cypress, "TANK GRADE," from ridge-pole to foundation.

And you will do well to follow the lead and advice of the experienced contractor.

A BOOK, PLEASE

Vol. 3, CYPRESS Pocket Library, tells a lot about greenhouse construction. Vols. 4 and 20 are for the farmer. They contain plans for all outbuildings, and they are absolutely free. There are 42 of these books, and you would better help yourself to them. Get the Carpentry Book, Vol. 36, telling you how to make easy a dozen hard jobs of carpentry. Vol. 37 is the big Silo Book. Both are full of plans for buildings and are handsomely illustrated.

Early Song Bird, pale pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Heather Bell, rich mauve, changing to lavender, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

YARRAWA

The most popular winter-flowering Sweet Pea. Color is beautiful rose-pink with a slight salmon tint. We offer a selected strain of this variety. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 40c; oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$2.25; lb., \$8.00.

Six Splendid Australian Varieties

CONCORD Spencer types

The Concord Varieties of Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas are perhaps the most advanced and finest of all. The colors are distinct, clear and true. They flower earlier than any other type, and the blossoms are of large Spencer form, with long stems. Unfortunately they are shy seeders and, therefore, the seed is scarce and expensive. We are obliged to offer in packets only this year.

Prices, any of the following:

Pkt. (50 seeds), 40c; 5 pkts., $1.75.

Concord Pink, beautiful delicate pink.

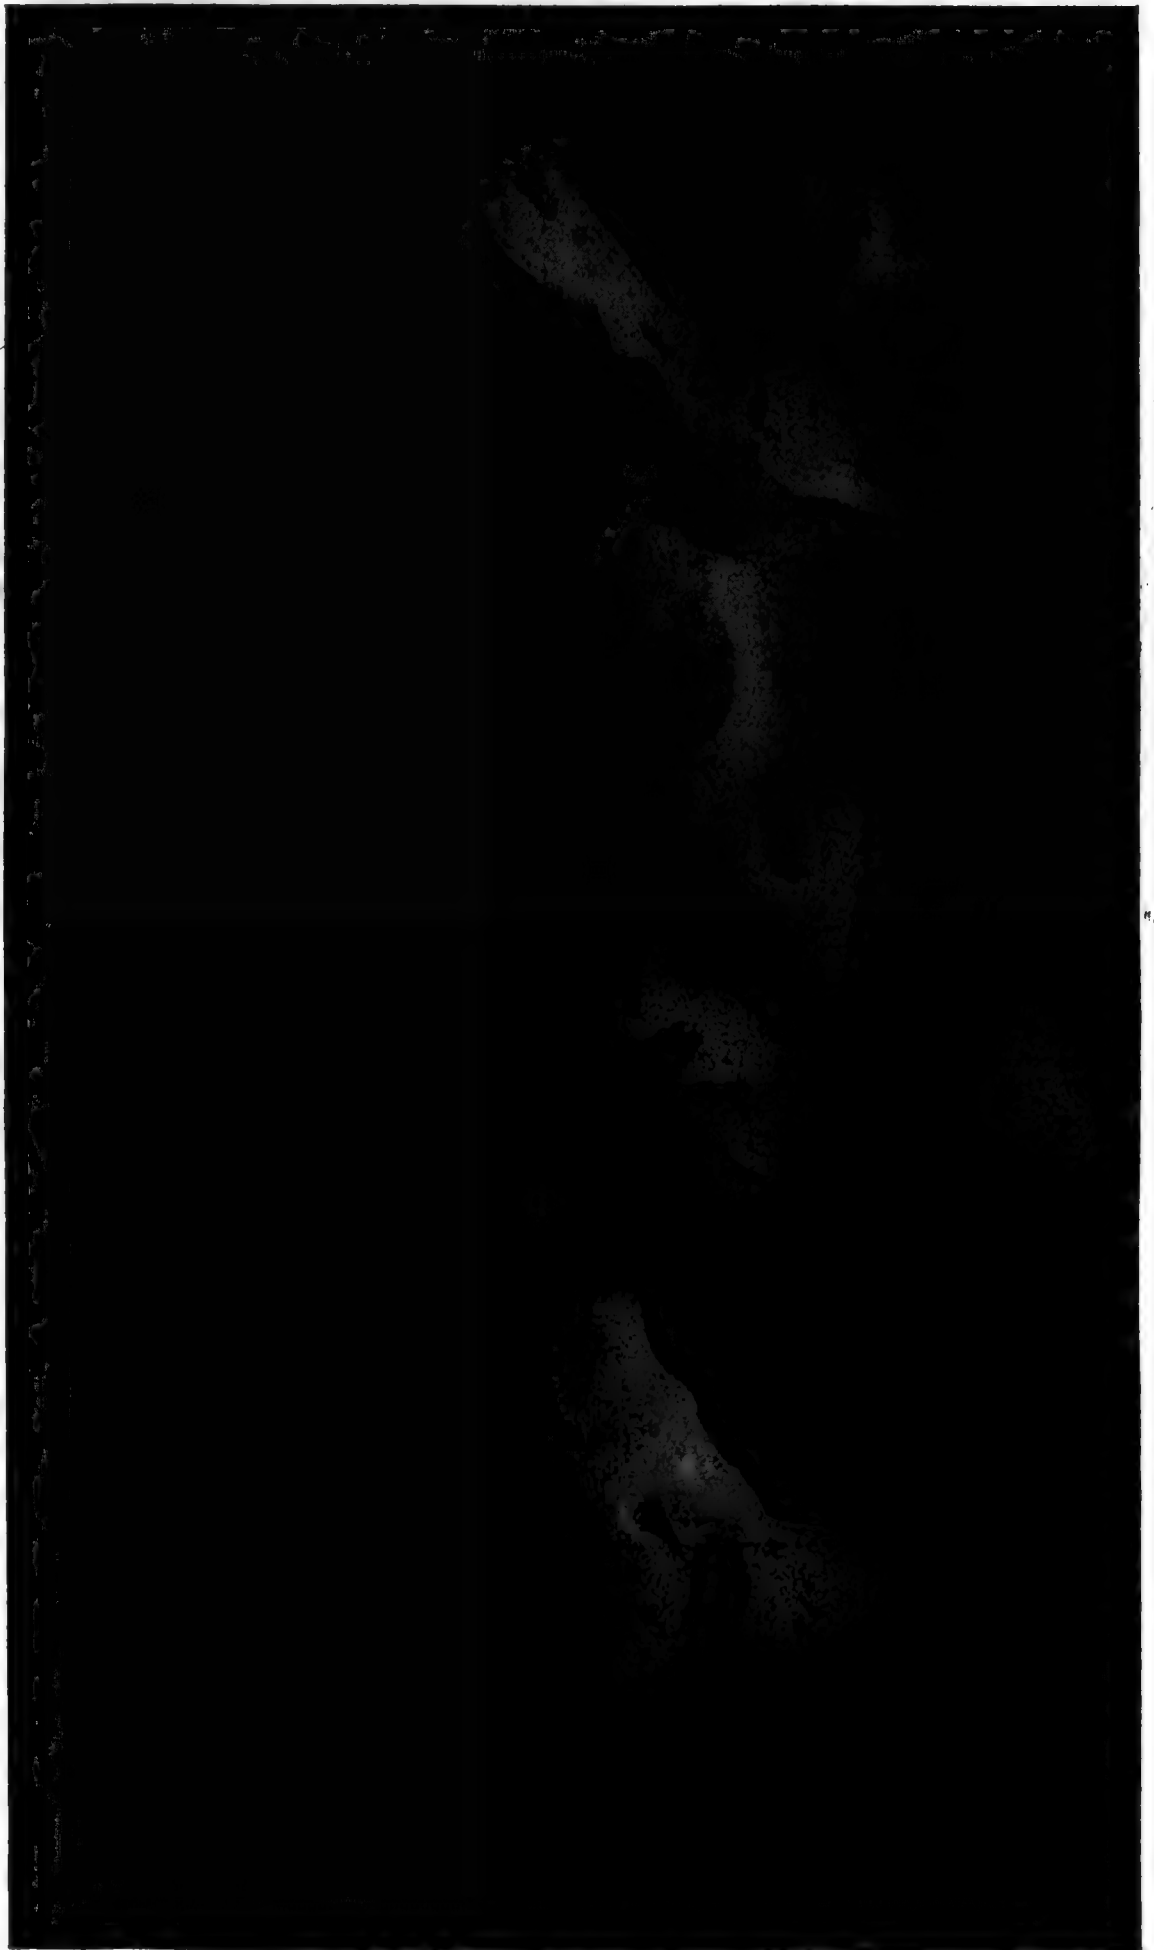

Concord Crimson, fine ruby red.

Concord Lavender, light lavender blue.

Concord White, large, pure white.

Concord Salmon, soft salmon pink.

Concord Blue, dark purple blue.

We have on hand fresh seed of Giant Flowered Cyclamen in all popular colors, also Primula, Cineraria, Calceolaria; Perennial Flower Seeds for summer sowing and Annuals for winter flowering under glass.

"THE APPAREL OFT BESPEAKS THE MAN"

William Scott always urged the trade to "Wash all you got, and hang out all you wash." It was his homely but forceful way of emphasizing the value of making a front in the florists' business. Well kept grounds about florists' establishments bring orders immediately and in the future.

HAT you should "put your best foot forward" is an old admonition, and like most of the philosophy that is handed down in crisp commands, it contains much good, hard common sense. Applied to the florists' trade this adage may be taken to mean that the florist who puts his best foot forward is the florist who takes the time and trouble to beautify the grounds around his establishment, thereby showing the public what may be accomplished in the way of embellishing the grounds of the home owner.

Using the grounds surrounding our establishments for displays to show the public our wares is good business. The contrast between the well kept florists' establishments and those in the opposite condition is sharp. The one arouses admiration and creates a pleasant memory; the other, if it impresses the mind at all, leaves only a recollection of piles of pots, litter and the other debris that is apt to be collected about the houses when they are cleared in the early summer.

Outdoor Displays.

Summer, of course, is the florists' best advertising time—the time when nature without demanding anything but labor installs a display that is more beautiful and impressive than the most elaborate winter window. The summer display not only makes sales at the time, but it has an effect when in winter nature turns the job of providing flowers over to the florist. But there are methods by which the ground can be made nearly as attractive in the winter. Evergreens add the touch of green that stands out more prominently when the ground is white with snow, and is a reminder of the other, and, to most people, the better season of the year.

Impressive Advertising.

A concrete example of what the florist who has grounds about his establishment may accomplish is shown by the accompanying illustrations from photographs of the F. R. Pierson place at Tarrytown, N. Y. Mr. Pierson has put his best foot forward and is standing solidly on that foot, and by so doing his establishment has become known as one of the show places in a section of the country that abounds in show places. Tarrytown is about twenty-five miles north of New York city. Through it passes the road that is taken by a great majority of automobilists traveling between the American metropolis and Albany, the New York state capital.

About five years ago Mr. Pierson decided to capitalize his location. As a retail store he built the artistic structure shown, while the grounds about it were not overlooked. The thousands of automobilists who pass the Pierson place cannot but be impressed with its beauty, and retain in their minds the picture of the flowers and shrubs that are displayed. In this way Mr. Pierson tells thousands of people that he can make the grounds surrounding their homes beautiful, and gives them ocular proof of the assertion. The success Mr. Pierson has achieved proves his methods to be worth while.

Be a Pacemaker.

Not every florist, of course, has such an ideal location for this class of advertising. The establishments with grounds generally are located in the smaller cities, but they undoubtedly have many persons in their localities to whom artistic planting will appeal. It is only human to desire to possess the beautiful things we see. In consequence, the more care a florist takes of his grounds, the more likely he is to get the business.

Florists everywhere are beginning to realize this fact and in many places the florists' establishments are among the most attractive in the neighborhood. In these same places it will be found that the pacemaker has many followers. The florist has shown the home owners what it is possible to do with plants and shrubbery. And they have followed his example in a greater or lesser degree.

The Flower Store the Bright Spot of the Neighborhood.

There are a great many more results to be obtained from these displays than securing orders for landscape gardening and planting out. When the cut flower season comes around and flowers are wanted, it is only natural that the florist whose place attracted attention should be the one to whom the customer will turn. He has demonstrated his ability to grow flowers and to make an artistic show with flowers. In other words, he has impressed his artistic ability upon the mind of the prospect, and orders for decorations and designs that amount to something will come his way.

Every florist who has a greenhouse range is a busy man in the summer. What with clearing the houses and getting the stock ready for the next season, he has not a great deal of time to devote to other matters. Many times he feels that there is more real money in getting his houses planted and stock started for the coming season than there is in making his grounds beautiful.

The man who takes this view, however, is shortsighted. He is not putting his best foot forward. If every possessor of a yard took the same attitude there would be little call for geraniums when the next May came around.

Everything that excites a desire in the minds of the persons living in the same locality with a florist to possess flowers is helping to create customers for the florist. Annually the number of flower buyers has increased. The number will keep on increasing, because florists have learned the value of advertising. They now know that attractive window displays are chief factors in their success; they also know that newspaper advertising space is as valuable to them as it is to the man who sells dry goods or jewelry; they know that everything that attracts the attention of the public to flowers makes habitual flower buyers, and every additional habitual flower buyer is an asset to the florists' business.

Beautifying the Home.

There is another consideration that should impel the florist to make his place as attractive as his time allows. Usually his home adjoins the greenhouse establishment. There is a great satisfaction in living in surroundings that are attractive to the eye. He and his family take a justifiable pride in their home and the grounds about it. It gives them what richer people than they do not have, and what the still more wealthy spend large sums of money to obtain.

Putting our best foot forward means taking advantage of every opportunity to increase our business and whatever pleasure we get in life. If the effort spent on the grounds around our establishment accomplishes these things, it is worth while. For the reward in money and satisfaction is just as certain as that there will be a call for mums at Thanksgiving time—which is a cinch.

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Finance Committee Named.

The campaign to raise the balance of the $50,000 for national publicity for flowers, which was inaugurated at the S. A. F. convention in New York city, August 23, will be pushed rapidly. President R. C. Kerr, of the S. A. F., has appointed a committee to be known as the publicity finance committee, which will undertake the completion of the fund, to which $12,000 was contributed when the plan was proposed at the convention.

The members of the committee are: George Asmus, of Chicago, chairman; Herman P. Knoble, of Cleveland; Fred L. Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J.; W. R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and John Young, of New York. The members of the publicity committee are W. F. Therkildson, of Philadelphia, Pa., chairman; Guy W. French, of Morton Grove, Ill.; Joseph Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa.; E. P. Tracey, of Albany, N. Y., and Thomas H. Joy, of Nashville, Tenn.

The finance committee will organize at once and proceed to carry on the work directed by the resolutions passed at the convention. Local committees will be appointed throughout the country to assist in the work.

The Letter to Members.

The following letter to members of the society is being sent out jointly by the publicity finance committee and the publicity committee, through Secretary John Young:

Dear Fellow Members:—

As a member of the S. A. F. you must be greatly interested in the proposed advertising campaign that was so enthusiastically received and adopted at the recent convention of our great organization.

Many times we have been asked, "What does the S. A. F. do for me?"

There is no desire on the part of the officers to assume a paternal attitude toward its members; service has been and will continue to be the greatest object of this organization.

The coming campaign will, without doubt, create a tremendously increased demand for flowers, and it is but one of the many benefits your organization proposes and will give to you.

You, of course, have read in the trade papers of the enthusiasm manifested at this meeting, and we are sure you want to do your part in this great national campaign to popularize flowers.

How F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y., Makes His Place Attractive and Advertises Landscape Work.

How F. R. Pierson Advertises his Business to the Hundreds of Passing Automobilists.

Flowers have never received the consideration at the hands of the public that they should; the public has never been educated as to the value and necessity of flowers.

Here is a well defined campaign, one that requires the comparatively insignificant sum of $50,000 per year for a period of four years. We say "insignificant sum" as a matter of comparison, for when we consider the advertising appropriations of some of the large organizations, such as the Overland car, the Victrola, and the Uneeda biscuit, that run into millions each year, this is but a modest effort.

What better use can you make of your money than to subscribe a sum that you consider right towards this great campaign? The S. A. F. will contribute $5,000 to $10,000 per year as its share. This is where a part of your money will go, and we ask you to cooperate, and to subscribe a sum that you consider consistent with the business you do.

Please understand that in making your subscription you are making it for four years. For instance: If you give $100 per year for four years your subscription is $400. Your national organization is satisfied that no $800 that you could spend in any form of advertising will yield you anywhere near the returns that your cooperation in this great national campaign will yield.

All forms of publicity will be at your command. If you need engraved invitations for your opening, this bureau or department of your organization will supply the last word in dignified salesmanship at a cost lower than you could purchase the original plates. If you want seals and stamps for different occasions, these may be had, from the best known processes, at a cost that you would pay for the drawings, were you having them done yourself. If you have the opportunity to use window cards and posters of large size, these will be furnished by your organization at a price that barely covers cost.

Cuts of all types and kinds may be had at a figure that you would have to pay for the photographs alone. Dealers' helps of every sort are at the command of every subscriber to this fund. Here is an opportunity to help yourself. The campaign is built on a big, broad plan that is designed to and will do more to help you than anything you have ever considered.

The trade papers will publish the names of all those who subscribe to this fund. Don't be a "slacker"! Keep up in the front row, as an up-to-the-minute business man who believes in his products and in his organization!

We could continue indefinitely as to the benefits that you will derive, but it is only necessary for us to refer you to the trade papers for their opinions as to the value of this coming campaign. Every bit of this plan service is at your command. The highest and best trained organization in the country will contribute to this, but we must have the cooperation of our members, and we ask you to sign the enclosed blank and return it at once to the office of the national secretary.

You have seen the success of the National Flower Show; these successes have been made out of judicious advertising. The same organizations and the same committee that have made these conspicuous successes will contribute and cooperate with the publicity committee for the success of the plan that has been described in detail in the trade papers. Local committees from each city and each florists' organization will be appointed at once.

Sign and return the enclosed blank now—help us to help you. John Young, Sec'y.

SPIDERS IN A GREENHOUSE.

Please tell me how to rid a greenhouse of spiders—not the red spider. The insects seem to be of two kinds. One is black and about the size of a grain of wheat. It stays in damp places under the pots. The other is larger and of a light gray color. It usually stays about the plants. I have tried the ordinary sort of sprays, but with no effect unless the sprays were made too strong for the good of the plants. In many cases, though the spiders appear to be dead, they resume activities about twenty minutes later. They do not eat the plants, but seem to suck the leaves and the joints of the branches.

R. P. F.—Tex.

The true spiders are usually carnivorous in their habits and are not likely to do much injury to the plants, although they are unpleasant to have around in large numbers. It is probable that thorough fumigation with nicotine paper, on two or three nights in succession, would overcome these insects. If that does not succeed, try dusting with insect powder.

DUTCH BULBS WILL COME

"THE WAALDYK HAS SAILED."

"No Need for Alarm."

Last week's alarm as to the Dutch bulbs appears to have been unwarranted, as the Holland-America line office in New York gave out the information September 10 that its steamer, the Waaldyk, its cargo consisting principally of Dutch bulbs, positively had sailed from Rotterdam for "an American port," as the censor insists it must be put.

No information is vouchsafed as to the exact date of sailing or day of probable arrival at the "American port," but assurance is given that the boat is on the way and that arrangements should be made for the prompt handling of the largest lot of bulbs that ever came to America in one bottom.

Diplomatic Assurances.

Some time ago it was stated that the Waaldyk was loading at Rotterdam and would sail August 25. There were many contradictory reports, that other boats with bulbs had or had not sailed, that other shipments would or would not follow those on the Waaldyk, and the trade anxiously was awaiting news of the Waaldyk when, August 30, the Associated Press, from The Hague, published a cablegram announcing that the Netherlands government had placed an embargo on the exportation of bulbs. Confirmation of this came through the admission of the steamship company that the loaded Waaldyk had not sailed August 25 as announced and that no reason for the delay had been given. September 6 the U. S. Department of Trade and Commerce gave out the following cablegram from the American legation at The Hague:

"Algemeen Handelsblad reports that the export of bulbs is prohibited."

But the same day the United States representative at The Hague cabled that "export licenses will be granted to meet normal trade demands. Apparently no cause for American seed interests to be alarmed."

Exporters' Cables.

In the meantime many large American importers of bulbs and the American representatives of Holland houses were cabling to Holland for information. That which came back was not enlightening; numerous cables were to the effect, "Bulbs shipped on the Waaldyk." Only by inference could any satisfaction be obtained from that. The inference was that the Waaldyk had sailed unannounced or that the Holland exporters expected the Waaldyk to sail soon in spite of the delay and the embargo.

Attempts made by the trade to obtain information at Washington were fruitless until the cablegram ending "Apparently no cause for American seed interests to be alarmed" was given out September 8.

Bulbs by Trainload.

That the Waaldyk's cargo contains the largest lot of bulbs that ever came to America in one boat is apparent, although there is some uncertainty as to just how large the quantity is. In August, when the loading commenced, it was reported the Waaldyk would bring 12,000 cases. Now it is reported the vessel has more than twice that quantity aboard. One forwarding agent has advised that 1,254 cases are consigned to him alone, and the State Department at Washington gave out a dispatch September 7 to the effect that there are 26,000 cases on the boat. From Philadelphia, too, comes the report that the date of sailing was September 12, and that the cargo consists of 26,000 cases of bulbs.

EXPORT TO BE PERMITTED UNDER LICENSE

[Cablegram from American Legation, The Hague, September 5.]

"Export of bulbs except under license prohibited. Minister of Agriculture announces export licenses will be granted to meet normal trade demands. Apparently no cause for American seed interests to be alarmed."

Such a quantity of bulbs makes an enormous bulk. It will require about 260 freight cars to move 26,000 cases, the average carload being about 100 cases. With 260 cars, the bulbs on the Waaldyk will make at least five solid trainloads.

Figuring an average weight at 100 pounds to the case, the Waaldyk is reported to be bringing 3,250 tons of bulbs. The total exports of bulbs to the United States and Canada, according to the General Society of Holland Bulb Growers, was: In 1916, 12,100 tons; in 1915, 8,800 tons; in 1914, 8,415 tons; in 1913, 5,954 tons.

Therefore, if one accepts as accurate the reports that the Waaldyk has 26,000 cases, the weight, compared with the official Dutch figures of other years, indicates that the bulbs on this one boat equal more than half the quantity imported in the last year before the war and more than one-fourth the record quantity imported last year.

Not Too Late.

Apparently the Waaldyk's cargo will not be in the hands of the trade before October. It is late, but not too late. Dutch bulbs often are planted too early in American gardens. They will be the better for a little later planting, in many cases. If the bulbs arrive by October 1, if it is a normal season there will remain at least two months for selling and planting outdoors. For forcing, the lateness of arrival will be immaterial in spite of the early Easter, if the bulbs are in good condition.

TRAMP! TRAMP! TRAMP!

MOVING TOWARD FRANCE.

Florists Aid Uncle Sam.

Members of the trade continue to leave their peaceful pursuits to become members of the fighting force the United States will send to the European battlefields. News of the departure of recruits and of the activities of those already in the service will be gladly received for publication by The Review.

President Vesey to Shoulder Arms.

Among those prominent but young in the trade whose draft numbers the law and chance decreed should be the first selected for the national army, was W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind. Mr. Vesey measured up to the physical requirements of the army and apparently waived his exemption privilege, for Mr. Vesey is winding up his affairs preparatory to leaving for one of the training camps, about September 20. Mr. Vesey is president of the American Carnation Society, ex-president of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, and a member of the firm of W. J. & M. S. Vesey.

From Lincoln to France.

Victor Janson, well known among the florists of southern California and recently of Gullett & Sons' wholesale plant department, at Lincoln, Ill., has joined the quartermaster's department and been assigned to Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, Mo., pending his departure for the French front.

Editor Joins Battery.

F. R. Kilner, formerly an assistant editor of The Review, joined the 149th U. S. Field Artillery just before its departure from Chicago and was assigned to Battery E. He is with the regiment at Camp Mills, Garden City, L. I., on the way to France.

Wisconsin Man Leaves.

Louis Turner, Jr., son of Louis Turner, who owns a large greenhouse range near Kenosha, Wis., has become a member of the new national army and has left for a cantonment. Before leaving Mr. Turner visited Milwaukee to say good-bye to his many friends there.

Chicagoan an Honor Man.

Charles Thomas Johnson, son of Charles W. Johnson, of Chicago, secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, was one of the twelve honor men selected in the Seventy-seventh district of Cook county, Ill., to go to the Camp Grant cantonment at Rockford, Ill. Mr. Johnson left September 7. Although he had been married two years, Mr. Johnson did not claim exemption. He had been assistant in the office and on the grounds at Mount Greenwood cemetery for some time.

Samuelson of the Seventh.

Arthur Samuelson, a nephew of Charles A. Samuelson, and employed in that gentleman's well known Chicago store, is a member of the Seventh regiment I. N. G., which has been taken into the army of the United States. He was on the Mexican frontier assisting Mr. Wilson in catching Villa in 1916 and the regiment expects to go to Houston, Tex., this week for training for France. Edward Samuelson, another nephew of C. A. Samuelson, has been drafted and is training at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

Ribbon Men Volunteer.

Among the New York ribbon houses that of Wertheimer Bros. has the distinction of furnishing an especially large quota of volunteer enlistments for the United States army and navy. Among those who enlisted prior to the draft and who are now in service are: Samuel Haberman, 22d Engineers; Philip Metzner, in the Transport Service, U. S. navy; Monroe E. Frankl, 8th Coast Defense Artillery; Louis Laufer, 1st Field Artillery; Walter E. Harris, U. S. Naval Reserve. Their positions will remain open awaiting their return.

CYCLAMEN MITE.

I am sending you one of my cyclamen plants and should like to know what is causing the leaves to curl. I cannot find any insects on the plants. Would it be a good idea to fumigate with tobacco or put tobacco dust between the plants? G. C. H.—Ill.

The plant forwarded was infested by the cyclamen mite. I do not know of any real remedy for this pest. It annually appears and destroys large batches of cyclamens. I have found that spraying with nicotine extract helps to check the mite, if applications are given as soon as any trouble appears, and are persisted in. Also, allow some of the spray to soak all around the bulb. A few growers find that applications of tobacco dust help in some measure. If all your plants are in the same condition as the sample, it would be the best policy to destroy them. C. W.

Allegany, N. Y.—Elmer Rawlings has purchased twelve acres of ground adjoining his establishment. Mr. Rawlings said that while he does not need the land now, he will soon, and bought it before it was secured by a cemetery company that was bidding for it.

Any member of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, San Francisco, who goes to war will have "smokes" and comfort kits supplied him at the organization's expense. Fred Bertrand started the fund for fighters at last week's meeting of the society.

Fifty-five energetic members of the Milwaukee trade held a mass meeting last week at which it was decided to form an organization through which co-operative advertising could be planned and placed. Definite plans will be ready in a week or two.

Seventy years young may be old, but it describes E. Gurney Hill, who became a septuagenarian September 11. He was born in England, but his parents came to America when the rosarian, now as famous in England as in America, was only 3 years old.

With the prospect of paying from $3 to $3.50 per day for labor before long, members of the Portland, Ore., Floral Society recently took concerted action toward establishing higher retail prices. Cooperation among tradesmen is the essential thing in "passing it on to the public."

It is believed that importations of baskets and other supplies from Japan this fall and early winter will be greatly retarded, or even stopped. The demand for vessels on the Atlantic seaboard for the sake of the military establishment has seen a transfer of many of the Pacific liners to war service.

While S. D. McMillen, of Braddock, Pa., was sleeping the sleep of the just on the night of September 5, somebody climbed in through the window and made away with the sleeper's trousers. In the morning Mr. McMillen found them on the front porch, but he could not find $75 in currency which had been in one of the pockets.

As indicative of the progress made by the S. A. F., Secretary Young points out that in the course of five years the membership of the society has almost doubled. January 1, 1912, there were 1,275 members; August 10 of this year there were 2,215, of whom 1,694 were annual, 496 life and 25 pioneer members. Yet Mr. Young says the membership is only ten per cent of the total number of florists in this country and Canada.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

MR. POCHELON STIRS THINGS UP.

Does the secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association hold the idea that his organization has outgrown its connection with the S. A. F., or does he want the other affiliated societies to get in line with the F. T. D. in this matter? Some of his recent writings have raised the question and now he has put the matter squarely up to the F. T. D. members by propounding the following query:

"Do you believe in our membership being compelled to join the S. A. F., or shall they become members of the S. A. F. voluntarily?"

The F. T. D. is the only one of the trade societies affiliated with the S. A. F. which requires its members also to be members of the S. A. F.; it is so provided in the by-laws of the F. T. D. The other organizations, the presidents of which are affiliation directors of the S. A. F., hold their representation because 100 or more members belong simultaneously and "voluntarily" to both; the F. T. D. is the only allied society every member of which also is a member of the S. A. F. and it seems as though Mr. Pochelon is stirring things up with intent.

There are other questions on his reply card mailed to members that are likely to enliven the doings at the approaching meeting, the first time, by the way, that the F. T. D. has held its annual meeting otherwise than simultaneously with that of the S. A. F. Mr. Pochelon's questions, each followed by a blank for brief reply, are as follows:

Will you be able to attend the Detroit F. T. D. meeting October 2 and 3?

What benefit have you had from membership in the F. T. D.?

Are you satisfied with the work the F. T. D. has done?

Do you believe in our membership being compelled to join the S. A. F., or shall they become members of the S. A. F. voluntarily?

Do you think it advisable for the F. T. D. publicity to be connected with the S. A. F. publicity, or shall it be kept separately?

Do you believe in the strict enforcement of our by-laws and constitution in regard to our F. T. D. Clearing House system?

Have you had any good results with the collection of past due bills through the F. T. D. Clearing House?

Have you had any good results from your membership in the National Floral Corporation?

Have you had any trouble with F. T. D. members in one way or another?

"Do not wait, but answer this at once," says Mr. Pochelon. He signs himself "secretary," giving the communication official force. The suggestions thrown out by the form of the questions may not, however, have been submitted to the other officers. They are: President, W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; vice-president, George Asmus, Chicago; treasurer, W. L. Rock, Kansas City; past presidents, J. A. Valentine and Irwin Bertermann. The directors, with date of end of term, are: 1917, H. Papworth, G. E. M. Stumpp and O. J. Olson; 1918, August Lange, F. D. Pelicano and Frank X. Stuppy; 1919, L. D. Thomson, Karl P. Baum and T. J. Wolfe. The publicity committee consists of Herman Knoble, George E. Schulz and Albert Pochelon.

ARRANGEMENT WITH AGENTS.

In The Review for September 6 G. W. —N. D. asks for a form of contract that a retail florist has with his agents. We are enclosing a form or schedule that we adopted some time ago and we find that we are having good success with it. At first we had a lot of kicks from our agents, but we consider that we must educate our agents to our system of doing business and enforce the system to the letter. We used to give our agents a commission of twenty per cent on all orders, but how can a florist make any money on, say one dozen carnations packed in a box and delivered to the express company or post-office and give a commission of twenty per cent? We believe that the sooner all florists get together and adopt a uniform commission to their agents, the sooner we florists will be able to make a little more than a living. We have wholesale florists in this section to cater to the undertakers and give these same undertakers twenty-five per cent commission, and yet they expect to sell to the retail florists. What are we retailers going to do about it? Let us get together and organize.

Haentze Co.

The enclosed "form or schedule" is not of the nature of a contract, which was what G. W. asked for, but is a notice of revision of the commissions allowed agents. It reads as follows:

TO OUR AGENTS.

On account of the increased cost of all supplies, etc., that we are compelled to use in connection with our business, we are compelled to rearrange our commissions to our agents, the same to take effect October 1, 1916:

All goods purchased during one month amounting to and over $5, ten per cent.

All goods purchased during one month amounting to and over $10, 12½ per cent.

All goods purchased during one month amounting to and over $15, fifteen per cent.

All goods purchased during one month amounting to and over $25, twenty per cent.

All accounts to be paid on or before the fifteenth of the month following date of purchase or commission to be withdrawn. Haentze Co.

Unquestionably, it is up to every florist to study his business and to cut off the unprofitable parts if it can be done without injury to the paying ends.

INSURING SATISFACTION.

That ancient business belief that "a satisfied customer is the best advertisement" is still adhered to by Penn, of Boston. The Penn store, noted for its use of printers' ink, is now taking out insurance against having dissatisfied customers by inviting criticism, when there is reason for criticism. The invitation is in the shape of a neat card, which is enclosed with all orders.

Of the idea, Mr. Penn says: "One of the greatest difficulties encountered in the florists' business is the number of dissatisfactions which arise from time to time where packages of flowers are not up to the usual standard. The consumer in many cases will not notify the florist, but harbors a feeling of dissatisfaction. We think this card overcomes the obstacle, and that it will work out for the best interests of the florist using it."

The card reads:

To All Recipients of Penn's Flowers:

Our plan for showing our appreciation of an order is not merely by thanking our customer, but by trying to fill the order better than was expected.

We are always careful to check over and inspect every order before shipping, but regardless of the fact that we are operating the best inspection system we can invent, errors will occur in a business which handles hundreds of orders daily, as we do.

We therefore suggest that you examine the flowers as soon as received and make sure they are satisfactory. If not, notify us at once, as we desire every recipient of Penn's flowers to be a little more than satisfied.

It is this desire that has built our business.

Penn, The Florist.

Other florists have Mr. Penn's permission to use this idea.

HARDY PERENNIALS

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Japanese Anemones.

What beautiful and valuable flowers the Japanese anemones are in August, September and October! Many people plant them out one spring and, because they fail to flower well the succeeding fall, abandon their culture. As a matter of fact, these anemones need a year to become established; then the plants throw up stalks four to six feet high and bloom for many weeks. The flowers are superb in floral work, especially the white varieties, such as Japonica alba, still the best, and Whirlwind. Of the colored forms, Queen Charlotte, semi-double pink; Alice, silvery pink; Kriemhilde, soft rose, and rosea, the old single pink form, are all good. There are also a number of newer varieties. Anemone vitifolia is a new fall-flowering variety from China, with pretty pink flowers carried on stems a yard in height. The anemones like an abundant water supply when growing, but must have dry feet in winter. They are easily propagated by cutting the roots in short lengths and starting them in a warm cutting bench in winter.

Peonies.

Perhaps your peonies are not flowering as they should. This is probably because they need dividing and replanting. Give them a well drained piece of ground, free from shade, deeply manured and plowed, and do the transplanting now. Then they will become well established before winter. Divide large clumps carefully, so as not to injure the eyes, and do not cover the eyes to a depth of more than three or four inches. Of course you can continue to move peonies until the ground freezes or even postpone the work until spring, but for the best results plant in September.

Save Some Seeds.

Probably all florists are in the habit of saving a few flower seeds each year when they have a specially good strain. There is now great need of this work being extended. The almost overwhelming call for vegetable seeds, and the cessation of most of the European importations of both flower and vegetable seeds, have caused conditions in the seed business unthought-of a year ago. There is every likelihood that these conditions will continue for another year, and though America has land adapted for the culture of nearly all flowers and vegetables, there will undoubtedly be some acute shortages the coming season. Hence, florists who have good strains of annuals and perennials would do well to save some of their own seeds. The same statement is true, also, of beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, cucumbers and some other vegetables; there is no good reason why growers should not save at least a part of their seeds of these for next season. We are constantly being urged to can or dry food crops. Let us also save seeds wherever possible.

Perennial Seedlings.

Take advantage of suitable weather for the transplanting of seedlings of biennials and perennials. They grow fast at this season. If they are planted in nursery rows and kept constantly cultivated, it is surprising how rapidly they grow. Cloudy weather, with the ground moist, is the ideal condition. If such a condition does not exist, water each row as set out, stir the soil about the plants later and few will fail to grow. More growth is made by these hardy seedlings in September than in any other month of the year.

THE PICTURE PROVES IT.

When Thomas Fagan, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, tells about the 25-pound "musky" he caught on his two weeks' vacation at Moen lake, in Wisconsin, there is no opportunity to look askance, for he carries the proof in the form of a snapshot reproduced herewith, in his pocket. One can see from the length of the fish that none of those favorite methods have been resorted to of making a fish gain weight rapidly after being caught. The man on the left is Charles Zirzow, former retail florist of Chicago, who now makes his home in the Wisconsin woods and annually sends large quantities of lycopodium and Christmas trees to Chicago.

THE STATE FAIR FLOWER SHOWS

THE INDIANA STATE FAIR.

Florists' Exhibits at Hoosier Capital.

The state fair, held this year from September 3 to 7, broke all records, with the attendance the greatest in the history of the annual event and with more money spent than ever before. In every line the displays were better, and in most cases larger. The flower display was especially good and the competition most keen. The collections of greenhouse plants to cover 100 square feet of space attracted much attention. There were numerous blooming plants, variegated-leaved plants, exceptional palms and ferns.

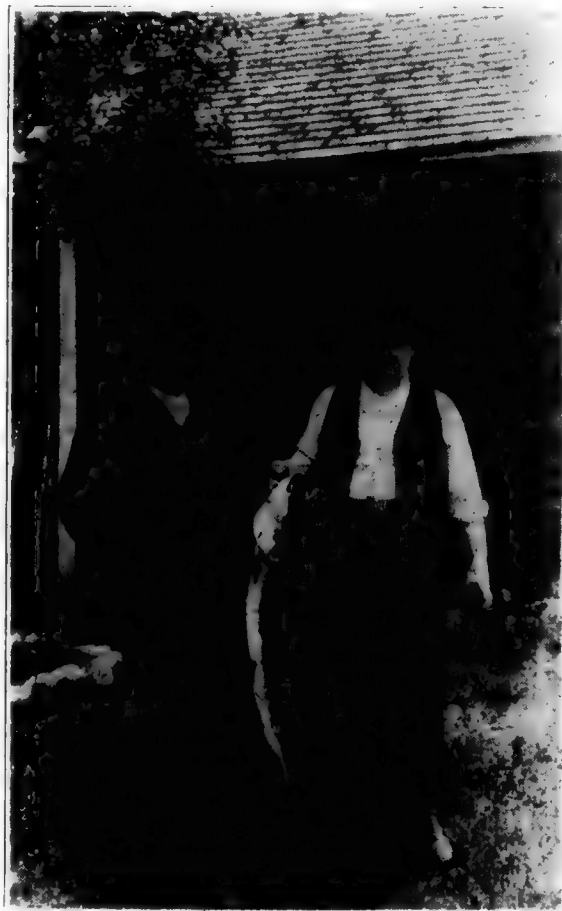

The new or rare plants are always an interesting item. E. H. Rieman, of Indianapolis, won first premium with a rare fern of the curly type. Temperley's, also of Indianapolis, was second with a new dark red dracæna.

Perhaps the closest competition was in the classes calling for a vase of flowers and basket of flowers. The first premium on the vase was won by Temperley's, with a vase of asters and lilies. The flowers shaded from white through to a delicate pink in the asters and from rubrum lilies to a rose-pink aster. The Roepke Floral Co., of Indianapolis, won the blue ribbon on the basket of flowers. This was a pretty basket of Ophelia roses and rubrum and Easter lilies, with a draping of yellow taffeta ribbon on the handle.

Thursday, September 7, being the largest day of the fair, was when the large floral arrangements were staged. The prizes usually are the most sought after. The exhibits offer a good chance to advertise and, incidentally, to receive one of the two of the largest premiums. Temperley's received first on a patriotic piece, with Roepke Floral Co. second for a large panel, with a frame of bronze galax leaves surrounding a center of white asters, on which was featured the American flag made of straw-flowers. Above and below the flag was a cluster of orchids. E. H. Rieman was third with a lyre of yellow chrysanthemums and Ophelia roses.

Exhibitors and Awards.

The following participated in the fair this year: Baur & Steinkamp, Mrs. J. H. Drake, John R. Fohl, Franklin B. Meade, E. H. Rieman, Roepke Floral

With Bouquet Green Man for Guide.

Co. and Temperley's. W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, was judge, and A. F. J. Baur managed the exhibits.

The awards in the plant classes were as follows:

Plants to cover 100 square feet—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; E. H. Rieman, third.
Ferns, ten plants—Temperley's, first; E. H. Rieman, second; Roepke Floral Co., third.
Coleus, ten plants—Temperley's, first; Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, second; E. H. Rieman, third.
Geraniums, ten plants—Temperley's, first; E. H. Rieman, second; John Fohl, Indianapolis, third.
Begonias, ten plants—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; E. H. Rieman, third.
Variegated-leaved plants, ten—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Crotons in assortment, ten plants, not over 8-inch pots—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, ten plants, not over 7-inch pots—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second.

Lilium longiflorum, twelve plants—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second.

Lilium speciosum rubrum, twelve plants—Roepke Floral Co., first.

Latania borbonica—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Kentia—E. H. Rieman, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; Temperley's, third.

Araucaria—E. H. Rieman, first; Temperley's, second; Roepke Floral Co., third.

Asparagus Sprengeri—E. H. Rieman, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; Mrs. Jennie Drake, third.

Boston fern, not over 14-inch pot—Baur & Steinkamp, first; Temperley's second; Roepke Floral Co., third.

Nephrolepis, crested form, not over 14-inch pot—E. H. Rieman, first; Temperley's, second; Roepke Floral Co., third.

Adiantum cuneatum—Baur & Steinkamp, first; E. H. Rieman, second; Roepke Floral Co., third.

Adiantum Farleyense—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second.

Pandanus Veitchii—Roepke Floral Co., first; E. H. Rieman, second; Temperley's, third.

Specimen new or rare plant—E. H. Rieman, first; Temperley's, second; Roepke Floral Co., third.

Hanging basket—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; John R. Fohl, third.

CUT FLOWERS.

Floral arrangement—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Bride's bouquet—Roepke Floral Co., first; E. H. Rieman, third.

Bridesmaid's bouquet—Roepke Floral Co., first; E. H. Rieman, second.

Basket of flowers—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Vase of flowers—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Wreath, on easel—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Cut flowers—Temperley's, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Gladioli, twenty-five vases, six spikes in each vase, not less than twenty-five varieties—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Asters—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Cannas—Baur & Steinkamp, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; Temperley's, third.

Zinnias—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; E. H. Rieman, third.

Dahlias—Franklin B. Meade, first; Temperley's, second; Roepke Floral Co., third.

Twenty-five American Beauties—Roepke Floral Co., first; E. H. Rieman, second; Temperley's, third.

Twenty-five red roses, other than American Beauty—E. H. Rieman, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; Temperley's, third.

Twenty-five white roses—Roepke Floral Co., first; E. H. Rieman, second; Temperley's, third.

Twenty-five pink roses—E. H. Rieman, first; Temperley's, second; Roepke Floral Co., third.

THE ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

Monday, September 10, marked the opening day of the floricultural section of the Illinois state fair at Springfield. The display was entirely of plants, the cut flowers and designs following on succeeding days. J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., acted as judge, and the department could not have selected a better man for this. Mr. Ammann made the awards from the standpoint of artistic arrangement and skill as well as from that of color and variety. Competition was not keen, for on the first day there are usually few exhibitors, and this year proved no exception. The awards follow:

Collection of stove and greenhouse plants, effectively arranged to cover 100 square feet of space—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, of Springfield, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., of Springfield, second; Hembreiker & Cole, of Springfield, third.

Twelve palms, not less than three varieties, single, grouped for effect—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, third.

Two palms, made up—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

One palm, single—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

One Cycas revoluta—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Four araucarias, any variety—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, second.

Twelve crotons, in variety—Lewis H. Wise, of Springfield, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, third.

Ornamental or foliage plant—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twelve begonias, flowering, in variety—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. C. Brown, of Springfield, third.

Cyclamens, in bloom, ten plants, not less than five inches—Hembreiker & Cole, first.

Twelve ferns, distinct, one of each—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Six ferns, distinct, one of each—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Four adiantums, distinct—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first.

Four Nephrolepis bostoniensis, not less than 8-inch pots—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; Lewis H. Wise, third.

Four Nephrolepis Piersonii, or other sports of Boston, not less than 8-inch pots—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Lewis H. Wise, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Four Nephrolepis Whitmanii, not less than 8-inch pots—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Lewis H. Wise, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Four Nephrolepis Scottii, not less than 8-inch pots—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

One Nephrolepis bostoniensis, not less than 10-inch pot—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.

One Nephrolepis Piersonii, or other sports of Boston, not less than 10-inch pot—Lewis H. Wise, first; Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

One Nephrolepis Whitmanii, not less than 10-inch pot—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; A. C. Brown, second; Lewis H. Wise, third.

One Nephrolepis Scottii, not less than 10-inch pot—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

One Cibotium Schiedel, not less than 8-inch pot—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first.

Four dracaenas, four varieties—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first.

Four Pandanus Veitchii—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Twelve baby ramblers in bloom—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, second.

Six Asparagus plumosus, not less than 6-inch pots—A. C. Brown, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Lewis H. Wise, third.

One hanging basket fern, 14-inch—Hembreiker Bros., Lincoln, Ill., first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, third.

One hanging basket Asparagus Sprengeri, 14-inch—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Hembreiker Bros., second; A. C. Brown, third.

Two window boxes, five feet by eight inches, filled—Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, first.
 Fern dish, filled—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second; Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, third.
 Collection of bulbs for fall planting, correctly named—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., certificate of merit.

NEBRASKA FALL SHOW.

Held at State Fair.

The Nebraska State Horticultural Society held its fall fruit and flower show in connection with the state fair at Lincoln, September 3 to 7. The exhibits both in cut flowers and plants were of finer quality than ever before. The competition was keen and took close and careful attention on the part of the judges to select the prize-winners.

The Prize-Winners.

The awards were as follows:

Collection of plants, covering 100 square feet—L. Henderson, Omaha, first; Frey & Frey, Lincoln, second; Hiltner Bros., Lincoln, third.

Five palms—L. Henderson, first; Frey & Frey, second; Hiltner Bros., third.

Ferns, covering fifteen square feet—L. Henderson, first; Hiltner Bros., second; Frey & Frey, third.

Plants—L. Henderson, first; Frey & Frey, second; Hiltner Bros., third.

Blooming plants—Frey & Frey, first; L. Henderson, second; Hiltner Bros., third.

Eight plants—L. Henderson, first; Frey & Frey, second; Hiltner Bros., third.

Display of cut flowers—Frey & Frey, first; Hiltner Bros., second; L. Henderson, third.

Fifty tea roses, five varieties—Frey & Frey, first; L. Henderson, second; Hiltner Bros., third.

Collection of gladioli—M. Wilson, first; L. Henderson, second; Frey & Frey, third.

Fifty carnations, five varieties—Frey & Frey, first; Hiltner Bros., second; L. Henderson, third.

Bridal bouquet—Frey & Frey, first; Hiltner Bros., second; L. Henderson, third.

Basket—Frey & Frey, first; Hiltner Bros., second; L. Henderson, third.

Wreath—Frey & Frey, first; Hiltner Bros., second; L. Henderson, third.

Spray—Frey & Frey, first; L. Henderson, second; Frey & Frey, third.

Corsage bouquet—Hiltner Bros., first; Frey & Frey, second; L. Henderson, third.

All of the exhibits were of excellent quality. In addition there were numerous exhibits of garden flowers by amateurs.

The exhibits were viewed by more than 200,000 people, it is estimated, in the five days of the fair. The interest manifested by the public gave the florists much encouragement for the coming season.

ROCHESTER FLOWER SHOW.

Exhibition a Great Success.

The exposition and flower show at Rochester, N. Y., a partial account of which was given in The Review last week, came to an end September 8 and was declared to be a success in every particular. The weather conditions were favorable and the exhibits were superior to any shown at the exposition in the past. Many thousands visited the flower show, among them being Governor Charles S. Whitman, accompanied by the mayor and Rochester city officials, who attended September 5.

Some of the exhibits arrived late in the week. They included a choice exhibit of twenty-four vases of gladioli from Munsell & Harvey, of Ashtabula, O. The exhibit was unsolicited and was sent to help out the show. L. J. Bryant, of Newark, N. Y., also was represented by a collection of gladioli, cactus dahlias and roses. Mr. Bryant also had an exhibition of corn and seeds, on which he was awarded ten first prizes. H. Boughton, of Pittsford, N. Y., added an interesting exhibit of the known varieties of mushrooms. Mrs. George R. Fuller, of Rochester, sent a large brass jardiniere of helichrysums, which deserves special mention.

The amateur classes were well filled and included fine specimens of hardy stock, palms and ferns.

The Awards.

The awards in the professional classes were:

Collection of palms, six or more varieties—H. E. Wilson, first; George T. Boucher, second. Similar awards were given each man for single specimen palms, single basket of plants, best hanging basket, best vase of plants and best porch box filled with plants.

Twelve American Beauty roses—George T. Boucher, first.

Twelve Francis Scott Key roses—H. E. Wilson, first; George T. Boucher, second.

Twelve Sunburst—George T. Boucher, first; H. E. Wilson, second.

Twelve My Maryland—George T. Boucher, first.

Twelve any variety white—George T. Boucher, first; H. E. Wilson, second.

Twenty-five white carnations—H. E. Wilson, first.

Twenty-five pink carnations—H. E. Wilson, first.

Twelve spikes white gladioli—C. W. Curtis, first.

Twelve spikes white gladiolus seedlings—C. W. Curtis, second.

Twelve spikes yellow gladioli—N. A. Hallauer, first; H. E. Wilson, second.

Twelve spikes pink or blush gladioli—J. Thomann & Sons, first; C. W. Curtis, second.

Twelve spikes red gladioli—J. Thomann & Sons, first; C. W. Curtis, second.

Twelve spikes blue gladioli—N. A. Hallauer, first; L. J. Bryant, second.

Best collection named varieties—N. A. Hallauer, first; C. W. Curtis, second.

Six cactus dahlias, named varieties—L. J. Bryant, first.

Twelve white branching asters—J. Thomann & Sons, first; H. E. Wilson, second.

Horseshoe on easel, 24-inch frame—George T. Boucher, first; J. Thomann & Sons, second.

Flat bouquet, or spray of roses—H. E. Wilson and George T. Boucher divided first and second prizes.

Table decoration for four plates and centerpiece—George T. Boucher, first; H. E. Wilson, second.

Bouquet of roses—H. E. Wilson, first; George T. Boucher, second.

Basket of cut flowers—George T. Boucher, first; C. W. Curtis, second.

Best vase of flowers—J. Thomann & Sons, first; H. E. Wilson, second.

Bridal bouquet—George T. Boucher, first; H. E. Wilson, second.

24-inch basket—H. E. Wilson, first; George T. Boucher, second.

The judges of the flower show were A. N. Salter and Fred R. Schlegel.

An effective lily pond was arranged by George Cramer. It included a fine exhibit of cut lilies from Henry Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

The weather last week, cold and dark, was much on the fall order and the stock in the market showed the effects. While there are still some garden flowers to be had, they are fast disappearing. Gaillardias, cosmos, marigolds and zinnias continue in good supply. Bonnaffon chrysanthemums are in the market. The supply of rubrum and Easter lilies is small. Orchids are almost unobtainable. Roses are in good supply and of fine quality. Richmond, Killarney and White Killarney, Mrs. Hearst, Milady, Kaiserin and other varieties of roses all sell well. Good chrysanthemums are coming from the local growers. Asters have been scarce this year.

State Fair Exhibits.

A number of local growers and retailers had exhibits at the state fair last week. While the number of entries in the various classes was not large, some fine flowers and designs were shown.

A partial list of the prize-winners and classes follows:

Twenty Mrs. Charles Russell roses—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

Twenty white roses, except Kaiserin—Holm &

Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.
 Twenty Kaiserin roses—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second.
 Coleus—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Palms—Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, first; Holm & Olson, second.
 Ferns, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Pandanus—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Mound of decorative plants—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Corsage bouquet—Holm & Olson, first.
 Original design—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second.
 Bridal bouquet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second.
 Hanging basket of ferns—Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, first.
 Table decoration—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.
 Wreath on easel—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.
 Hanging basket—Holm & Olson, first.
 Plants, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Begonias—Holm & Olson, first.
 Nephrolepis—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 One hundred asters—Holm & Olson, first.
 Window box—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Boston fern—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Ferns, covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.
 Plants, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Various Notes.

Business has been good with the retailers. Last week there was considerable funeral work and several weddings. James Skinner, with the Whitted Floral Co., is away on a vacation.

CONFERENCE AT MASON CITY.

Coal and Agents' Discounts.

Florists of northern Iowa and Minnesota held a conference at Mason City, Ia., September 11, the meeting being called at the invitation of Mr. Goodman, of Mason City, Ia.; A. N. Kinsman, of Austin, Minn., and the Lake Shore Greenhouses, of Albert Lea, Minn.

Mr. Goodman called the meeting to order in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, stating briefly the purpose of the convention. The first speaker was a coal dealer, who gave a brief outline of the coal situation as it concerns florists. He said there may be chances to pick up odd lots of coal during the next four or five weeks, but that he believed the florist would find it almost impossible to buy coal during January or February. The idea is to get a supply now or be protected by contract.

Mr. Goodman then called on James Wilson, of Des Moines, to give his experience in carrying out the Iowa-Nebraska plan, which was inaugurated last winter. Mr. Wilson believes that the plan is a good one, for his concern carried the plan through. There was some trouble, and he lost some of his agents because his competitors did not follow his plan, but eventually most of the agents came back, as they found that his better service counted more than the difference in commissions they received from other firms. B. C. Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, bore out Mr. Wilson's statements. A. H. Smith, of Boone, considered the plan a good one; he has proved this by its operation for his firm. He said that at the time he sent out letters he also sent personal messages assuring his agents that they would be treated fairly. Mr. Clausen, of Albert Lea, believed the idea was valuable, and said that if the florist treated his agents properly, especially in the matter of supplying good flowers and giving good service, they would see the justice of the plan and stay by it.

Permanent Organization Formed.

The question of the rising cost of materials was discussed fully, and it is plain that not only is the lowering of agents' discounts, but the increase of prices of flowers, necessary.

Mr. Goodman was elected president and A. N. Kinsman, of Austin, secretary and treasurer, of a permanent organization which will meet at different towns in this territory once a year.

A definite plan will be brought before the members of this body, will be sent to the florists in the adjacent territory and adopted at the meeting to be held in connection with the flower show at Des Moines in November.

The Hawkeye Supply Co. entertained the florists at luncheon at the Country Club, making the trip by automobile. Afterwards the men visited the company's plant, where a large stock of plumbing goods, pipe and heating supplies is carried. A banquet was served at the Cerro Gordo hotel in the evening.

The Poehlmann Bros Co., the A. L. Randall Co., the Foley Greenhouse Mfg.

Co. and Vaughan's Seed Store, all of Chicago, were represented at the meeting.

Among those present were:

O. E. Schaefer, La Crosse, Wis.
 C. D. Adams, Cherokee, Ia.
 C. H. Holleld, Eldora, Ia.
 J. L. Munson, Storm Lake, Ia.
 James L. Denmead, Marshalltown, Ia.
 G. A. Torsberg, Rennison Co., Sioux City, Ia.
 Elmer E. Nordwall, North Floral Co., Fort Dodge, Ia.
 M. Rocklin, Sioux City, Ia.
 H. N. Antisdell, Milford, Ia.
 Philip Foley, Jr., Chicago, Ill.
 M. E. Terry, Waterloo, Ia.
 Calvin D. Hinsman, Austin, Minn.
 George H. Mohn, Chicago, Ill.
 F. C. Pushee, Clear Lake, Ia.
 Curtis H. Thomas, Traer, Ia.
 Arthur H. Smith, Boone, Ia.
 J. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.
 S. D. Dysinger, St. Paul, Minn.
 P. Clausen, Albert Lea, Minn.
 G. A. Clausen, Albert Lea, Minn.
 J. G. Schrodtt, Mankato, Minn.
 S. L. Deal, New Hampton, Ia.
 W. T. Symonds, Jr., Decorah, Ia.
 H. I. Symonds, Decorah, Ia.
 N. H. Wetherbee, Charles City, Ia.
 I. O. Kemble, Marshalltown, Ia.
 A. G. Larson, Forest City, Ia.
 Irwin Newland, Forest City, Ia.
 T. B. Sargeant, Osage, Ia.
 R. P. Atwell, Fort Dodge, Ia.
 R. A. Helm, Mason City, Ia.
 Logan Urice, Vinton, Ia.
 Blaine C. Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.
 Joseph Bancroft, Cedar Falls, Ia.
 W. H. Miller, Chicago, Ill.
 C. Pruner, Chicago, Ill.
 George Goodman, Mason City, Ia.
 F. C. Goodman, Mason City, Ia.
 William Smith, Mason City, Ia.

Iris Germanica.

With the passing of the gorgeous Japanese irises our season of irises ends. Many varieties do specially well if replanted in August and September and the germanica section, if divided now, will get well established before cold weather. Do not plant them too deeply and be sure to give them a well drained location, as rot in winter kills far more German irises than cold. If your land is stiff add plenty of coarse sand or even fine coal ashes to open it up. German irises need warm, well drained soil to do their best.

Eupatoriums.

The eupatoriums are, or used to be, popular subjects for winter blooming. We have several hardy herbaceous varieties of much merit which bloom at this season. E. ageratoides, the white snakeroot, carries handsome heads of pure white flowers on stems three to four feet high. E. Fraseri has large, pure white terminal heads, just showing bloom. E. celestinum, with pale blue ageratum-like flowers, is a splendid late summer variety, attaining a height of two to three feet. All are of easy culture, stand shade well and are of great value for cutting.

Geranium Propagation.

If the taking of geranium cuttings is deferred until we get cool days and nights, the wood becomes firmer and less succulent, and there is far less likelihood of the cuttings damping off. After making the cuttings, let them lie on the potting bench a few hours before putting them in the cutting bench. This will further reduce the damping off. In making the cuttings, remove all foliage but the small ones on the top and all side scales. If you can spare a cutting bench which contains sharp sand and good drainage, good and well; if not, use flats. A useful size is 4x12x24 inches. Put a layer of cinders at the bottom and over this a layer of moss and the remainder of the sand. Water and firm the sand well before putting in the cuttings.

The lines for the cuttings can be drawn with an ordinary mason's trowel or a piece of thin metal. Water well after the cuttings are in, do not shade at all and water sparingly until rooted. Even then it is better to run them well on the dry side until you have time to pot them off. Grow as many of your own cuttings as you can from healthy stock; then you will be but little troubled with the diseases which affect more weakly stock.

Dahlias.

This is the height of the dahlia season. Perhaps you do not grow any, but the majority of country florists have some and it would pay all to plant a nice selection. Look over your stock before frost arrives, label especially good and useful sorts and get rid of those with undesirable and unsalable colors. Pay special attention to the cactus, decorative and peony-flowered sections, which are specially valuable in decorative work. Do not forget the little pompons. A few plants of pure white, pink, yellow and scarlet will be found quite valuable. This type throws its flowers well above the foliage, and, while the flowers are small, they are compact and stand rough treatment better than any other type of dahlia.

Do not be in too great a hurry to dig your dahlias. It is a mistake to do so as soon as frost arrives. If you have no dahlias, visit some specialist now and pick out some good varieties, or go to one of the many fairs and exhibitions where dahlias are always a prominent feature at this season.

Hard-Wooded Plants.

All plants of azaleas, camellias, ericas and other hard-wooded plants should be lifted now and potted without delay. If the balls are at all dry, soak them in a tub of water before potting. If you pot and trust to an ordinary watering to wet dry balls, it may mean a loss of the plants. There should be no need to place hard-wooded stock under glass for some time yet. Spray the plants freely for a few days after lifting and be sure the plants have an adequate supply of water. In regard to potting, always use a rammer or flat-pointed stick to firm the soil well around the sides of the pots. You can hardly pot hard-wooded plants too firmly; those loosely potted will never thrive.

Freesias.

The earliest batch of freesias have now made considerable growth, and if you want them for the holidays, at which time freesias make fancy wholesale prices, stand them on a bench, or, better still, on a shelf in a house where a night temperature of 52 to 55 degrees is maintained. I prefer to grow freesias in pans to flats, as the spikes are much stronger and more easily supported. Be sure to give the plants an adequate supply of water and later in the season weak doses of liquid manure are good; but avoid strong doses, which will cause the ends of the foliage to burn brown, as also will heavy fumigations. Start a later batch of freesias now and another batch can go in as late as the middle of October.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Business in both the wholesale and retail stores continues quiet, while stock is plentiful, so much so that there was a large surplus left when selling ceased September 8. There was a flood of asters, and the quality of some of the late varieties was exceptionally good. Fancy prices were obtained for the select stock, but not more than one-half of the supply was absorbed. Some fine King and America gladioli are arriving and are selling well. Most of the shipments, however, bring only 50 cents to $1 per hundred.

Chrysanthemums are more plentiful, some fine October Frost and Golden Glow flowers being offered. The best of these sold for $1.50 per dozen September 8. Dahlias are abundant. Valley is scarce and prices continue high. There was none to be had at any price at the close of business September 8. Longiflorum lilies of the best quality brought $5 and $6 per hundred September 8, but other flowers sold as low as $3 per hundred. Prices of orchids have dropped, the best of the gigas now selling for 75 cents apiece, while other flowers range in price down to 25 cents apiece. The demand for orchids has been light.

Roses are slowly advancing in both price and quality, although there is still an abundance of ones, twos and threes at from 50 cents to $3 per hundred. The best of the hybrids, Ophelia, Mock and Stanley, sell readily at from $5 to $8 per hundred. Few Hadley or Prima Donna roses have arrived. White roses are in greatest demand. American Beauties are more plentiful and prices are lower. Carnations are short-stemmed, but already are abundant. Good flowers sell for from $1 to $1.50 per hundred. Oncidiums are now seen and there is still a quantity of outdoor flowers.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held September 10, President Stumpp in the chair. The attendance was over 100. Chairman Knight, of the exhibitions committee, succeeded splendidly in securing shipments and the display was one of the best and most interesting of the year. C. H. Totty staged a vase of the new pink rose, Columbia, which the committee pronounced "very promising" and asked to see again. W. A. Manda showed twenty-five blooms of his new red dahlia, No. 1000, which received a cultural certificate. William A. Finger, of Hicksville, L. I., staged many vases of dahlias in great variety, featuring the Elsie Burgess, pink, highly commended. V. Zuber & Sons, of Whitestone, L. I., showed two vases of assorted dahlias and received the thanks of the club. The exhibits of B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., and R. W. Swett, of Saxonville, Mass., were delayed and not shown.

Secretary Young staged the exhibit of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, of Eureka, Cal., which had failed to arrive in time for the S. A. F. convention. It consisted of daffodil, Darwin tulip hyacinth, crocus and narcissus bulbs, also rhododendrons, boxwoods, retinisporas, azaleas and a number of interesting photos. The exhibit was highly commended.

Mr. Young said the committee of the spring flower show of 1918 will hold its preliminary meeting next month and that applications for trade space already are promising.

W. J. Guille and Thos. J. Nolan were proposed for membership. Walter Gott, of St. Albans, England, was elected a member.

J. H. Fiesser, vice-president, reported the afternoon meeting of the board of trustees, Messrs. Schenck, Irwin, Rickards and himself in attendance.

A. L. Miller proposed that the club have a ladies' night, and the time, place and all arrangements were put in charge of the house committee.

The principal topic of the evening's discussion was the publicity movement. The club's decision as to participation was postponed to the next meeting. Various sums up to $1,000 were suggested as the club's subscription to the movement. Messrs. Miller, Young, Siebrecht, O'Mara, Schultheis, Schling, Manda, Weston, Guttman, Stumpp and other orators took part in the discussion. Messrs. Fiesser and Schwake subscribed $25 each.

P. B. Rigby, Philip Kessler and L. W. Kervan reported for convention committees and were given a vote of thanks.

The house committee served refreshments, as usual.

Various Notes.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., has an exhibit of his dahlia specialties and new varieties at the store of Alex. McConnell, Forty-ninth street and Fifth avenue.

It is said that some of the large growers of lilies will replace them with roses next season.

Funeral work was the principal business of the retailers last week, there being few receptions, weddings and dinner decorations. New York florists, who have branches at the nearby summer resorts, say that the demand there has been light this season.

R. J. Irwin's latest cable dispatch causes him to expect that his entire order of Dutch bulbs will arrive on the steamer Waaldyk. Mr. Irwin, with Wallace Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and several other friends, will leave soon for Maine on a hunting trip.

Frederick Zahn has opened a flower store at 2445 Jerome avenue, which he has named the University Flower Shop. Mr. Zahn also owns a store at 137 West One Hundred Twenty-sixth street.

George J. Polykranas had some fine white and pink bouvardia last week.

The Cadieux Co. has just filled a large order from the Hotel Majestic for boxwoods and palms.

William Barnes, of Chicago, was the guest of George S. Sullivan last week.

Miss Augusta Nerenston, bookkeeper for C. C. Trepel, has returned from two weeks' vacation spent at Atlantic City and Averne.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Levy, of the Brooklyn Wholesale Cut Flower Market, celebrated their seventeenth wedding anniversary September 5. They received many remembrances from friends.

Frank Duggan, of Peth & Duggan, has returned from a four weeks' vacation, spent on the estate of George S. Phipps, Netcong, N. J., where Chauncey Leclare is superintendent.

Miss Laura Weber, daughter of Charles Weber, of Lynbrook, L. I., has charge of her father's flower store at Long Beach, a nearby summer resort. The store is located in the postoffice building and Miss Weber says it has been a great success.

William P. Ford has so far recovered from the effects of a recent operation as to be able to be at his store.

Russin & Hanfling say that the season has been by far the best in their experience.

John Gunther, of Gunther Bros., has returned to New York, after a pleasant summer spent at Midland beach, Staten island.

David Clarke's Sons report a busy season with weddings and receptions.

John Mallon, the veteran of Brooklyn, is greatly interested in the Red Cross work in the City of Churches.

J. Austin Shaw.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold a dahlia exhibition Saturday and Sunday, September 22 and 23, in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park. The exhibition is open free to the public Saturday from 2 to 5 p. m. and Sunday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Schedules are now ready for distribution and may be had by addressing the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York city.

Newark, O.—A controlling interest in the Columbus Floral Co. establishment, at Columbus O., has been acquired by W. S. Weiant & Son, who, it is reported, will devote the Columbus range to vegetables after the mum crop is over.

BALTIMORE.

Business Is Excellent.

It is not often that one hears complaints at wholesale houses of a scarcity of stock the first week in September, yet this was the condition I found at the Leo Niessen Co. store. Mr. McKissick was telling me that business had been good, much better than he had expected, and that if he had more good stock he could do more business. He also told me that this had been a most remarkable summer, and while there had been no great rush at any time, business showed a good increase over last year; that they had no gluts to contend with this season, except, perhaps, of asters, and this did not amount to anything. His opinion is that the florists' business is in a more healthy condition in this city than it has been during his five years of experience among us.

As we sat and talked about the wholesale end of the business, I recalled that back in the nineties Mr. Niessen had a cellar in Philadelphia that a good sailor would have trouble climbing down into. Now, anyone who knows Leo Niessen knows that he is tall, with just a slight stoop to his shoulders. In those days the boys in the trade there claimed that the stoop came from not having enough room to stand upright in his place of business, but with headquarters in Philadelphia, and branches in Baltimore and Washington, he has plenty of head room now.

There are no greater lovers of a good horse in this locality than the Lehr Bros., and they stuck to them as long as they could. But poor old Dobbin has become too slow, and now any day you may see on the streets a well-equipped auto truck bearing their name. While these boys may have been slow in acquiring a modern delivery equipment, they have been among the leaders in producing the best of stock. At their range on the Annapolis boulevard it is a great treat to see the My Maryland, Radiance and Hoosier Beauty roses not only promising well for the winter, but giving a cut of excellent flowers now.

A new grower who can be depended upon for some fine roses this winter is Walter Erdman, who has the range formerly owned by John Rider. Mr. Erdman was with Lehr Bros. since he returned from the south, and there is no part of rose growing that he does not know. I have not seen his new place yet, but reports that have come to me say he has a stock that is excellent in every respect.

Another firm that is comparatively young, but is producing stock that is remarkable, is Stevenson Bros., at Towson. They were at one time with Isaac H. Moss. They grow nothing but roses, their Ophelia and Sunburst being exceptionally good for this season of the year.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Johnston, 223 West Madison street, returned home September 1 and are now getting ready for a record season.

At his store on Charles street, James Hamilton has a window each day that just compels people to stop and admire.

At Samuel Feast & Sons' store you can never catch Mrs. Hill idle. The last time I called she was putting the finishing touches on a bunch of Harrisii lilies, or, to be correct, two bunches tied together with white ribbon and adian-tum. Mrs. Hill said that during the extremely hot weather she thought that such a piece was lighter than a made-up design or pall.

Halliday Bros. are getting their share of funeral work, with an occasional war wedding. Robert Halliday is busy at the range in Monkton, getting ready for winter.

At John Cook's, 318 North Charles street, it would seem that Miss Cook has just one care on earth and that is to see that the window is kept looking fine, and she always accomplishes her point.

William J. Halliday expects to have a fine cut of orchids this season. At the range on Garrison avenue he grows nothing else, depending on the wholesale houses for the supply of other stock.

E. A. Seidewitz is home from his trip to New York and the convention.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Considerable funeral work created a lively market during a part of last week, and there was plenty of stock to meet the demand. Quantities of gladioli continue to arrive. Good flowers sold readily, but much of the supply was of poor quality. However, the deluge of outdoor stock has lessened considerably and the market was not so crowded as it has been. Asters are not of good quality, most of them being of medium size, and only a few first-class flowers were received. Lavenders, especially, have been scarce.

Dahlias have made their appearance and include some good varieties. Carnations are scarce. Roses are arriving in splendid condition and sell readily. White varieties are not in oversupply. Maryland, Scott Key, Ward, Ophelia, Sunburst and Mrs. Hearst roses all are good. Cecile Brunner roses are plentiful, but find little call. American Beauties are in large demand. Orchids and valley both are scarce. Calendulas, tritomas, auratum lilies and zinnias are included in the supply of outdoor stock. Easter lilies are plentiful, but the demand is not large. Hardy chrysanthemums are in good supply. Good quality Chrysolora chrysanthemums reach the market from California, and some are being brought in by local growers. Green is plentiful.

Various Notes.

Max, the Florist, has passed the physical examination for the army and has been visiting friends in Mexico, N. Y., while waiting to be sent to a training camp. He has not disposed of his store, and will not until he learns definitely whether he will be sent to Europe.

Among the florists from out of town who visited the exposition last week were L. J. Bryant, of Newark, N. Y.; N. A. Hallauer, of Ontario, N. Y.; M. M. Michael, of Dansville, N. Y.; Edward Kendig, of Oswego, N. Y.; Mrs. D. Wilkinson, of Rose, N. Y.; Arthur A. Kirchhoff, of Batavia, N. Y., and N. Y. Lasher and Miss Lasher, of White Bros., Medina, N. Y.

Mrs. John Dunbar, who is in a local hospital recovering from the effects of a serious operation, expects soon to be able to leave the institution.

Several of the florists had windows in keeping with the activities at the exposition last week. Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., had a novel arrangement of toy horses and baskets, in which the horse show colors, red and green, were prominent.

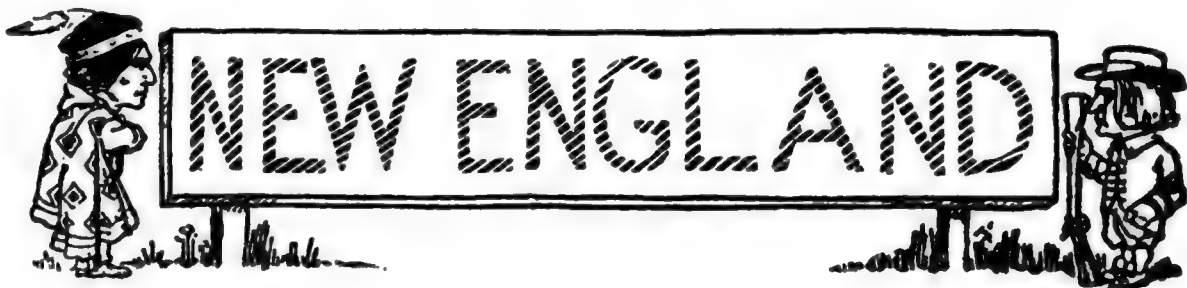

E. R. Fry, of West avenue, has a new delivery auto. It is painted dark blue, with gold lettering. Mr. Fry reports business good, with a quantity of funeral work last week.

Jacob Thomann & Sons were kept busy in their store and greenhouse with a large amount of funeral work last week. Their gladioli, which include some new varieties, were excellent this year.

Arthur M. Newborn, whose exhibit of everlasting flowers at the exposition last week caused much favorable comment, is making a similar exhibit at the state fair at Syracuse this week.

Theodore Mulschlegel, of Pittsford, is cutting some fine pink and white snapdragons. His asters, also, are good.

Charles W. Curtis has just installed a new Lord & Burnham boiler, which is the third of its kind in the establishment. He has been cutting large quantities of gladioli and asters. H. J. H.

Waterbury, Conn.—Saxe & Floto are said to be the largest forcers of lilies in this locality, and they expect to handle the usual number.

Bridgeport, Conn.—John Horan & Sons have been dug around by the formation of a sewer and are much inconvenienced thereby, but it will not be long before they will sail along as prosperously as ever.

Worcester, Mass.—The Worcester Conservatories will go in strongly for conservation during the coming winter, unless present conditions improve. Possibly larger crops of asparagus will be grown, as this green rarely fails to find a good market.

Westerly, R. I.—Welcome S. Carmichael, of Carmichael Bros., who has been confined to his home at Shannock by appendicitis, now is about again.

East Bridgewater, Mass.—J. K. Alexander, who is working to develop fragrance in the dahlia, has a new variety of the peony-flowered type which he has named for a customer, Mary Houghton. Its color is described as rose lavender.

St. Albans, Vt.—Kennedy & Ledouse have made many improvements to the former George Cooke place and have added another house for chrysanthemums. Business is good. That they can dispose of all the stock they can handle is the pleasing report.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

The cooler weather has had its effect on both business and stock. Business seems to have more snap to it; decorations are more frequent. Cut flowers are of far better quality and more plentiful. They arrive in the best of condition, which is a great relief from the open, bruised and poor condition of those a few weeks ago.

Nearly all the florists have returned from their vacations and the appearance of the stores and windows seems to show the effect of more interest and effort.

Roses, gladioli and asters are the principal flowers. American Beauties remain steady and plentiful, but Russells are becoming so choice that they are picked up quickly. Those with long stems are scarce. Ophelias are more plentiful and arrive in fine form. Other roses that find a ready sale are Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer, Detroit and Reid; only the short-stemmed ones are inclined to drag. The corsage roses are plentiful, such as Ward, Bon Silene, Sweetheart and short-stemmed Ophelias. Gladioli move in large quantities, but even so they are in a glut. Asters sell well; only the poor ones pile up. Dahlias are coming into their own, though they do not seem to be popular among the retailers. Those who do have shipments, however, find little trouble in disposing of them.

Valley is plentiful enough for the demand. Orchids continue scarce; only a few large ones are to be had, the others being the small varieties. Cosmos, snapdragon, hennemannias and zinnias are available, but not in much demand. Carnations are improving, but the stems are short as yet. Their sale is slow.

Various Notes.

Thursday, September 6, the Detroit Florists' Club held a special meeting to arrange for the coming bowling season. Captains elected were E. A. Feters, Robert Rahaley, Joseph Streit and Thomas Browne. The captains are to pick their teams before September 13, the first night of bowling. It was agreed that each member deposit $3, the total to be divided into prizes at the close of the season.

The florists appointed as judges of the public school gardens were J. Streit, Thomas Browne, Mr. McHugh, Mr. Demling, J. Klang, A. Stahelin and George Davis. The contest will be held next week, for prizes (Boston ferns) to be awarded by the Detroit Florists' Club.

The Michigan state fair was taken advantage of by only two florists. Indications for next year's fair are far brighter. The retailers and growers are waking up to this form of advertising.

The visitors to the F. T. D. meeting will be taken care of by the club as well as by the F. T. D. members in Detroit. A subscription was moved to be taken and W. Taepke was appointed a committee of one to take charge. R. Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, started by donating $100, and more than $200 was subscribed among those present at the meeting of the club.

Recent visitors were A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago; E. Starkey, of Pennoek Bros., Philadelphia; E. S. Sabin, of the Haeger Pot-teries, Dundee, Ill. H. T.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Last week the dry spell was broken by several heavy rain storms. The weather was cool and made everyone feel that vacation time is over and that it is time to get into harness again.

The rose crop, while large, is doing no more than supplying the demand. Russell roses are scarce, as the demand last week was extraordinarily heavy. There also was a shortage of White Killarney, on account of the numerous funeral orders that called for this color. Other varieties moved well and the general quality has been fine. Carnations are coming in somewhat better. The cut is larger and the stems are longer, but the quantity does not cut much of a figure in the market. The quality is good, however, and would indicate a fine crop to come.

Asters have not been so plentiful or so good during the last few days, on account of the heavy rain. Gladioli are in the same shape and look ragged. The fact that the ground was too wet to permit cutting kept a good part of the crop off the market. This helped to dispose of the surplus. Lilies are in short supply, but the demand is weak, so the lack of this stock is not felt to any extent. Orchids are off crop and orders have necessarily been turned down on these during the last week. Taken as a whole, business remains fairly good, although there is plenty of room for improvement.

Various Notes.

At a general meeting of the growers, wholesalers and retailers, held at the Republican House Thursday evening, September 6, the trade saw the inception of a movement that cannot but prove a benefit to everyone. The idea is without doubt a winner, and deals with the formation of an association which will provide a permanent fund for advertising purposes. The fact that it is worked on a percentage basis makes it most equitable, and although there were about fifty-five representative florists at the meeting who were all going to pay, not a dissenting voice was heard. While a tentative organization was formed and placed in the hands of competent men, the actual formation of the association will not take place for a week or two, at which time definite plans will be formulated and the work started in earnest. All in the trade are expected to take part. Everyone is more than optimistic as to the outcome.

The annual state fair started Monday, September 10. As usual, the exhibitors in the trade were on deck with a good showing, but at this writing it is difficult to furnish a list of the exhibitors.

F. H. Holton spent the week end at the home of A. Zender, Rogers Park, Ill., where Mrs. Holton and their daughter Ruth have been visiting.

L. Turner, Jr., Kenosha, Wis., was in town September 7, to say good-bye to his friends, as he leaves for the front at an early date.

Joseph Clarkson, of Manistee, Mich., spent several days in Milwaukee last week.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was in town September 8. H. J. S.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Utica, N. Y., was not represented at the S. A. F. convention, although John A. Evans, of ventilator fame, made a strong effort to take along a delegation. Mr. Evans had a pleasant visit with Dr. W. A. Rowlands, going over the Rowlands carnation houses. The doctor reciprocated by attending to an ailment of his friend, sending him on his way to Manhattan much relieved. Press of business kept the doctor at home.

Frank C. Baker, of Utica, was also prevented from attending, or would doubtless have given his views on publicity, as he is a liberal advertiser in the local papers. He considers this the best means of reaching the buying public. He has resigned the agency of the National Florist and pays tribute to the F. T. D.; "but," observed Mrs. Baker, glancing up from the ledger, "one drawback is that we receive so many telegraph orders from florists who are poor payers, yet we cannot refuse to fill them. The list needs revising; it has some in our own town who are out of business." The mayoralty bee is buzzing in the ear of our confrere, who has been out of politics for two years. A strong plank in his platform will be more public parks and gardens. His previous administration will doubtless aid him in getting elected.

Manager Day, of Ebeling's Seed Store, of Syracuse, observed that never before in his long experience had business been so good, and next year promises to be just such another as this has been.

Joseph Traudt entertained the Albany Florists' Club at his handsome place at Canajoharie, N. Y., September 1. The trip was made by auto, and following a tour of the range, all partook of the host's hospitality, which is proverbial. He gave an interesting account of the S. A. F. convention, to which he was accompanied by J. O. Graham, of Little Falls, who was also, with the Albanians, a guest.

George B. Hart, of Rochester, is handling some extra fine asters. Three-foot stems and large heads were noted. The season locally has been most favorable, though the demand could have been better. The exposition stirred things up some, competition in the floral section being keener than usual. J. B. Keller Sons showed a magnificent aster horseshoe in their window, amid a fine group of gladioli. Salter Bros. also displayed pieces appropriate to the occasion.

Otto Ernst, of Norwich, Conn., has secured the Moore Greenhouses and intends using them as a "base of operations" for his store. W. M.

OBITUARY

William Reid Siebrecht.

William Reid Siebrecht, of Siebrecht Bros., Inc., Seventy-third street and Madison avenue, New York, died of heart disease at his home in New Rochelle September 4. Death came while Mr. Siebrecht was asleep. Mr. Siebrecht was 43 years old. He was born in Astoria, N. Y., and was a son of Henry A. Siebrecht, who for more than fifty years has been identified with the florists' business as grower, wholesaler and retailer. Mr. Siebrecht was connected with the trade all of his working life and since 1905 had been manager of the store he and his brother, Walter Siebrecht, owned.

Mr. Siebrecht is survived by his wife and two daughters, his parents, one sister, Mrs. W. S. Monroe, and three brothers, H. A. Siebrecht, Jr., of Pasadena, Cal.; Charles W. Siebrecht, manager of the Rose Hill Nurseries, and Walter R. Siebrecht.

The funeral services were held from the home at New Rochelle September 7 and were attended by many friends in the trade in New York city. The home was filled with floral offerings, coming from florists in New York and vicinity.

J. A. S.

Julius Niednagel.

One of the veterans of Indiana, Julius Niednagel, who started a florists' business at Evansville in 1889, died at his home September 6, at the age of 68. Until the early part of last summer Mr. Niednagel had enjoyed good health, but an acute case of diabetes developed and culminated in death at the end of two months.

The decedent was born in Germany and came to this country at the age of 14. After a number of years at New York he moved to Evansville, in 1887. The business he started a few years later prospered, and today the firm of Julius Niednagel & Sons operates approximately 100,000 feet of glass. The sons, Emil, Curt, Waldemar and Fred, will continue the business.

Mr. Niednagel was well known and liked by everyone. He always seemed young for his years, was quick of step and took a keen interest in trade matters. He was vice-president of the Evansville Florists' Club at the time of his death.

The funeral, which took place September 8, was largely attended by friends, the floral tributes being unusually numerous.

E. L. F.

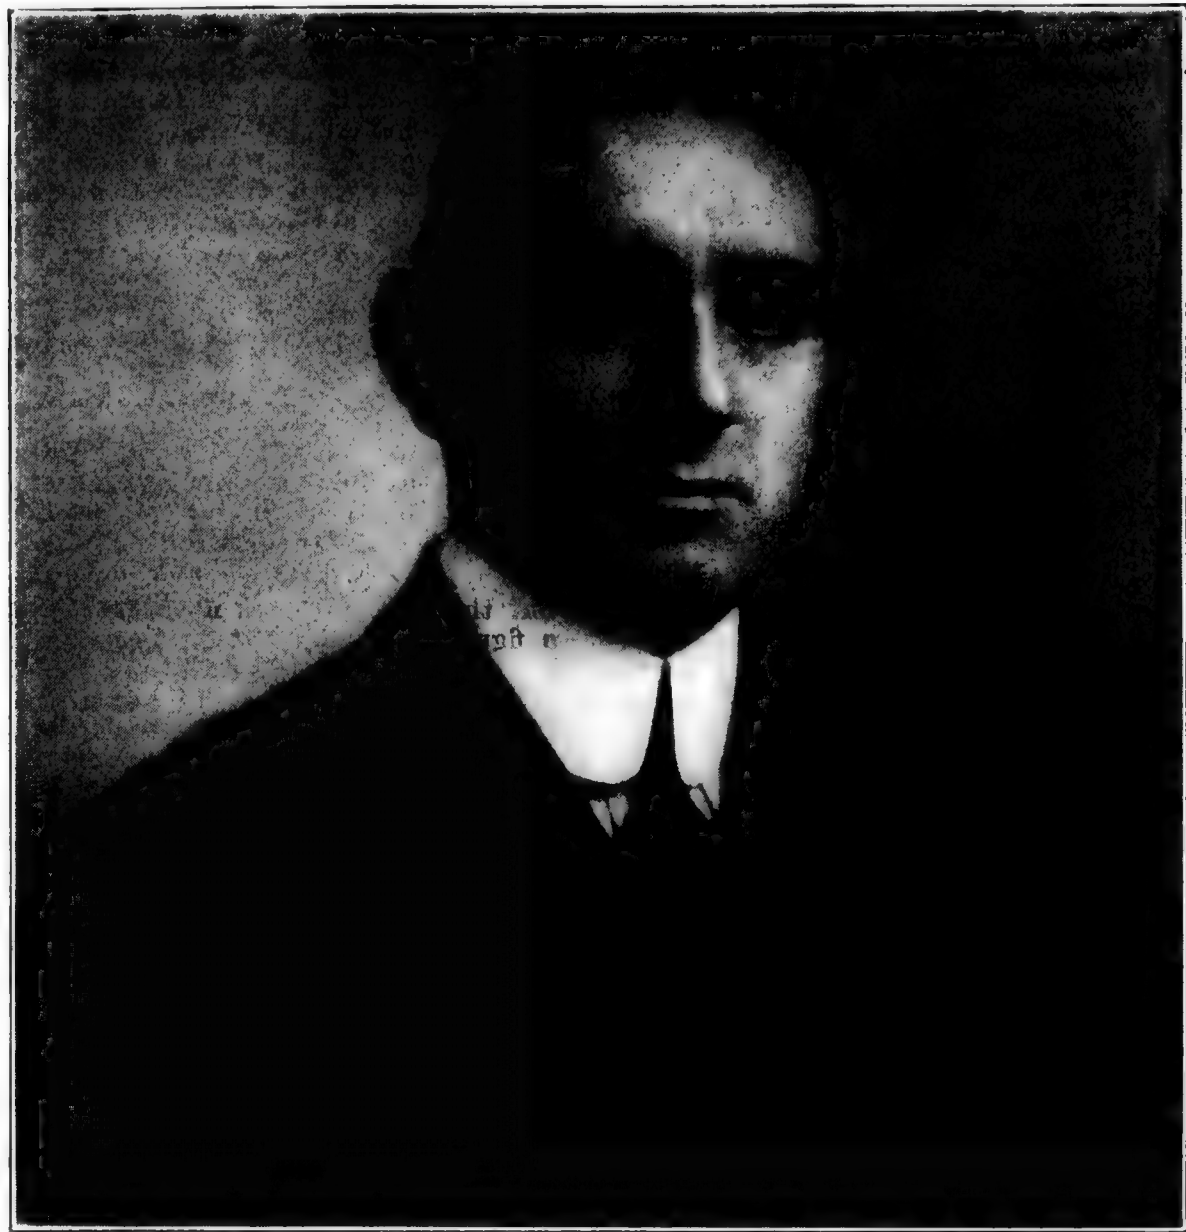

George F. Moore.

G. F. Moore, of Rushville, Ind., who had been in poor health for a number of years, died last week of paralysis. A wife, daughter and son survive. The business established by the decedent has been managed by the son for several years.

Oscar H. Will.

One of the pioneer seedsmen of the northwest, Oscar H. Will, president of O. H. Will & Co., of Bismarck, N. D., died recently at his home, after an illness of several months.

Mr. Will was born near Pompey, N. Y., in 1855. He spent his boyhood days on a farm and at the age of 15 entered the employ of a brother engaged in the nursery business at Fayetteville, N. Y. In 1881 Mr. Will removed to Bismarck, N. D., where he found employment at the Fuller greenhouse. A year later he purchased the greenhouse and established in connection therewith North Dakota's first nursery, from which he branched into the seed business. The decedent was a member of the American Seed Trade Association since 1888 and also was one of the first to join the American Association of Nurserymen. He was state correspondent for North Dakota in the interests of the first-named body at the time of his death.

William Reid Siebrecht.

Alexander McAllister.

A. McAllister, a retired florist of Passaic, N. J., died last week after an illness of several months. He was 70 years of age and before his retirement had been in the retail business at Passaic for many years. He is survived by his wife.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Announcement is made that the Fraser Nursery Co., of Huntsville, Ala., has purchased the nursery and greenhouse stock, together with all equipment and the good will of the Elmwood Floral & Nursery Co., leasing the real estate for a number of years. The change took place September 1. Oliver W. Fraser, vice-president of the Fraser Co., will have active charge of the Birmingham business, with J. P. Foster, who has been field foreman of the Huntsville nursery, as his assistant. Both parties will move their families to Birmingham at once. The Elmwood Floral & Nursery Co. has enjoyed a large business in the past and the line of ornamental plants is conceded to be one of the largest and best in the south, the stock of broad-leaved and coniferous evergreens being exceptionally fine. Messrs. Fraser will continue to operate the retail flower store in the Tutwiler hotel.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

W. F. Moreland, of Toronto, O., is tearing down his greenhouses. He will discontinue growing stock and devote his time to his store.

Miss Jane McDowell, of Steubenville, O., has had a rush of funeral work during the last few weeks.

W. Cooper, of Huscroft's Flower Shop, Steubenville, O., is spending his vacation on his farm "somewhere" in Pennsylvania.

Charles Nelson, of Wellsville, O., is making preparations for a big increase in fall business. The summer months proved good, and the future has a rosy hue.

The Brown Floral Co., of Canton, O., has purchased the store of L. F. Heitger, at Massillon, O. This gives the Brown Floral Co. three retail stores, the other two being in Canton.

J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, has turned over his flower store to his brother, and is now an officer at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind.

Fred Geltz, of Canton, is getting ready for a big flower season, additional floor and storage space having been added at the store.

The Kay-Diamond Co., of Youngstown, O., has an attractive window of outdoor things—stock, pool, frogs and goldfishes.

W. F. Moreland, of Toronto, O., is tearing down his greenhouses. He will discontinue growing stock and devote his time to his store.

Miss Jane McDowell, of Steubenville, O., has had a rush of funeral work during the last few weeks.

W. Cooper, of Huscroft's Flower Shop, Steubenville, O., is spending his vacation on his farm "somewhere" in Pennsylvania.

Charles Nelson, of Wellsville, O., is making preparations for a big increase in fall business. The summer months proved good, and the future has a rosy hue.

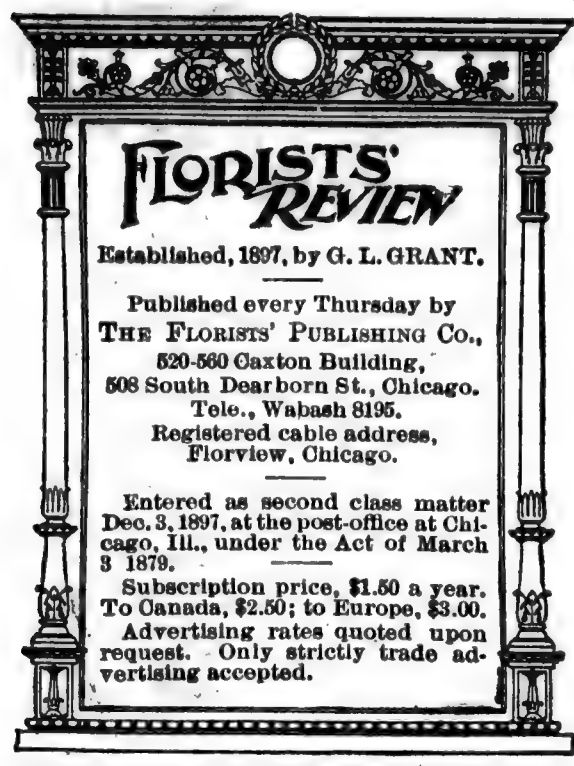

The Brown Floral Co., of Canton, O., has purchased the store of L. F. Heitger, at Massillon, O. This gives the Brown Floral Co. three retail stores, the other two being in Canton.

J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, has turned over his flower store to his brother, and is now an officer at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind.

Fred Geltz, of Canton, is getting ready for a big flower season, additional floor and storage space having been added at the store.

The Kay Dimond Co., of Youngstown, O., has an attractive window of outdoor things—stock, pool, frogs and gold fishes.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

VACATION time is past, and the busy time is near.

THE price of cuts again has been advanced. On the new scale even the smallest halftone is $2.50 and the smallest line etching is $1.25.

NOT in many years have the stocks of palms been so small as they are today, but there is every reason to think they will be still smaller before they are larger.

"REFUSE to accept the prices fixed by the government, or admit you have been lying about the increased cost of production," a leading coal trade paper warns the operators. Well, most of them have accepted the prices.

APPARENTLY the supply of cyclamens will not be reduced by cutting off the supply of German seeds. The necessity for a change in the source of seeds was so generally foreseen that nearly every large grower of cyclamens appears to have provided against it; indeed, many growers have larger batches than usual of young stock.

LARGE numbers of retail florists found the summer business this year better than ever before, the demand being made up of increased calls for funeral work and increased calls for wedding flowers. The number of wedding bouquets called for has greatly increased since the government began mobilizing the army. Few of the many soldier weddings are elaborate, but practically all of them call for flowers.

IT MAKES BUSINESS GOOD.

The business-making influence of the leading articles in The Review long has been recognized—for instance, the trade took hold of Mothers' day and made it what it is because of one of these articles—but here is a letter from a reader who puts the matter plainly:

I wish to congratulate you on the write-up on Darwin tulips in this week's issue of The Review; something to create business, to make money, as I see it. To show you that just such write-ups stimulate things, I have this day placed an order with the Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, for 5,000 bulbs, as I never grew Darwins before.—Harry C. Huesman, Reading, Pa., September 10, 1917.

The Review has two prime objects in view, to show to the trade new or unthought-of ways of increasing profits and to lead the way to a higher standard of business methods and business ethics.

CAMOUFLAGE.

Like pacifist, the war has added the word camouflage to our language, but, unlike the pacifist, who seeks peace at any price, the one who practices camouflage seeks to attain his ends by deception. Literally, camouflage means faking.

There is one species of camouflage that merits hearty condemnation by the trade. It is the practice of advertising a desirable and scarce article as a means of attracting orders for things that are common and plentiful, the offense lying in the lack of ability or intention of filling orders on the "puller" item. For instance, in a gardening publication a recent small ad offered a certain scarce variety of peony in a list of plentiful sorts. Another peony dealer wrote asking a trade price on all the advertiser could supply. The naive answer came: "I haven't any; that is just to pull orders for other varieties in the list; I either return the money for that one or substitute some other good variety."

Of course any man who resorts to such methods cuts his own business throat, because he never can get a second order from a buyer so deceived, but this slow process of elimination does not fill the need; there should be some means of quickly discouraging those who practice such methods.

A SOUTHERN BOON.

Much interest is manifested in the new military map of the United States, not only by those who are in the business of fighting, but also by those who are in the business of making money. The concentration of large numbers of men at certain points and the vast expenditures by the government for supplies will, for obvious reasons, have a far-reaching influence on the business conditions of the favored sections.

The reader of the military chart at once is struck by the wonderful things the government is doing for the south. One or more cantonments or mobilization camps are being located in nearly every southern state. In addition to the seven southern cantonments and two officers' training camps, there are twelve mobilization camps, or twenty-one army posts in all. The soldiers of all the New England states, as well as those of New York and Pennsylvania, instead of being mobilized and trained within their own borders, are being sent to the southern camps.

No estimate can be made of the amount of money these camps will put into the pockets of southerners. It will run into hundreds of millions. The pay of the soldiers in the seven southern cantonments alone amounts to $14,000,000 per month, and if the training goes on for a year it will be twelve times that figure. Needless to say, much of this money will be spent in the south. The rations for the men in the seven cantonments will cost the government $112,000 per day, and most of this will be expended in the southern markets, according to the press.

Even the building of the cantonments themselves has been a source of large profit to the southern people. Each camp required twenty-one carloads of nails and hardware, and from this item one can form an idea as to the requirements of lumber and other building materials, besides cots and mattresses for 280,000 men, refrigerators, heaters, stoves, electrical supplies and materials necessary for the building of roads and railroad tracks.

Of course, Uncle Samuel does not buy flowers for his "Sammies," and a private soldier usually is not considered a flower buyer, unless when a comrade dies. But southern florists point out that these martial activities have made money more plentiful among all classes of the south than ever before in history, and that money, the individual's possession of it, is the basis of good times in the retail field. When the farmers of the western states have money, business booms in the towns.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

As the days creep on toward fall, the wholesale cut flower market feels the awakening of demand incident to that season of the year. The continued cool weather has caused improved quality in almost all lines, while the heavy rain, which fell the latter part of last week was instrumental in cleaning up the excess of asters and bringing the market into fine condition by September 10.

There is little or no complaint to be heard about the condition of the market and the feeling in general is that this should be a most successful season. It is true that city trade has not yet awakened to anywhere near the extent of its possibilities, but much increased activity among city buyers is looked for any day. Shipping business, steady all summer, continues brisk, with demand steadily increasing.

Roses are well in crop. The quality is good and is getting better right along. There has probably not been, in many years, weather more favorable to an excellent rose crop than the cool August of this year. The supply of all varieties has increased over last week and there is plenty of stock to meet all needs, but by no means too much. Longer stems are more plentiful than heretofore and are also in best demand, short stock at times being not so easy to dispose of advantageously. American Beauties, grown in considerably less quantity than heretofore, arrive in better supply and good quality stock finds an eager market. Although the experiences of wholesalers in regard to Beauties have varied this summer, the consensus of opinion seems to be that no summer before have they sold better or brought so good a price. continues as the leader among the other varieties, with Ophelia next in line. Russell has shown great improvement in quality during the last few days and is fine, clean stock of excellent color.

With the aster season approaching its last days, carnations of better quality and in slightly increased numbers have appeared. There are still considerable quantities of good asters to be found, however, so that the buyer as yet has no need to turn to carnations, especially as the supply of good stock still is limited.

There are still plenty of gladioli arriving, but the stock on the whole appears to be of inferior quality. Taken by and large, this has not been a good season for gladioli. America has fallen from popularity and recently has made low prices. The best selling variety at present is Pendleton.

Valley arrives in quantities sufficient to meet a slightly increased demand. Orchids remain scarce. Daisies also arrive in diminished quantities and find only a fair sale.

The supply of chrysanthemums increases slowly, but steadily, the quality being exceptionally good for this season of the year. Golden Glow meets the demand for a good yellow, while Smith's Advance takes care of customers desiring white.

For the first time this year there has been a supply of dahlias large enough to be worthy of mention. But the supply even this week was only limited and demand was lacking. As the season is already advanced, no considerable supply of dahlias is expected.

There are reports of frost injury to outdoor flowers September 10 and 11, the earliest in many years.

took up growing because it offered a more healthful occupation than a previous one, while many drifted into the business because of their love of flowers. Among the latter is John C. Bauer, whose stock is sold by Kyle & Foerster. Mr. Bauer is the publisher of the Horse Review. He lives on a farm at Naperville, Ill., where he grew flowers for amusement, and for his friends. Bringing armfuls to his office each morning he encountered Mr. Musser, of Miller & Musser, who was connected with a shoe business in the same building but just then was starting in the commission business. Mr. Musser invited Mr. Bauer to send his surplus to the new firm for sale. The checks received whetted Mr. Bauer's appetite and he steadily increased his production, planting about five acres to summer cut flowers and building, with Ickes-Braun material, greenhouses with about 8,000 feet of space, now used for mums and sweet peas. Like many a man who doesn't need the money, Mr. Bauer has been steadily successful as a florist and he plans to add to his glass and his production.

Chicago is soon to have another florist, the first Japanese to engage in the business here. T. Masuda has taken the course in floriculture at the University of Illinois, under Professor Dorner. His residence is at 2949 Washington boulevard and he is preparing to open a retail store in Chicago.

The bulb trade in Chicago is much interested in the report that the steamer Waaldyk is crossing the Atlantic laden with bulbs. It is reported that the International Forwarding Co., Chicago, is the consignee of about thirteen carloads of bulbs on the Waaldyk, destined for Chicago and surrounding points. No doubt other customhouse brokers are represented and there are some importers whose shipments are consigned direct to them, so that no doubt the boat carries several other carloads for Chicago.

To harvest the crop from eighty acres of apple orchards in the Snake river

H. N. Bruns has placed an order for a new White delivery car, trading in on it one of his light trucks. The White is the largest and heaviest car used for retail florists' delivery purposes. It was one of the most popular of florists' trucks when the automobile first came into general use in the trade, but lately the trend has been toward lighter vehicles. Mr. Bruns, who drives a Packard for pleasure, is going back to the heavier type of delivery vehicle.

The Market.

Cooler weather has improved business conditions considerably, causing the demand to be more brisk and shortening the supply slightly. The variety of stock is limited, but the supply is about equal to the demand. Weddings have been the chief source of demand during the last week. Funeral work has held up well, also, and entertaining for September brides has created a demand for flowers for decorations.

Chrysanthemums — Golden Glow — have made their debut, and in the stores they bring $3 per dozen. They are of exceptionally good quality for the first of the season. Asters, of the Crego variety, continue to arrive in good-sized lots, and the quality has never before been so good; $1 per dozen is obtained for the most of them, and they are used for funerals and weddings alike. Dahlias are improving in quality, and are more abundant. They are finding a good sale. Gladioli are still seen in large numbers and are used extensively in decorative work. Fall cosmos is quite conspicuous, its coloring making it desirable for table decorations. Lilies are about equal to the demand, Harrisii being most plentiful. Roses are coming in well, and good greenhouse carnations are offered, but they are still short-stemmed. They retail at 50 cents per dozen. Aster plants are proving quite an attraction, selling at 75 cents and $1 each, many finding their way to the city hospitals. Outdoor snapdragons are of good quality, and Hydrangea paniculata is used largely in decorative work. Greens are plentiful.

The Pedestal

Many of the foremost florists in this country have acknowledged our pedestal to be absolutely indispensable. You will find it invaluable for decorating, displaying plants and floral baskets, as well as innumerable other uses. It is a most beautiful ornament in addition to being a necessity. There is nothing like it in the market.

Finished in green enamel. Range in height, 26 to 52 inches.

Price, $3.00 each.

The Wrapper

Economy is the keynote of American life today, and the Rapid Wrapper makes for economy where waste of time and labor is high, where expenditures for supplies bump the skies.

That hoary-aged bugbear of the trade, the wrapping problem, has succumbed to a new method of proven efficiency—the Rapid Wrapper method.

of Philadelphia. John Doswell reports business good, with a good demand for weddings and funerals. Miss Bon Silene Doswell will leave the first of next week for St. Louis, to visit her sister.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are showing some fine Hoosier Beauty and Aaron Ward roses. They are also cutting some excellent outdoor snapdragons. Funeral work has had a good run, and there are several wedding orders booked for the next few weeks.

Miss Wenninghoff is assisting her brother, Edgar Wenninghoff, at the store. Business has been brisk. The Flick Floral Co. had the decoration and bouquets for a large wedding last week.
The decoration was most elaborate.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is an improvement in the cut flower market. Dahlias are arriving in larger numbers and are selling well.
More than a score of varieties are offered, many of them most beautiful.
Minnie Burgle is, perhaps, the most notable addition to those named last week.
While the demand for asters is not keen,
a goodly number are sold at prices that are fair. Gladioli are plentiful. They sell rather well at low figures, usually $3 per hundred. The asters really deserve more mention. Choice stock brings $3 and $4 per hundred and a few of these make $5 per hundred. Good asters bring $2 per hundred, while ordinary and poor flowers beg at any price and then do not always sell. Sometimes they job and sometimes they waste.

Roses are plentiful in the shorter lengths; there is not a large quantity of good stock. There is a fair number of lilies, but little valley and few orchids. The badness of the express service is a serious drawback, particularly west and south. East the service has been fair.

An Early Easter.

The social season of 1917-18 will last just seventy-seven days, reckoning from Thanksgiving day, Thursday, November 29, until the commencement of Lent on Ash Wednesday, February 13.
Easter will fall on Sunday, March 31, nine days earlier than this year. Christmas and New Year's will both fall on Tuesday, a day of the week that will require special preparation by both retailers and wholesalers for handling their business.

The Bulb Outlook.

There have been many stories current regarding the failure of Dutch bulbs to reach this country. It was said there was an embargo on Dutch bulbs; that they were being used for food and so on.

Information from reliable sources in this city is to the effect that the bulbs are sure to be here in large numbers this week. The steamer Waaldyk is said to have sailed from Rotterdam September 5 bound for New York with 26,000 cases of bulbs and a Dutch commission on board. This now fashionable escort is considered here as a guarantee that the bulbs are really coming. The feeling here is that the Hollanders had a scare and were afraid to risk their bulbs on a chance in these perilous times and that they never seriously intended cutting off the American market. Perhaps America had a scare, too, for some of our big men went to Washington to secure the aid of the Department of State.

Another interesting feature of the bulb situation is the probably heavy increase in the price of Japan-grown lilies. The increase in freight from Japan to this country is largely responsible for what promises to be an enormous increase in price to the growers of lilies for Easter. There are comparatively few Bermuda-grown lily bulbs and the crop of Formosa lilies is said to be short, so chief reliance is placed on the Japanese bulbs for next season's flowers. This makes the advance in price on trans-Pacific freight serious for the bulb growers.

bring the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society an income of about $17,000 annually. It is possible, however, that the trustees of this, the Miss Elizabeth Schaffer fund, may decide to purchase a home for the society, in which case part of the principal of about $340,000 would be used. Secretary Rust says that the present idea is to increase the scope of the society's work by holding shows in different parts of the city where suitable halls can be rented. Mr. Rust adds that the schedule of lectures for the coming season is almost complete. The office of the society is in the Finance building, on South Penn Square.

to be a Mason of the thirty-second degree last week's meeting of the Florists' Club must have seemed homelike. To those who are not, it was an experience. Room C, on the seventh floor of the Parkway building, is large, with a high ceiling. It is lighted by several large chandeliers. The center of one end is filled by a chancel-like alcove raised three steps above the floor level. On the right of this raised portion of the room were the desks used by the club's officers who conducted the meeting. Down each side of the room were two rows of solemn-looking chairs facing each other (not the officers), with a wide space between them. These rows of chairs were for the most part filled by members who looked as though they felt like visitors. There were pictures of departed heroes, no trophies, and, worst of all, no bowling alleys.

The meeting was noteworthy for two things: It was the last and most pronounced of the publicity talks that have marked Mr. Therkildson's first year as chairman of the essay committee, and it marked the close of Mr. Rust's twenty-three years of service as secretary of the club.

Publicity is considered by our leading men as a vital issue of the day. The club will push it. The resignation of Mr. Rust is due to there being other nominees for the office. Mr. Rust feels that he prefers to retire rather than enter a contest at this time.

WHEN TO EXPECT FIRST FROST.

Killing frost has never occurred earlier than September 10 south of the extreme southwestern portion of South Dakota, extreme southern Minnesota, central Wisconsin and the interior northern portion of lower Michigan. It has never occurred earlier than October 1 south of the extreme north portions of Oklahoma and Arkansas, southern Tennessee, and the mountain districts of North Carolina and Virginia. It has never occurred earlier than October 20 to the southward of the extreme northeastern portion of Texas, northern Louisiana, the central portions of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and eastern North Carolina.

The chances are even that killing frost will not occur before September 15 in most of North Dakota, Montana and the extreme northern portion of Minnesota. By the first few days in October killing frost occurs on the average of one year in two as far south as the southern portion of Nebraska, southern and eastern Iowa, southern Wisconsin, most of the interior portion of lower Michigan and throughout the greater part of New England. By October 15 it may be expected in at least half the years as far south as the central portions of Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, throughout eastern Kentucky and the mountainous sections of the Virginias.

There is one chance in two that killing frost will not occur earlier than November 1 at the latitude of central Oklahoma, central Arkansas, and the northern portions of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and eastern North Carolina. The chances are even that it will occur by November 15 a little south of the central portions of Texas and Louisiana and well toward the southern portions of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. This does not mean that killing frost will occur in the localities and on the dates specified every year, but that in the long run it occurs, as indicated, in half the years.

There prevails in some sections a popular belief that in the season when frost may be expected its occurrence is

A Couple of Comments on Ease of Installation

E. H. Sunbury, of Wamesit, Massachusetts, writes the following:

"The Skinner System of Irrigation is the simplest and easiest to install, as well as the most practical I have ever heard of."

This is what Mr. R. Scheffler, of Wheaton, Illinois, writes:

"The Skinner System can be put up by any handyman."

The Market.

Roses have begun to bloom more satisfactorily, but gladioli are on the wane; otherwise the supply of cut flowers is about what it was during the summer. There are a few tuberose in the market, but for some reason they do not sell well here. The asters are still coming in freely, though many of them are not shipped from the north. The first early carnations are appearing, but they are lacking in quality. Lilies have been in steady supply during the last year, at no time being excessively plentiful and at no time being markedly scarce. Lilies have come to be one of the real stand-bys, forming a sort of triumvirate with roses and carnations.

Valley is on the short side, but there is still enough in storage to meet the demand for some time to come. The mums in the houses are in the pink of condition, but no one attempts to secure early blooms, as there is never much demand for them here until October.

No one has received any bulbs as yet, and while the papers assure us that they are coming a good many of the growers say they want to be "shown." There will be a larger planting of sweet peas than last year, and a number of plants are being grown to supply the lack should the bulbs not come. Coreopsis, hennemannia and snapdragons are coming in for their part.

Thus far business has been exceptionally good for the summer season, although of late some of the retailers seem to feel that there is a tendency among buyers to be more economical. One thing that perhaps helped to swell the summer's business was the soldiers camped here most of the time, of whom a good many were our home boys. Soldiers may not be great users of flowers, but in the aggregate they certainly help out.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. has completed the remodeling of its store, and so great has been the change that one would hardly recognize it as the same. There is more floor space, more artistic arrangement, and a roomy, up-to-date office.

Charles Tritschler is propagating a salvia of his own which bids fair to beat America. It seems to be more

The Market.

There is little new to report on market conditions. The weather has been unusually cold for September and frosts have been recorded in some sections.
The supply of asters continues abundant and far more of these flowers arrive than can be disposed of. Gladioli, while quite plentiful, are becoming smaller and the season for these is rapidly waning. Few flowers realize more than $3 per hundred, the bulk being sold much cheaper. Roses have been selling poorly, even whites dragging badly.
Prices have varied from 50 cents to $12 per hundred, but the greater number of sales are below $3 per hundred. The quality of Ophelia, Double White Killarney, Ward, Stanley and Hadley is specially good. American Beauties sell slowly. Some short-stemmed carnations of the new crop are coming in, but prove far less popular than asters.

Cosmos is abundant and of fine quality, but it is hard to move. The same holds true of liatris, coreopsis, calendulas, helichrysums and other miscellaneous flowers. Lily of the valley remains scarce and higher priced than ever before. There is a good supply of longiflorum lilies and outdoor speciosums are now abundant and good. Few gardenias are available, but a few catleyas are coming in, enough to fill the few calls for these flowers.

Dahlia Exhibition.

While less numerous than usual, the dahlias at the annual show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society September 8 and 9 were of superfine quality. Dahlias are flowering quite late this season, and some fields are just starting to bloom, which accounts for the reduced exhibits. John K. Alexander made the largest exhibit, staging some 2,000 flowers, all of top-notch quality and embracing all classes. He secured a good proportion of the premiums. Dahlias, as usually staged, are far from decorative, and the long rows of bottles contained single blooms each. While they may appeal to some specialists, they pall on anyone with artistic taste.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. has come to the fore at recent exhibitions and on this occasion put up a charming and most artistic display of dahlias, gladioli and roses. It used many different receptacles, one to each, and the effect was a most pleasing one, well meriting the silver medal awarded. George B. Gill, son of Mrs. E. M. Gill, the veteran woman florist of Medford, showed some handsome flowers on long stems, arranged in large vases, a decorative vari-

Largest and best collection, embracing all classes—J. K. Alexander, first; Forbes & Keith, second.

J. K. Alexander, Raymond W. Swett, the Wrentham Dahlia Gardens and Thomas Cogger all had gladiolus displays of more than ordinary merit. Mr. Cogger received a certificate of merit for Gladiolus Mrs. Keur. H. E. Meader, of Dover, N. H., also showed some fine gladioli, while the Old Town Nursery Co. had a table of excellent seedlings. The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. had a good display of dahlias and gladioli. J. K. Alexander had a splendid display of colossal dahlias, the flowers being of mammoth size. Faulkner Farm was first for a collection of hardy herbaceous plants, in thirty varieties. In addition to cut flowers, there was a good exhibition of seasonable vegetables and fruits.

Various Notes.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will hold a special fruit show October 31 to November 4. The New England fruit show and the exhibition of the American Pomological Society will be held in conjunction with the Boston exhibition. There is an extended prize list and many valuable prizes, which should bring out a noteworthy exhibition. This show will take the place of the chrysanthemum show, which will not be held this year.

ericas, cyclamens, boronias, acacias, camellias, euphorbias and other winter-flowering plants at Nahant are in splendid condition. Fine Golden Glow mums are coming from Nahant.

All the wholesale markets now are open Saturday afternoons. Nearly all vacationists are home and anticipate an excellent season, despite some pessimistic talk to the contrary. The summer season closing has not been at all a bad one. More outdoor flowers have come in than in former years, and there has been some waste, but prices have, on the whole, held up well. Retailers have had more weddings than ever before and while shipping orders to holiday resorts have been fewer, funeral orders have been of good volume.

William H. Elliott will address the Gardeners' and Florists' Club on "California" September 18. Mr. Elliott's addresses are always full of interest, as he is a keen observer. At the meeting October 9, one week earlier than usual, there will be talks on vegetables from several experts. A large vegetable display will be staged and will be open for inspection by the public at 1 o'clock. There will be numerous classes and a full list is now in the printer's hands.

William Sim, of Cliftondale, is still marketing gladioli in quantity. He has a batch of fine seedlings. Late asters in great numbers are coming along under glass and look remarkably well. Roses under glass will not be grown next season, but carnations have been planted more heavily. Violets and primroses also will be grown in greater numbers and sweet peas may not be grown at all, owing to the badly mixed condition of seeds for indoor culture.

when run over by an automobile and has not yet fully recovered. Business with D. & E. J. Welch holds up well. Their roses are of exceptionally fine quality.

One of the most complete collections of irises in New England is to be found at the Harvard botanical gardens. Mr. Cameron is considerably increasing his collection this fall, and it should prove educational to iris lovers. A new label system here, green with white lettering, is most commendable. It is in marked contrast to the miserable and inconspicuous labels in service at the Bronx park botanical gardens.

The William W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, is cutting a fine crop of Golden Glow mums and speciosum lilies. It has a large batch of Smith's Advance mums just coming in. The improvements started this season now are well advanced. Stocks of winter-flowering plants are in splendid condition.

September, or at least the first one-third of it, has proved cold and quite a number of tender vegetables and flowers have been frozen on low lands. We are hoping for a September heat wave and a spell of dry weather to bring war garden crops to full maturity. Vegetable crops of all kinds are unusually promising.

Those who want to see dahlias grown to perfection should visit the New England Dahlia Gardens at East Bridge-water, Mass., owned and operated by John K. Alexander, popularly known as the "New England Dahlia King."

Mr. Alexander is ably assisted by his son in looking after the twenty acres or more of dahlias in hundreds of varieties. He grows every type of dahlia, including all novelties from whatever source, and this year his blooms are of magnificent quality.

At the Reading and Wakefield fair, which opened September 12, the grange exhibits, flowers, fruits and vegetables, were judged by E. B. Wilder, James Methven, John R. Ness, W. N. Craig and Duncan Finlayson. The grange exhibits are the finest seen at any New England fair. Over $650 is offered for the best grange display, and this brings out keen competition.

R. Haley, of Malden, is cutting a superior crop of Golden Glow chrysanthemums.

Miss Helen Brown Goddard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, was married at the home of her parents September 5 to Robert Leroy Lewis. Miss Goddard is well known to many in the trade, who will wish her a long and happy married life.

the demand, although some flowers moved well and many others found their way to the dump. Prices are low on most stock. Fancy grades, however, held up well. The weather has become cooler, however, and it is expected that business now will be better. Many carnations reached the market, but they had short stems and were poor in quality, which made them difficult to move. There are plenty of good asters in all colors, but the prices are down, the best bringing not more than $2 per hundred. Gladioli still are plentiful. Prime stock brings good prices, America and Augusta being among the best sellers. The demand for King has not been good this season. Easter lilies are in steady demand, but prices on these, too, are low. Valley continues to be scarce. So do orchids. Clematis paniculata is in heavy supply and moves well, being in demand for funeral work. Tuberoses are in heavy supply, while the demand is small. There is also considerable outdoor stock in the market. Dahlias are coming in quantities. Green is in good supply and demand.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club will be held the afternoon of September 20 at St. Charles, Mo. Automobiles will be in the wholesale district at 1 p. m. to take the members. The club members will be the guests of Edwin Denker, who has made arrangements to take care of a big crowd.

mittee held a meeting September 4 at the office of Jules Bourdet, vice-president-elect of the S. A. F. It was decided that meetings should be held the first and third Tuesday of each month. At the next meeting the various committees to coöperate with this committee will be named. The members of the committee, all of whom were present, are Jules Bourdet, chairman; H. C. Irish, W. W. Ohlweiler, August Hummert and J. J. Beneke.

Henry Jenneman, E. A. Michel, Emmett McDonald and James Hauser, St. Louis county growers, have begun shipping dahlias to the local market. They all say they will have big crops.

A floral department will be installed in the Grand Leader department store. The refrigerators will be put in this week. Edwin Loyet, who is well known in retail circles here, will be in charge.

The Bourdet Floral Co. has several houses of cyclamen plants, a number of which were shipped to eastern points during the last week.

Edward Westman, manager of the floral department at Vandervoort's, has returned from a trip to Chicago and Fort Wayne, Ind., where he purchased stock for the coming season. Mr. Westman believes the outlook for a good season is fine.

W. C. Smith, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., and Fred Alves, of the George H. Angermueller Co., spent a part of last week in the western part of Missouri. They made the trip by automobile and report an enjoyable time.

August Hummert, of the St. Louis Seed Co., reports that the company received a carload of Paper White narcissus bulbs from France last week. Other bulbs are expected soon.

Frank Gorly was the last of the St. Louis delegation to arrive home from the New York convention. He reports a good time.

The opening of the new Orpheum theater created a large demand for flowers and designs. The florists say many of the designs and baskets were turned home from northern resorts where they spent the summer. On their way home Mrs. Diemer and her family spent several days in Chicago and Fort Sheridan, Ill. During her absence extensive alterations were made to the store at 1805 South Broadway.

The electric fountain and plant display in the windows of the C. Young & Sons Co. last week attracted considerable attention. Charles Young, president of the company, says his force has been kept busy recently.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held an interesting meeting at the Eleven Mile House September 5. Stock and business conditions for the coming season were discussed. The wind storm insurance, proposed at the S. A. F. convention in New York, also was talked over. The meeting, at which W. A. Rowe, the president, presided, was well attended.

Mrs. A. G. Greiner, wife of the well known grower, died at her home, 4296 Natural Bridge road, September 7, after an illness of several years. The funeral was held from the home September 9.

The greenhouse range of the C. Young & Sons Co., which was established fifty years ago by Christopher Young at Belt and Waterman avenues, will be torn down this week. The ground has become too valuable for greenhouses, and will be divided into building lots. The company will erect a new range at Olive, Mo.

The wholesale houses of St. Louis all have completed alterations and improvements to their stores, and are in good shape for the coming season. Stock is beginning to arrive in large quantities in the wholesale market.

Visitors to St. Louis last week were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lang, of Dallas, Tex., who were on their way home from an extended eastern trip which included the S. A. F. convention at New York; Charles P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan.; W. T. Smith, representing Lion & Co., of New York; A. M. Anderson, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and Sam Freund, of the Duroc Paper Products Co., Chicago.

The annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents was held in St. Louis September 11 and 12. The sessions of the convention took place at the Planters' hotel, beginning Tuesday morning and closing with the election of officers Wednesday morning. Among the entertainment features was the annual Shaw banquet, to which the visitors were invited. A local committee, assisted by a committee of the St. Louis Florists' Club, had charge of the entertainment of the convention delegates.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE supply of California-grown freesia bulbs is rapidly being cleaned up.

THE Holland-America line offices in New York have announced the sailing last week of the Waaldyk, with its cargo of Dutch bulbs. Further details appear in an article in another part of this issue.

OSCAR H. WILL, whose membership in the American Seed Trade Association dated back to the year 1888, died recently at his home in Bismarck, N. D., at the age of 62. Details are given under Obituary.

FROST DAMAGE SLIGHT.

Unusually early frosts in Michigan, Wisconsin and northern Iowa September 10 and 11 did some damage to seed crops in those sections, but it appears to have not been alarming.

Alfred J. Brown, of Grand Rapids, Mich., telegraphed September 11: "At Grand Rapids and vicinity there has been slight damage on low land, probably twenty-five per cent."

John H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis., wired September 11: "Heavy frosts the last two nights have damaged late sown fields of beans in Wisconsin; we are investigating the extent of damage."

LABELED FIELD-CROP SEED.

Buy labeled seeds, is the suggestion the United States Department of Agriculture is making to farmers, stating: "In the case of field and forage crop seeds, including cereals, corn, cowpeas and soy beans, the label securely placed on the sack or container should convey the following information: Name of seedsman; kind of seed; proportion of pure live seed present, with month and year of germination test; country or locality of origin in the case of the following imported seeds: Beans, soy beans, Turkestan alfalfa, and red clover from southern Europe and Chile.

"Following conferences with the Department of Agriculture, the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association and the American Seed Trade Association at their conventions this summer approved furnishing the above information with all lots of field seeds of ten pounds or over. Later seventy-seven seedsmen, including most of the larger dealers, individually agreed to adopt this plan. Under this agreement the seed trade voluntarily agrees to furnish the information stated above with all field seeds they sell, including those sold in interstate commerce and in the twenty-one states having no laws regulating such sale. Seed so labeled may always be seeded at the proper rate to give a good stand under normal conditions."

AGED SEED SUIT DROPPED.

Hohenadel-Buckbee Case Ends.

The lawsuit begun fourteen years ago by the P. Hohenadel, Jr., Co., of Janesville, Wis., against H. W. Buckbee, of Rockford, Ill., which was based on a claim for damages because cucumber seeds, sold by Mr. Buckbee to the Ho-henadel company and resold, were alleged to have not come true to name, has been abandoned, according to Hayes McKinney, of the law firm of Zane, Morse & McKinney, Chicago, who represented the plaintiff in the action.

The death of Mr. Hohenadel about the time the case was tried, and the desire of the widow and heirs to settle the estate when the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the trial court on some of its rulings and ordered a new trial, are the reasons given for abandoning the case. The litigation for many years interested the seed trade and is said to have "made law" regarding the liability of seedsmen to the grower for damages that might arise through failure of seed to come true.

History of Litigation.

The Hohenadel company purchased 3,800 pounds of cucumber seed from Mr. Buckbee, and claimed that it contracted for the variety Chicago Pickling. More than 500 pounds of the seeds were resold to P. A. Marsh, of Chicago. When the

It is a proved fact that, for profit and easy doing, there is no greenhouse plant that will equal good Snapdragon. They require very little attention and seed sown now will yield continuous blooms from February until July, giving a bumper crop at Memorial, the great special flower day.

Start some seedlings today and be ready to fill all empty space after mums are done. It is far better and cheaper to grow your own plants.

crop came Mr. Marsh declared that the cucumbers were not the Chicago Pickling variety and filed a claim for $17,000 with the Hohenadel company, claiming this to be the amount of difference between the value of the crop produced and what it would have been worth had the cucumbers been the variety named.

The Hohenadel company began suit against Mr. Buckbee, alleging that, as the grower of the seeds, he was liable for the damages claimed. The trial resulted in a verdict for the Hohenadel company for $12,921.40. An appeal was taken to the United States Court of Appeals on the ground that the lower court erred in refusing to admit what the defendant claimed was important testimony. The appeal court held with the defendant and ordered a new trial, which has never been held.

One of the important points upon which the new trial was ordered and which James G. Elsdon, of Carnahan, Elsdon & Slusser, of Chicago, attorneys for Mr. Buckbee, claims "made law" regarding the relations of seed growers, wholesalers and crop growers, was that Mr. Buckbee had no notice that the seed was to be resold. This, the court held, was essential, as Mr. Buckbee's representative was ready to testify that he had not guaranteed that the seed would be of the Chicago Pickling variety, and the law holds, it is claimed, that a purchaser, who has knowledge that what he has received is not what he bought, has no right to sell what he actually received as something different.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Milwaukie, Ore.—Joe Koida, who has made a reputation as a grower of fine violets, is taking up asters, saving his own seed and seeking the finest quality by careful selection of the best flowers for seed bearing.

G. C. ROEDING HELPS HOOVER.

In its campaign to conserve the food supply of the nation, the federal government, through Food Commissioner Hoover, has selected in each state a man deemed best fitted for the work. The state federal food commissioner in turn selects as his aides in this important work men who are leaders in their business.

In California, Ralph P. Merritt, the federal food commissioner, recently selected his advisory committee, naming men from numerous occupations to assist him in carrying out the government work in the Golden State. Among them was George C. Roeding, of Fresno, who is well known to the nursery trade. Mr. Roeding long has held a leading position in the nursery trade and his selection by Commissioner Merritt will be looked upon by nurserymen everywhere as a wise move. Mr. Roeding is the president and general manager of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Inc., which has about 1,200 acres near Fresno devoted to growing nursery stock.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Beginning Labor day, a hot spell visited Los Angeles and remained during the greater part of the week. But even with this, business took a decided turn for the better and stock was cleaned up well along all lines. While funeral work continues to be the long end of the business, there has been a good demand for flowers for decorations, and the transient trade has been good.

Mums are improving daily and some fair Golden Glow blooms are in the market. This variety, while not shipping so well as the later kinds, is useful locally and for short-distance shipping. The whole crop is at least ten days late this year. Carnations are of good quality now and roses are improving. Dahlias, gladioli, rubrum lilies and some delphiniums are still in the market and good for display. The tall African marigolds, with stems two to three feet in length and heads as hard almost as baseballs, make fine stock for shipping, their lasting qualities being fine. Asters for shipping are out of the market as regards quantity. The hot weather has just about finished those that were of any account, and the seed growers who usually sell some of the flowers that come in later are hanging on to every flower. The demand for baby roses is more in line with the supply now, though these blooms are still on the long side. Orchids and valley are both scarce, being often unobtainable at any price. The odontoglossums, oncidiums, phalaenopsis and cattleyas, outside of the labiata group, do not find much favor with buyers who look upon a labiata cattleya as the only thing in orchids. Greens are still plentiful, with a better demand.

Various Notes.

Among our visitors this week from Arizona are J. S. Ackers and Mrs. Ackers, of Prescott, who usually get away for a time during the hot term. Mr. Ackers is confident that business this year is going to be far better than the average.

John Fincken, of West Washington street, reports business good and says that inquiries and future orders for landscape work give promise of a busy season along this line. In the cut flower end funeral work is keeping all hands busy.

The H. N. Gage Co. is beginning to cut blooms from a collection of about fifty varieties of dahlias. The colors are fine and they should prove winners.

Manager Grover, of the cut flower department at Howard & Smith's, says there is already an advance in business, which keeps the staff going at full speed.

The L. A. Floral Co. reports that the shipping business is picking up and that stock is improving in quality. F. Sperry has recovered and is on the job daily.

At the Southern California Cut Flower Co. store, H. Hansen has been putting in some decorative windows.

A recent one with light blue delphinium and giant African marigolds was especially artistic and attractive.

The Broadway Florist reports big business in funeral work.

At Wright's Flower Shop everyone who is back from his vacation is kept on the jump, the biggest trouble being to get enough of some of the high-grade stock required.

An increase in shipping orders is noted at the S. Murata & Co. establishment. S. Murata at this writing is still on his vacation.

Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson report a busy time, and as Morris was again seen working the other day there must be something to it.

Tony Tassano, of Tassano Bros., says that their change of location has proved a good one. They have a handsome, light store and ample room, with a good mezzanine floor for office purposes.

M. Meyberg, secretary-treasurer of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., has returned from his eastern trip. He reports a pleasant time and looks much better for the change.

Miss Mary Rohr has gone out of the flower business and closed her store on Estrella street.

E. Hunt is putting steam pipes in his new houses at Ramona Acres. He expects to grow cucumbers this winter.

Darling's Flower Shop reports increased business. Manager Wallace Boyd is going around with a fine coat of tan put on during his fishing trip. Mr. Boyd got in on the mackerel run and has enough salted down to last him for the winter.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held at Kruckeberg's hall, September 5, but owing to the small number of members present the paper on annuals, by

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The principal change in the market last week was the increasing supply of chrysanthemums. Several varieties now are coming in heavily and the flowers are becoming large and well formed. The stems are particularly good this season, and the colors leave nothing to be desired, the whites being clear and clean and the yellows a rich shade. The varieties most in evidence are Monrovia, Golden Glow and October Frost. The offerings clean up closely from day to day at rather firm prices. None of the pink varieties has put in an appearance as yet, but some of this color will be ready to cut within a few days. While the chrysanthemums are fine for the early season, some of the shippers are holding off in making large shipments to far distant points, in the belief that the flowers are still too soft to reach their destinations in first-class condition, which might have a tendency to discourage later business.

Interest in asters seems to be weakening, but extremely large arrivals continue to find an outlet each day, either through the usual retail channels or out-of-town shipments. Little, if any, good stock finds its way to the dump. Dahlias are at their height and the demand is active. Complaints about the roses have about ceased, as the colors are better and more of the longer grades are arriving. American Beauties are still scarce, however. Rubrum lilies are less plentiful and the market is only moderately supplied with Easter lilies. Although new-crop carnations are being cut in slightly larger quantities, good stock is still on the short side of the market. Some hold that zinnias are about through, while others claim they are holding their own with remarkable persistency. Everything in the way of gardenias, orchids and valley cleans up and there is not enough stock to go around. Violets, both double and single, are becoming plentiful, but few find their way to the street venders as yet. Boston ferns have been scarce during the summer, and now that good stock is arriving again it is eagerly sought after.

evening of September 1, was well attended. The picnic committee reported the recent outing a big success from every standpoint. Upon the suggestion of Fred Bertrand, it was voted to start a fund to supply the members of the organization called to the colors with tobacco and other incidentals, which they might be unable to secure otherwise. The proposition as first outlined by Mr. Bertrand was to include all boys connected with the local flower business, but the majority seemed in favor of confining the benefits to members of the association. A committee was appointed to follow up the matter, the members being Mr. Bertrand, representing the city members; John Gill, the bay cities; M. Poss, the peninsula.

Secretary Walter Hofinghoff announced that the society had received a medal of honor as collaborator in the spring and fall flower shows at the Panama-Pacific exposition. He was instructed to have the diploma framed.

It was decided to have a lecture and smoker at the October meeting, to be held, as usual, on the first Saturday in the month.

The evening's exhibits consisted of a vase of William Kent gladioli, shown by Richard Diener, which took ninety points, and a new seedling dahlia, shown by Mr. Burgle, which was awarded ninety points. The exhibition committee submitted its report for the last year, showing that J. A. Carbone had been awarded 750 points for exhibits during the year; Frank Pelicano 425 points and MacRorie & McLaren 378 points. In accordance with the rules of the organization, the first two named were granted first and second prize, respectively, the prizes to be silver cups.

Various Notes.

There is a movement on foot here for the organization of a retail florists' association. The matter has been taken up with a number of the leading firms and considerable interest is manifest. This augurs well for the success of the undertaking, providing the instigators follow it up. It seems likely at this time that a meeting will be called in the near future.

A new store is about to be opened on O'Farrell street, near Powell street. G. Madvig, of the C. Kooyman Co., Inc., is interested in the new retail place. The quarters are being nicely fitted up and will be ready for occupancy by the end of the week.

Miss Kate Parsons, Fresno, Cal., spent the week end in San Francisco, accompanied by the new manager of her store, Mrs. Patterson, who was formerly in business in Louisville, Ky., and more recently connected with Darling's Flower Shop, Los Angeles. This was Mrs. Patterson's first visit to the bay district and she was favorably impressed with the establishments.

Arthur Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, has been spending a week in this city, and from here will proceed to Portland, Ore., and other points in the northwest. So far as he could see thus far on his trip, the war is not having any serious effect on the florists' business. He found the trade doing a good business all along the line and looking forward to a splendid fall season. While in southern California Mr. Zirkman made a side trip to Santa Barbara to visit A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., of San Francisco, who is there convalescing from a rather serious illness. He found Mr. Rossi improving nicely, but was told Mr. Rossi probably would not return home for another month.

Henry Avansino, of Avansino Bros., who conducts a store on Geary street, near Stockton, is back on duty after a hunting trip in Lake county. He was gone about fifteen days and enjoyed the outing thoroughly. He reports business well up to expectations.

Fred Bertrand, manager of Joseph's, says they have been busy on weddings, funerals and other kinds of work.

The E. W. McLellan Co., according to Manager J. A. Axell, is receiving many inquiries from eastern florists for sample shipments of chrysanthemums, but the management is reluctant in sending out the early varieties, as they are not fair samples of what can be expected a little later in the season.

Julius Eppstein, at the St. Francis hotel, has had the cast removed from his foot and now is able to walk around a little with a cane, after having been confined to his room for nearly six weeks. He reports counter trade active and many decorations. For a banquet at the hotel to the French commission to the United States he made the French flag in flowers.

The force of the Art Floral Co. has been busy on funeral work, table decorations, weddings, etc., and P. Vincent Matraia, head of the company, reports business improving generally.

Walter Hofinghoff, of MacRorie & McLaren, plans to spend the Admission day week end at his ranch in Sonoma county. Robert Milligan, the company's cashier, is leaving on his vacation. Among the decorations handled by this concern recently was a banquet at the Fairmont hotel for the French commissioners. French basket arrangements were used and quantities of chrysanthemums. S. H. The Market.

With people returning to town from vacations, business is improving each day, and we soon may be saying again that "business is good." A steady demand for funeral pieces has helped to keep all workers busy on many days that otherwise would have been dull.

Stock is showing up better in nearly all lines. Carnations are sufficient in quantity, but the quality is not what the retailer would like. Roses are plentiful in the short and medium grades. The demand last winter for Ophelia has influenced nearly every grower to plant heavily of this variety and to discard nearly all of the other varieties. As a consequence it is almost impossible to buy a white rose or a Killarney anywhere. Orders sent to the coast cities reveal practically the same conditions there.

Gladioli and sweet peas from outdoors help out greatly, especially in funeral work. Dahlias are extremely backward this year; few blooms are seen as yet, due, no doubt, to the continued drought.

The Market.

After sixty-nine days of drought it has rained and the welcomed showers have made everyone feel better and improved business. Stock continues poor and not too plentiful, and it seems certain that there will not be many flowers in the market until chrysanthemums arrive.

Various Notes.

What to burn has been a serious question with the florists this fall. The price of wood is exceptionally high, and a supply is not readily obtainable. Slab wood costs $3.50 per cord; cord wood $5 to $6, and hard wood $7 to $7.50 per cord. The cost of hauling must be added to these prices. It is possible to get Washington mine-run coal at $3.75 per ton aboard cars. Other grades range upward in price. This coal is being used extensively in Portland. There is a shortage of fuel oil, which has greatly increased the demand for coal. However, there is an ample supply of coal.

All florists are invited to attend the meeting of the Floral Society September 18 at the Masonic Temple. A fine lunch will be one of the attractions.

The Market.

There is no novelty in the way of stock; asters, peas and carnations hold their own. The usual fall showers are starting in and will put peas out of commission if they continue for any length of time. There appears to be no valley or orchids. Roses are beginning to come in, but will not be plentiful for a few weeks yet. Gypsophila is off the market, but some florists are using the dried perennial varieties with satisfactory results.

One of the largest funerals of the year was that of the wife of a prominent jeweler. A large wedding on the same day made business lively for the florists. Saturday evening dinner dances are regular features at the Country Club and call for numerous table decorations, as well as corsages for the guests.

Various Notes.

Walter Martin, formerly with the Van Slyke & Seamons Co., has joined the army and at present is stationed at Fort Lawton.

Jim (not James) Simpson, of the Acme Floral Co., is looking forward to a fine crop of roses and poinsettias for the winter trade.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-president, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia..

THE growers are busy dividing their plants of the peony called Therese. It is in such high favor that nearly everyone prefers to propagate rather than sell.

THE trade hopes for an open autumn, believing that a long planting season between frost and freeze will go a good way toward recouping the losses in business last spring.

THE French nurseries are located in the western part of France, so have not been disturbed by the war which rages elsewhere. Leading importers expect all shipments to be made on schedule time, at reasonable freight and insurance rates. Shipments can be covered with marine and war risk insurance, and packing will be done with the usual care.

EVERGREENS AND FREIGHT.

[Extracts from a paper by J. B. Baker, of Fort Worth, Tex., delivered at the Philadelphia convention of the A. A. N.]

The importance of this subject as it affects nurserymen is not solely to determine the scientific fact as to just when evergreens are dormant, or if they are ever dormant at all. These are questions that scientists can and have settled. The reason this is a subject of vital importance just now is that some of the railroads in different sections of the country are charging, or are attempting to charge, a much higher freight rate than formerly. Some of them are construing the classification on non-dormant nursery stock as applying to evergreens, which they contend are non-dormant and hence should take the higher rate; namely, double first-class, which is about three times the rate charged for boxed dormant stock in less than car lots.

Unfortunately, some nurserymen, usually those who do not handle many evergreens, have thoughtlessly or ignorantly stated that evergreens are not dormant, thereby giving the railroads an excuse for applying the high classification. This state of affairs is not general all over the country, but is causing trouble here and there from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and unless it is properly explained and understood it is likely to become the rule with all railroads.

Bill Evergreens as Dormant Stock.

Before the union classification committee came into existence the word dormant was not used in connection with nursery stock. The word evergreens is not now used in any classification except as cut decorative evergreens. It seems to me that we are inviting needless trouble whenever we bill our goods as evergreens. All nursery evergreens are either trees or shrubs, and hence nursery stock. If we can show they are dormant, let us bill them as dormant trees, or dormant shrubs, or, what is still better, simply dormant nursery stock. If this had always been done the vexing question would never have come up; but now that it has been raised, let us face it squarely and try to settle it once for all.

and autumn after their successors have reached a high state of development. Some kinds retain their foliage several years. As far as outdoor nursery stock is concerned, there are two distinct classes of evergreens in the United States, conifers, or cone-bearing trees which have needle-like foliage, and broad-leaved evergreens. In the north and east the conifers are more generally planted.

Dormancy of Evergreens.

Some nurserymen suggest that we should drop the word evergreen and use conifer instead. But not all conifers are evergreens; for example, the larches and taxodiums. Neither are all evergreens conifers. So in considering this subject we should have in mind both conifers and broad-leaved evergreens.

HENRY F. MICHELL CO., 518 MARKET STREET, PHILADELPHIA

To arrive at the truth of this whole matter, I sought the views of the leading scientists of America and also the views and the experience of many of the leading nurserymen of the United States. Their replies are most convincing in support of the fact that evergreens are as surely dormant at certain seasons of the year as are deciduous trees, and that this is the period when they are dug from the ground and shipped.

Government Convinces Railroad.

At the risk of making this paper too long, I must present one other phase of this subject, that of rhododendrons, azaleas, boxwood, etc., which are imported largely from Europe, but now are being grown to some extent in this country. C. W. Ward, of Eureka, Cal., a grower of this class of stock, seems to have had trouble with the railroads on this question of dormancy. He appealed directly to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The result was that the railroads conceded his contention in regard to the dormancy of the nursery stock in question. This was in the fall of 1915.

Dr. W. A. Taylor, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, to whom his appeal was referred, was so impressed with the importance of this question of the freight classification of dormant nursery stock that he appointed a bureau committee of experts to give this question careful consideration and to report to him their findings. This committee reported, in short, that it could see no reason why there should be any discrimination between evergreens and ordinary deciduous nursery stock when in dormant condition, in freight classifications.

In conclusion let me say that an outsider might think this whole subject has been presented from the standpoint of the self-interest of the nurserymen only. Naturally, we are looking to our self-interest, but not in the narrow sense whereby we alone are benefited. If the railroads would grant a low rate on balled evergreens, especially in car lots, the people would buy more of them and larger ones. Instead of shipping a few 2 or 3-foot trees by express and waiting years for them to grow, the people would order by the carloads large specimens, five, ten or twenty feet high. The nurserymen would then grow large spec-hardwood cuttings, collected seedlings, ferns, vines and creepers.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—“Wheats, Grasses, etc., for Fall Planting,” an illustrated 6-page folder. One page is occupied by miscellaneous seeds, such as rye, alfalfa, clover and vetch; the rest of the space is about equally divided between wheat and grass seeds.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., agents for Charles Detrich, Sr., Angers, France—Wholesale list of nursery stock “grown specially for exportation”; twenty-four closely printed pages and cover. Among the specialties handled are fruit tree stocks, rose stocks, tree seedlings, conifers and ornamental shrubs. The lists include a large assortment of dwarf roses budded on brier.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—"New Floral Guide," the company's general autumn catalogue; an accurately compiled, well illustrated book of thirty-two pages, in a colored cover. Roses are offered in pots or directly from the field; among the other items are shrubs, peonies and other perennials, bulbous stock, ferns, palms and miscellaneous plants; also flower seeds for fall planting. Accompanying the catalogue is a folder intended especially for nurserymen, and offering "Oak Brand" shrubs, peonies and hardy climbing roses.

McHutchison & Co., New York, N. Y., agents for Vincent Lebreton, Trelaze, France—A 35-page wholesale list, devoted principally to young stock for nurserymen. The offerings comprise rose and fruit tree stocks, young deciduous and evergreen ornamentals and some conifers of larger size.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Yellow chrysanthemums reached the market last week and were welcomed by the trade. Asters are abundant and of excellent quality. Valley is more plentiful and the quality is good. Roses have improved during the last two weeks. Cosmos are plentiful. Business was good with the retailers last week, there being considerable funeral work and a few weddings. Counter trade, however, has not yet begun.

Various Notes.

Edward Scheuerman left last week for a vacation in the Catskill mountains.

Philips Bros. featured yellow chrysanthemums in the windows of their Broad street store last week. Fred Philips has returned from his vacation, spent fishing along the New Jersey coast.

A pagoda effect with a fountain in the center drew considerable attention to the windows of A. Begerow on Broad street last week. R. B. M.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy art paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

The Market.

While not to a marked degree, stock is more plentiful than it was last week. As last week was a week of sunshine, incidentally being wonderful weather for the fair, more stock was brought into bloom. Lilies are making a much better showing, but the price still holds up well to $1 per dozen.

Roses are arriving in good supply and are of good quality, but rather short of stem. Asters have greatly improved; there are some extra fine ones in the market. Comparatively few dahlias for this time of year are putting in their appearance, and they are not of superior quality.

With the advent of September, the fall and winter flowers are again seeking a place. Carnations and chrysanthemums are gradually increasing in quantity and also in demand. A few summer flowers linger on, such as phloxes, zinnias, snapdragons, buddleias and gladioli. The latter are still in good demand, but the others receive little attention.

Ferns are rapidly coming to the front and will, most likely, continue to be good property for some time. Greens of all kinds are in fair supply.

Various Notes.

The meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held September 11, at Columbus, Ind., too close to press time to permit a report. The Indianapolis florists and members left at 9 a. m. from the Tractional Terminal station.

A. W. Herre, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, visited the city last week.

Henry A. Brockmeyer, who several years ago was with the A. Wiegand's Sons Co., is on a six weeks' vacation, and during that time will be with the Hensley Flower Shop. Mrs. Clarence Greene and her two daughters will be in New York for the next few weeks.

Among last week's visitors were M. Alexander, of Lion & Co., New York, and M. A. Leganger, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. E. E. T.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has been having cool weather, which has been good for business. Stock is in sufficient supply for the demand. Roses are better and some good flowers from the young stock have reached the market. Asters have been poor, many of the flowers having short and crippled stems, while the heavy rains have soiled them. Gladioli are plentiful. Some of the flowers are good, but the majority are not worth much. Lilies are excellent, but there are not enough of them. Snapdragons and chrysanthemums complete the list of stock.

Various Notes.

Local growers have their carnations planted, but those who have plants to sell say that they are still receiving orders.

Most of the members of the trade have had their vacations.

Retailers report that business was good last week, there being considerable funeral and wedding work.

B. L. Elliott and family have returned from Oregon and report having a splendid time. While there they saw Mr. and Mrs. John Bader, who, they say, are well and happy and taking life easy.

During the electrical storm September 5, the home of Edward Weaver at Undercliff station was struck by lightning. The whole family felt the shock, but none was seriously injured. The damage to the house was slight.

While the storm was at its height Wednesday night, September 5, a burglar entered the home of S. D. McMillen, manager of J. M. Johnston's store at Braddock, Pa., and stole his trousers. The burglar searched them on Mr. McMillen's front porch, extracted $75 in currency and left the trousers and a bank book and other papers.

T. P. Langhans with his family left September 5 for an automobile trip to the White mountains in New Hampshire.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Club met September 4. The subject discussed was "Seasonable Flowers." There was a fair attendance.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL SUPPLY.

Since August 21, the date President Wilson by proclamation fixed the prices of bituminous coal, mine operators with few exceptions have adhered to these prices. However, there now seems to be a general opinion among coal producers that it will be impossible to get out of the ground a supply of fuel sufficient to supply the country's needs.

The car shortage which was blamed for the lack of supply earlier in the summer, and which it was predicted would become greater as the time came when crops, munitions and troops would be moving, appears to have been solved. Producers say they have plenty of cars, but now assert that high wages have made the miners more independent and that the laborer who actually mines the coal will not work even six days a week, when maximum production is needed to supply the demand.

Meanwhile, the government is preparing to fix the retail prices of coal, which will vary with local conditions. H. A. Garfield, coal administrator, has announced that early action will be taken on this subject. The supply will be apportioned among domestic and commercial consumers, but the action of neither the fuel administrator nor the President will in any way affect contracts made prior to the issuance of the proclamation. On these subjects Mr. Garfield says:

"The fuel administration is preparing a plan of apportionment which will secure to domestic consumers their fair share of the coal supply and at prices which will reflect the prices heretofore promulgated by the President.

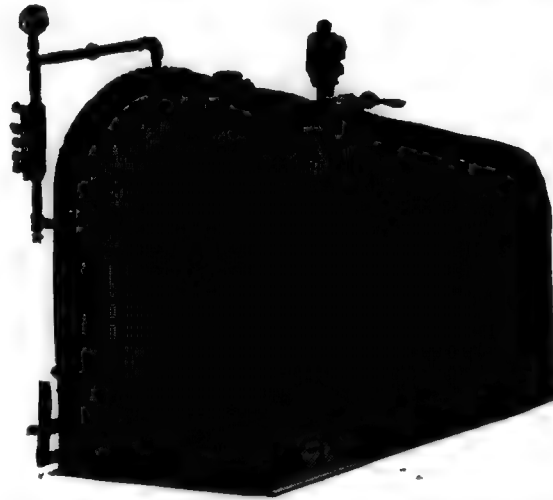

"Contracts relating to bituminous coal made before the proclamation of the President August 21, and contracts relating to anthracite coal made before the President's proclamation of August 23, are not affected by these proclamations, provided the contracts are bona fide in character and are enforceable at law."

Here is how one Chicago mine operator views the situation:

"I do not believe that any coal mine operator in Illinois is charging or attempting to charge higher prices for his product than those fixed by the President. As for my own company, when the prices were fixed we charged only these prices for coal not yet

Conserve the National Resources—Eliminate Waste in Your Business
Begin Now to Do Your Share—It will Help You and Others.

One of the biggest items of expense in the greenhouse business is the heating question. Why then for fancy's sake do you sit silently by and watch the unnecessary losses of fuel go on day by day?

IT IS YOUR MONEY THAT IS LOST—THE WASTE HARMS EVERYONE. STOP! STOP!! STOP!!!

Many practical growers have solved this vital question. YOU CAN DO SO TOO. The remedy is simple. GET A KROESCHELL—the boiler of unequalled fuel economy—it will pay you well.

Kroeschell Greenhouse Boilers are credited with many remarkable greenhouse heating records. Time and again they have proven to be the quickest water heaters and steam generators in the world. Any kind of fuel will do the work. They are acknowledged the best by test since 1879.

Mr. Wendel is surely pleased with his No. 14 Kroeschell Boiler—it is a PEACH, that is all there is to it. We surely had some winter, which we all know.

Our houses have never been below 52°, and it was not necessary to force our boiler. Best of all, we saved two carloads of coal over a year ago.

No Heat Lost With the Kroeschell.

The two No. 46 Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boilers which you furnished for our new plant surely are giving us satisfactory service. These boilers are internally fired, and ECONOMICAL fuel burners, being very fast steamers. With baffle arrangement such as you have, it consumes all the heat cast from the combustion chamber instead of letting it out of stack.

Entire Plant Now Heated by Kroeschell's Famous Boilers

We have just placed No. 14 Boiler purchased of you. This takes the place of two cast iron boilers and one 60 H. P. tubular boiler. As we were the first to install one of your boilers on Long Island, it might interest you to know that we want no other kind on our place. This makes three we have, and they do their work economically and are on the job all the time. You may use this letter in any way you wish.

"I think we are facing an extremely serious situation. As I see it, the question is not one of prices, nor of a plentiful supply of coal cars. It will, I fear, be a physical impossibility to get enough coal out of the ground to supply the demand. If we have a long, cold winter, I anticipate something like a coal famine in some parts of the country."

Between 2 and 2:30 p. m. the steam pump was cut into the line in place of the Morehead System.

Oh No!

- we don't want you to think that the above temperature chart represents greenhouse conditions
- because this chart was taken on a high pressure line
- but it brings out graphically the great advantages of the

Morehead Back to Boiler SYSTEM

over a steam pump for steam line drainage and boiler feeding.

Substituted for pumps, the Morehead System will keep all steam pipes clear of condensation and return it to the boiler as pure, hot feed water quicker and on 90% less steam than a steam pump will do it.

The installation expense is small—the results great. It matters not whether your institution is large or small, the Morehead System will save sufficient to pay for itself in a few months' time. Letters in our files prove this. Let us tell you about it.

and south and measures 25x87, eight feet high to the eaves and fifteen feet to the ridge. It is heated by an Ideal No. 5 hot water boiler, located at the north end. The top of the boiler is about two feet lower than the return pipes. At present there is a 4-inch flow pipe from the boiler, placed about eighteen inches below the ridge, and there are sixteen 2-inch return pipes, four under each of the four benches.

Our plan is to remove the 4-inch flow pipe and replace it with two 2-inch flow pipes. We also propose to remove two of the return pipes, one from under each of the center benches, thus reducing the number of returns to fourteen. Our idea is to get quicker circulation, so as to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. With our present system it takes about three hours to get a circulation after the fire has been allowed to become low.

K. F. C.—N. Y.

The plan suggested in the foregoing inquiry would give a slower rather than a quicker circulation. For the best results not more than 200 square feet of hot water circulation should be supplied by a 2-inch flow pipe, and the proposed arrangement would give about 900 square feet, or 450 to each 2-inch flow pipe.

The amount of glass in each wall is not stated, but from the height of the eaves we infer that there are at least four feet and probably five feet of glass in each wall. To heat a house 25x87 to 60 degrees, we would use 1,050 square feet of radiation, and, while 2-inch flow pipes might be put in, we would prefer four 2½-inch pipes for flows in a house of this length. Place one flow pipe upon each plate and the others either below the purlins or under the ridge, as will be most convenient. While fourteen 2-inch returns would probably answer, better and quicker results may be secured if the sixteen now in place are retained.

Another way of correcting the difficulty would be to retain the present 4-inch flow pipe and use it for supplying the coils under the two middle benches, and put in two additional 2½-inch flow pipes, placing them on the plates and using them to supply the two side coils. In case there is little or no glass in the side walls, will answer if two of the present returns are taken out, removing one from each of the middle coils, and these could be placed on the plates and used to supply the side coils.

By running all flow pipes downhill it is possible to hasten the circulation, and if the expansion is connected with the highest point in the system there will be no occasion for using air valves.

The Market.

Last week we had some chilly nights, and the vacationists are coming back into harness.

Roses are not so plentiful as they should be, and some of those arriving are mildewed and of extremely poor quality. There has been a good demand for them. American Beauty roses are plentiful, but other stock is quite scarce. Many of the stores are pushing ferns, though the demand is not great, which no doubt is due to the fact that outdoor plants are in good condition and people have not yet turned their attention to house plants.

Various Notes.

L. H. Neubeck has some fine Cincinnati begonias in 4 and 5-inch pots; also a good stock of ferns and palms for his winter decorations.

Joseph Streit, of Detroit, was in the city last week. Mr. Streit was in charge of the Anderson greenhouses for several years. While here he was the guest of L. H. Neubeck. The two experts called on several of the local florists.

W. Kowalski, of the Colonial Flower Shop, has finished his store decorating. The decorations are handsome and reflect the good taste of the proprietor. In the window some fine golden chrysanthemums were shown.

The Lenox Flower Shop is giving special attention to its windows. Mr. Alberts returned a few days ago from a motor trip to New York.

The window at S. A. Anderson's attracted much attention last week with a rustic landscape scene.

S. A. Anderson and family are on a motor trip through the New England states.

What E. G. Hill Said That Day at "Totty's"

BY "that day" we mean our lucky Friday of Convention week. The day when over a hundred of you gave our boys such a pleasurable holiday by taking a 75-mile auto ride with them through the "Jersey Berkshires."

When ending the day's visitations at President-elect Totty's place, Mr. Hill, in making one of his characteristic earnest talks said, "Those of us who have been privileged to visit the factory of Hitchings & Company today, I am sure have found it a revelation, as I have. I had no idea of the size and completeness of their plant or the magnitude of the work they are doing. It has made me feel more than ever the indebtedness of the florist profession to the greenhouse building concerns of the country for the wonderful help they have been to the growers in so highly perfecting our structures of glass."

Being one of the concerns referred to, we might add that we go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

The Market.

Business was good last week, with better prospects immediately near. All grades of stock were offered in generous supply, particularly gladioli and asters, the late crop of the latter being unusually good. Liberal cuts of American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell are arriving daily and show marked improvement in quality. Roses are to be had now in greater assortment, including Ophelia, Sunburst, Maryland, Hoosier Beauty, Ward, the Killarneys and several of the miniature varieties. A few carnations are coming in, but to this date no chrysanthemums have arrived. Cattleyas are being offered in greater abundance, the demand being rather fickle. Outdoor stock and greens are plentiful.

Purchases of supplies and accessories on the part of out-of-town florists have increased since the arrival of September, being indicative of an unshaken faith in business conditions during the coming winter.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Cleveland Florists' Club was held at the rooms in the Hollenden September 10. Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Carl Hagenburger; first vice-president, F. C. W. Brown; second vice-president, Robert Weeks; secretary, James McLaughlin. Approximately 100 members attended this meeting and the consensus was that it was the most interesting in years. Remarks were made by I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, who happened to be in town; E. A. Wilhelmy, who gave his impressions of the S. A. F. convention; F. C. W. Brown, who gave an interesting talk upon the Hail Association, and H. P. Knoble, who spoke upon the publicity work in a most interesting manner. By unanimous consent, in recognition of her splendid publicity work for the club, Ella Grant Wilson was elected an honorary member. Reports of committees for the November flower show were received and in every instance showed that preparations for the big event were well under way.

Various Notes.

In addition to the prevailing high price of coal, the scarcity of greenhouse help offers another trying problem for florists, several reporting their inability to house carnations on this account.

Bert Evans has resigned from the staff of the Gasser retail store and has taken a position with Jacob Schulz, Louisville, Ky., beginning September 15.

W. C. Cook, Cleveland representative of Stumpp & Walter Co., returned September 7 from a business trip through the east. Mr. Cook reports that, notwithstanding the many handicaps placed upon the trade by war conditions, he was impressed by the spirit of optimism shown by every florist with whom he came in contact.

John Ahern, brother of W. F. Ahern, of the Imperial Greenhouses, has opened a flower store at Norton's old stand, Akron.

Jos. A. Urig, Alliance, O., made a business trip to the wholesale market last week.

F. R. Williams, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., and William Kruessen, of Smith & Feters Co., have returned to their respective duties after enjoyable vacations.

Visitors: Messrs. Seligman, of Wertheimer's, and Rosnosky, of Michell's.

The Market.

Business has improved since the last writing, and stock is plentiful. Asters have been of fine quality, and the best of the stock moves at good prices. Gladioli have constituted a glut, but the flood tide is abating. New crop carnations are offered, but the quality does not stack up well. Russell, Milady, Ophelia, Sunburst and Killarney, of prime quality, make up the rose receipts. A few mums are available.

Various Notes.

The Livingston Seed Co. has discontinued its retail cut flower department. The products of the greenhouses will be wholesaled, for the present, at least.

T. J. Ludwig has acquired the large refrigerator used by the Livingston Seed Co.

The Columbus Floral Co. is now controlled by a Newark, O., concern. Vegetables will be grown after the mums have been cleared. J. M.

This Tankage of ours is animal flesh, blood and bone, thoroughly pulverized.
It contains not only valuable fertilizing ingredients that are immediately available in the form of Nitrogen, but many others that continuously become available as the process of putrefaction goes on.

N. A. C. Ten-Ten Tankage is pure

animal tankage. No filler is used. It is the cheapest, safest and most quickly available fertilizer that you can use as a top-dressing for Chrysanthemums,
Roses, Carnations and all other plants
that make growth previous to flowering.
Many growers are ordering carload
lots from us.

Ten-Ten Tankage should be used at

During the latter part of last week and the first part of this week business was only fair. Receipts of stock are large enough to take care of all present wants with ease.

Roses are in fair supply, the better grades of Russell, Ophelia and My Maryland selling readily. The first of the new crop of carnations made their appearance this week. Easter lilies and the rubrum and album types are in good supply. Aster offerings are large and excellent. Many dahlias of high quality are coming into the market, and a limited number of yellow chrysanthemums are seen. Among other offerings are cosmos and gladioli. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

EFFICIENT HOUSES

Our long experience in greenhouse construction enables us to give the best in service, material and workmanship, and the purchaser of ICKES-BRAUN construction can invest without a doubt as to the efficiency of his houses. Each detail is perfected and approved—there is no experimenting with your money.

Our new "LEAK-PROOF" gutter continues to prove its superiority. In a new range of houses recently erected, for which we furnished 11 runs 200 feet long, there was not one single leak noticeable during a downpour which filled the gutter to overflowing. Have you anything similar to show?

PANSIES.

Being a pansy fancier, I have grown for 16 years for pleasure and profit. In 1916 I spent six weeks hunting a place centrally located to grow pansies for the trade. We are located about 1600 ft. up on the north side of a mountain, which gives us long hours of sun. Our dews are like rain. Soil just suits pansies. Makes them short and bunchy and we are growing a million and giving our customers the best that money and skill can produce. Our gardens are perfect in every respect. Though it gets 20 degrees below zero at times, we can ship all winter. Our method of sprouting is not known to the trade. It gives strong, healthy, bunchy, thrifty plants. I am offering the finest plants that can be had anywhere, of the best strains, and our prices are based on good values. Steele's Giant Private Mastodon in bud and bloom, $5.00 per 1000; Giant, mixed, in bud and bloom, $4.00 per 1000; 6 to 8 at $3.00 per 1000; our Ozark Mammoth strain, large, for greenhouse use, $3.50 per 1000. This strain cannot be beat. Giant Trimardeau, 4 to 8, $2.50 per 1000. Our packing is perfect; light strong crates; can ship anywhere all winter; good service. Let us grow your stock and get quality. Our terms are cash, hence, good service.

Ozark Pansy Gardens, Westplains, Mo.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION.

Is a mixture of over 50 thorough-bred varieties of show and fancy pansies. It contains every giant variety known with many shades of red, bronze and new fancy varieties in large numbers, and all the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade. Hundreds of my customers say it is the best they ever had in size of blooms, great variety of colors and other respects.

I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 50 years and believe I have the largest and best stock of plants for the wholesale trade in America. The seeds were sown in light, sandy soil, thinly broadcast, with a sower of my invention, more evenly than the most expert hand can do it, and the plants have room to grow strong and stocky, with extra good roots. Plants from earliest sown seed, $4.50 per 1000; from August sown seed, $3.50 per 1000. Cash with order. Ready after October 1st.

MR. C. H. FREY, OF LINCOLN, NEB.,
REFERS TO—SEE HIS LETTER.

PITTSBURGH CUT FLOWER COMPANY

SPRAYER NOZZLE

Gentlemen:—Some time ago I got some spray nozzles and cannot remember just where I got them. There is no name on them, but they are very fine things and I want some more. I am under the impression that they came from you. If not, probably you can put me next, as I think they came from Pittsburgh. The nozzles are about 8 inches long.

Yours very truly,

C. H. FREY, Lincoln, Neb.

The best spraying or flush nozzle for roses, carnations or for all-round watering yet introduced; a nozzle which will permit regulating the force of spray. Particularly adapted for spraying the under side of foliage; will fit ¼-in. EASTERN GAUGE COUPLING. All brass, nickel plated, strong and durable, price post-paid $1.50. Cash with order.

Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas

GIANT SPENCER VARIETIES

The best that can be procured for winter flowering under glass.

Five Good California Varieties

Early Snowflake, large, pure white, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., \$1.25; oz., \$2.00.

Early Spring Maid, beautiful cream-pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Melody, soft rose-pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Song Bird, pale pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40 c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

YARRAWA

The most popular winter-flowering Sweet Pea. Color is beautiful rose-pink with a slight salmon tint. We offer a selected strain of this variety. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 40c; oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$2.25; lb., \$8.00.

Six Splendid Australian Varieties

CONCORD Spencer types

The Concord Varieties of Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas are perhaps the most advanced and finest of all. The colors are distinct, clear and true. They flower earlier than any other type, and the blossoms are of large Spencer form, with long stems. Unfortunately they are shy seeders and, therefore, the seed is scarce and expensive. We are obliged to offer in packets only this year.

Prices, any of the following:

Pkt. (50 seeds), 40c; 5 pkts., $1.75.

Concord Pink, beautiful delicate pink.

Concord Crimson, fine ruby red.

Concord Lavender, light lavender blue.

Concord White, large, pure white.

Concord Salmon, soft salmon pink.

Concord Blue, dark purple blue.

We have on hand fresh seed of Giant Flowered Cyclamen in all popular colors, also Primula, Cineraria, Calceolaria; Perennial Flower Seeds for summer sowing and Annuals for winter flowering under glass.

ORCHIDS NOW ARE GETTING THE MONEY

Orchids are becoming more and more popular with the flower buyers, and this summer have brought higher prices than ever before. Consequently orchids make an increasingly good crop for the grower. This article deals with the popular varieties and gives some seasonable hints on how they should be grown.

It has been a good summer for nearly all orchids, particularly so for cattleyas, laelias, phalaenopsis, cypripediums, calanthes, dendrobiums and vandas. The heat wave in late July and early August proved a little hard on odontoglossums, masdevallias and coelogynes, but with cooler conditions they have much improved. A year ago we had many cool nights in July and August. This year we have had few such nights and fire heat has been little needed, even for phalaenopsis and calanthes. The generous amount of sunshine for some weeks past insures well matured bulbs, and a good fall and winter crop of flowers. In spite of some contraction in the buying of cut flowers, it is noticeable that orchids have not suffered at all, and during the present summer they have realized higher prices than ever before. In this connection we might note that orchid flowers continue to sell well in Great Britain in spite of three years of war and heavy taxes, and that prices at auction sales are satisfactory and nearly as high as in pre-war times. It does not look, therefore, as though orchid growers need be unduly alarmed over the prospect of any great slump in the prices of either plants or cut flowers here.

Cattleyas.

The month of August, 1917, will be remembered as one of high prices on cattleyas. At the time of the S. A. F. convention the few flowers obtainable were held at $2 each at wholesale in New York, and brought nearly as much in other large cities. There have been an unusual number of weddings incidental to the war, calling for choice flowers, and orchids always have a call on such occasions. The prices are invariably higher in August than at Christmas. Those who had good batches of the small-flowered C. Harrisoniae, an August bloomer, made good money. That charming hybrid, C. Miss Williams, has also proved most useful. A few late Gaskellianas and gigas are about all the other varieties which have been obtainable. The first flowers of C. labiata are well advanced. These are sure to net high prices. Plants with buds well advanced in the sheaths should have a light and not too heavily shaded position at the end of the cattleya house. It is unfortunate that imported plants of this most useful cattleya get smaller each year and are mostly but small seedlings. Surely anyone with the courage to raise seedlings under glass would find it a profitable venture.

The bulbs on C. Trianae are well developed. So are those on C. Percivaliana. If these are too heavily shaded, they may take on a fine dark hue, but the flower buds will be fewer, especially on Trianae. The sun's power is gradually declining and where the shade is heavy it should be reduced. Give abundant ventilation. Cattleya houses should never be closed at this season, no matter if the nights do turn somewhat cooler. When syringing, do it fairly early in the day, so that the foliage and bulbs will be quite dry before sunset.

Calanthes.

It has been a good season for calanthes, the heat-loving terrestrial orchids. The bulbs are not yet fully developed, but are sufficiently made up so that flower spikes are showing at the base. An effort should be made to keep the foliage green as long as possible, and if cool nights come along it will pay to start a little fire for their benefit, even if it be only a fire of wood sufficient to warm the pipes and dry up the house a little. On cold, damp days a little artificial heat, with some top ventilation, will benefit the plants a great deal. Provided the pots or pans are well filled with roots, calanthes now will stand applications of cow manure water once in four or five days. I also find that a top-dressing of sphagnum and old cow manure is eagerly devoured by them. Spray only on warm, clear days, and be careful not to overdo it or leaf-spot will soon develop. Calan-thes need a fair amount of shade and love a brisk, moist heat.

Dendrobiums.

The plants of Dendrobium Wardianum and nobile with the pseudobulbs best developed are now in a light, rather sunny and dry house, where their water supply is much reduced. A syringing occasionally will keep the growths plump and an occasional watering may be necessary if we get hot weather. Gradually keep the plants drier as the season advances and heat diminishes. Plants of D. Phalaenopsis Schroederianum with the spikes well advanced must not be subjected to any chills, or the buds will drop. They should not go below 60 degrees for best results. D. formosum giganteum, the largest and finest of the white dendrobiums, is also a great heat-lover. Both varieties succeed well in a division devoted to phalaenopsis and calanthes.

Oncidiums.

Of the various orchids carrying sprays of flowers, oncidiums are the best known commercially. The variety mostly in evidence is O. varicosum Rogersii. It is not an orchid which can be carried along for a term of years in fine condition, but usually deteriorates after a few years. New importations have been few of late and the stock of this oncidium is now rather low. Spikes are well fairly near the glass. A few other fine florists' oncidiums are O. ornithorhynchum, exceptionally sweet-scented; O. sarcodes, O. crispum, O. incurvum and O. Marshallianum.

Vandas.

While there are a good many varieties of vandas, most of which need warm treatment, about the only one grown to any considerable extent for the market is V. cærulea, far and away the most beautiful of the species and the finest of all blue orchids. V. cærulea does not need a warm house. It succeeds well at the cool end of the cattleya house, in a winter minimum of 55 degrees, occasionally lower. The glass is given only a light shading over these vandas. As a consequence their leaves are not of so deep a green as many others, but they never fail to flower well. Can anything be finer than a long spike of the rich, blue-marbled flowers of V. cærulea? While a dozen large flowers to a stalk is not uncommon, we have had them carrying as many as twenty-one flowers. There are some deep green, beautifully foliaged cæruleas which never seem to flower, no matter how they are treated, and I have sometimes thought that there may be a flowerless form of this vanda, just as there are flowerless wistarias and other plants. Spikes of cæruleas are pushing out now. Protect with cotton wool from the at-should be placed under glass before the nights become too cold, as there is danger of the spikes becoming blasted. Many of the insignes, including some of the beautiful yellow forms, such as Laura Kimball, Sanderæ, Sanderianum, Ernestii and others, already are showing spikes. Like all others of this family, these succeed well in a moderately warm house, with a fair amount of shade even in midwinter. All of the cypripediums enjoy a spraying each day; without it red spider or thrips are liable to get a foothold. A few other really good florists' cypripediums are C. Leeanum, C. aureum, C. Charlesworthii, C. Sallieri aureum and C. villosum.

Cœlogyne Cristata.

Cœlogyne cristata does not want a warm house. It is a cool orchid and will succeed better in the cold house with odontoglossums than with cattleyas. The bulbs will not be made up for some time yet. If the plants are well rooted, an occasional watering with weak liquid manure will help them materially. Keep the same ventilation on day and night and a spraying can be given on every clear day.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

The National Publicity Fund.

I suppose you have read with much interest the great movement that was started in New York toward raising $50,000 for national publicity. The central committee has been appointed and sub-committees are in the process of appointment.

To my mind, this is the greatest thing that was ever started for the benefit of the florists at large. Think of a national publicity campaign on the use of flowers along the same lines as Uneeda Biscuit, Coca Cola, Velvet Joe, Shredded Wheat and other similar products that have been given a wonderful national consumption by a national publicity campaign. None of them appeal to the people as much as flowers. I believe you realize the importance of this movement. We have now close to $15,000 subscribed, nearly all of which was raised on the convention floor in a few minutes' time. This money will be handled by our own committee, with an advertising expert in charge, and you may rest assured that every cent will be spent judiciously.

I trust the members of the trade will rally to the support of this cause. Do not wait for the committee to call, but send in your agreement to the secretary, stating what amount you will subscribe per year. You will note from a list of subscribers, how these subscriptions are running. I sincerely trust we will be able to complete this fund by October, in order to get down to business by Thanksgiving. Do not hesitate; be liberal. It is money well invested. For further information, write General Chairman George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.

CLEVELAND FLOWER SHOW.

The premiums committee of the Cleveland flower show announces that the final list will be mailed to all commercial and private growers about September 25. The following information regarding the addition of a number of advanced on some of the earliest plants and flowers are already open on a few.

This oncidium succeeds best in small, shallow pans suspended from the roof, and does not need a warm house. As a protection from small shell snails, wrap a piece of cotton wool at the base of each flower stalk. Oncidium splendidum is a grand large-flowering variety, which sells well at Christmas. To get plants in bloom at that time, give them an average night temperature not lower than 60 degrees and suspend them tacks of snails. If the surfacing of sphagnum moss is old and lifeless, give them some fresh material and try to keep it growing. Some orchids seem to thrive better when this moss can be kept in a growing condition on the surface of the pans, pots or baskets they are growing in.

Cypripediums.

new classes since the preliminary list was issued, will be of interest to those intending to exhibit:

There will be nine new classes for the rose section, consisting of fifty blooms each of the following: Mrs. George Shawyer, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Sunburst, White Killarney or Double White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty, any other variety white, any other variety pink, any other variety yellow, any other variety red. The prizes for each of these new classes will be $15, $10 and $5.

The carnation section also has been enlarged by adding classes for 100 white, 100 flesh pink, 100 light pink, 100 dark pink, 100 scarlet, 100 crimson and 100 any other color. The dark pink is to be as dark as, or darker than, Mrs. C. W. Ward. The premiums for these seven new classes will be $15, $10 and $5. This will make the carnation section much more interesting to the commercial growers.

One of the last things F. C. Bartels, who was chairman of the premiums committee, did Saturday, September 15, was to go over the final revision of the list with M. A. Vinson, the show manager. As told elsewhere in this paper, Mr. Bartels was shot and killed about 4 o'clock that afternoon. Mr. Bartels will be missed greatly by his associates, as he was most active and gave much of his time in the advance planning for the coming show.

MUST EXERT OURSELVES.

"Never before in the history of our profession," observed Philip Breitmeyer, of J. Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich., "has it become so incumbent upon its members to exert themselves to bring the knowledge of flowers closer to the public, to make them become, so to speak, instances of everyday life, so that the sentiment shall not be confined, as is now agitated, to certain seasons or occasions, but shall be continuous."

"It is not my purpose," continued Mr. Breitmeyer, "to dictate along what lines any course should be pursued. We have our own ideas, but the greatest, and what has undoubtedly been the secret of our success, is the adoption of a spirit of liberalism, first to our employees, who in their turn impart it to our patrons, who catch the spirit. And, as I sit back in my little sanctum and note the effect of this impartation, it affords me the greatest satisfaction."

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

OLD STORY UP AGAIN.

I do not believe it would be a bad idea to give some of the shippers a lecture through the columns of The Review with regard to the proper packing of plants.

Last spring we received a shipment of carnation plants which had been improperly packed. They were on the road only one night, but when they reached us they were badly dried out. The box did not permit all the plants to be packed in the bottom, so the remaining plants were thrown in on top, thereby breaking and crushing almost the entire bottom row. Another thing, the shipment was covered with rust. That is a matter which I think shippers should be more careful about.

A short time ago we ordered a number of field-grown carnation plants, but on receiving them we found that there had been little soil left on the roots and that nothing had been placed about them to retain the moisture. These had to be on the road two days, and the roots became dried and shriveled. However, we thought we would give them a trial, so we planted them as soon as received, but they began to dry up the second day after planting. They were fine plants, but the poor packing had rendered them worthless.

We have had to stand the loss in both cases, not only the cost of the plants and the express, but also the inconvenience and trouble caused through receiving plants in such condition. It does not appear fair that the purchaser should have to stand losses that are caused solely by the shippers' carelessness or neglect.

Another thing I might mention is the profit that some shippers want to make on boxes. We have paid as much as 50 and 75 cents for boxes no more than two feet wide, three feet long and two feet high. Don't you think that is exorbitant?

WHAT THE WAR TAX MAY DO TO YOU

PROSPEROUS FLORISTS MUST PAY.

Only Small Earnings Exempt.

A large number of florists, employing comparatively small capital but by personal effort and ability making fair profits, are due for a jolt when they wake up to what the new war taxes will do to them.

The original idea of taxing only war profits has been abandoned and the tax has been placed on any profits that are in excess of ten per cent of the capital employed.

Aimed, perhaps, at the big trusts, the tax will bear hardest on the small business employing modest capital. Such a business is likely to earn much more than the exempted percentage, whereas the great corporations, with a few exceptions, earn little in excess of ten per cent on their inflated capital.

How Exemption Applies.

When the income tax law went into effect, the article explaining its application to a typical florist was one of the most highly appreciated and helpful The Review ever has published; it made the complicated matter plain and perhaps because of that article The Review has received several inquiries about the excess profits tax. To show how the proposed new tax will affect many florists, an example is cited here.

The so-called excess profits tax applies to every business in flowers, plants or seeds earning over $5,000, whether it is conducted by an individual, a partnership or a corporation. If the profits in the years 1911, 1912 and 1913 averaged more than six per cent and less than ten per cent on the capital employed, the average profits of those years is the basis of exemption. If the pre-war profits were less than six per cent, six per cent exemption is allowed, but if the pre-war profits were more than ten per cent, ten per cent is the limit of exemption allowed.

A florists' business using $10,000 of capital thus will be taxed at the graduated scale of rates on all profits above $1,000. A business using $25,000 capital will be war-taxed on all its profits above $2,500. But a business with $500,000 capital invested will have $50,000 exemption; one with a million invested would be exempt up to $100,000 profits.

It will be seen that the prosperous retail florist or wholesale commission dealer in rented quarters is likely to find the greater part of his profits subject to the war tax, while the concern with capital invested in greenhouses and land will not be nearly so hard hit.

A Typical Case.

Take the case of a florists' business that shall be nameless here. It was started as an individual affair, but several years ago was turned into a corporation to make it easier to provide interests for sons and other employees. The owner retained the real estate, but sold the business to the corporation for $25,000, the total issue of capital stock. Then he gave some of the shares to his employees and sold them other shares on the partial payment plan. The business was and is well managed and prosperous. On a volume of sales running from $110,000 to $125,000 per year the net earnings have been never less than $11,000 and sometimes over $14,000; the average has been enough over $12,500, which has been disbursed in dividends, so that undivided profits of $5,000 have accumulated.

Business has not been quite so good as usual this year, but the probabilities are that earnings of $12,500 will be shown after all charges have been made except those of taxes payable to the federal government. The way these will figure out if the Senate draft of the bill

Effect of the Proposed EXCESS PROFITS TAX On a Typical Florist.

This is the case of a corporation employing $30,000 of capital in the florists' business and earning net profits of $12,500 in an average year. The way these profits will be affected by the war taxes as adopted by the Senate, and almost certain to become law, is as follows:

Capital invested:
Capital stock paid in.....	$25,000.00
Surplus and undivided profits.....	5,000.00
Total	$30,000.00
Net income for the year.....	$12,500.00
Exemption (10% maximum).....	3,000.00
Excess profits subject to tax.....	9,500.00
Excess profits tax:
15% of exemption, $450@12%.....	$ 54.00
Difference between:
15 and 25% of exempt'n $ 300@16%.....	48.00
25 and 50% of exempt'n 750@20%.....	150.00
50 and 75% of exempt'n 750@25%.....	187.50
75 and 100% of exempt'n 750@30%.....	225.00
100 and 150% of exempt'n 1,500@35%.....	525.00
150 and 200% of exempt'n 1,500@40%.....	600.00
200 and 250% of exempt'n 1,500@45%.....	675.00
250 and 300% of exempt'n 1,500@50%.....	750.00
Exceed'g 300% of exempt'n 500@60%.....	300.00
Total	$9,500
Net income subject to corporation tax.....	$3,985.50
Corporation tax at 6%.....	539.13
Total U. S. tax.....	4,053.63
Available for dividends.....	8,446.37

While the illustration is the case of a corporation, the excess profits law will apply in the same way to partnerships and individuals. Instead of the corporation tax of six per cent, individuals will have to pay the graduated scale of income taxes on incomes exceeding $2,000 per year.

becomes law, as now seems likely, is as follows:

Taxes Over Thirty Per Cent.

The exemption in this case is $3,000. It will leave $9,500 subject to the graduated scale of taxes. A sum equal to fifteen per cent of the amount exempt, which in this case will be $450, is taxed twelve per cent. Then a sum equal to the difference between fifteen per cent and twenty-five per cent of the exemption (not the capital, mind you) is taxed sixteen per cent. And so on up until, in this case, all the earnings above $12,000 are taxed sixty per cent. The scale, and how it applies, is shown in the accompanying boxed table.

Then there is the corporation tax of six per cent, four per cent added to the previous rate of two per cent, to be figured off after the excess profits tax is computed.

So it will be apparent that this florist will pay in war taxes over thirty per cent of his average profits and if his profits prove to be better than the average he will pay to the government 60 cents out of every extra dollar he earns.

Instead of the corporation tax, partners and individuals carrying on business will pay the greatly increased income taxes.

Short Time to Write.

If any florist should make extra money out of the war he no doubt would be willing to pay a considerable part of it to the government as his contribution toward carrying on the war, but to some, at least, it appears that the proposed taxes take rather too large a part of the regular earnings of business in no way benefited by the war. The Review has been asked who should be written to in protest. The time is short. The bill has been passed by both branches of Congress. It now is in the hands of a conference committee as follows:

Address care United States Senate, Washington, D. C.:
Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge.
Hon. Boies Penrose.
Hon. Wm. J. Stone.
Hon. John Sharp Williams.
Hon. F. M. Simmons.
Address care House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.:
Hon. Claude Kitchin.
Hon. Lincoln Dixon.
Hon. Joseph W. Fordney.
Hon. Henry T. Rainey.
Hon. J. Hampton Moore.

The probabilities are the bill will be reported within a week and passed promptly by both houses, when it will be up to President Wilson, whose signature will make it law.

TIME TO SOW SOUTHERN PEAS.

When is the proper time to sow Spencer winter-flowering sweet peas in the south to have blooms at Christmas? Which is the better method to sow the peas, in pots or directly in the beds? Which varieties do you especially recommend?
F. B.—Ala.

As far south as Birmingham, if sweet pea seeds are sown about September 1, the flowers will be in time for the holidays. I always find it best to plant directly in the beds. The best varieties in their colors I have found to be Yarrowa, pink; Orchid Lavender and Orchid White.

TRAMP! TRAMP! OUR BOYS ARE MARCHING

GETTING IN FIGHTING TRIM.

Trade Trains for Trouble.

Many florists during the last few weeks have had their first touches of what is the soldier's life in training. Many more will probably go to the cantonments before the armies that Uncle Sam intends sending to Europe are completed. The Review each week adds new names to the roster of those who have gone. Others will be going, and they, too, will have their names printed. All that is necessary is to let The Review know about them.

Flying for Uncle Sam.

George Anderson, the only son of C. G. Anderson, superintendent of the Gullett & Sons plant department, Lincoln, Ill., will be one of the 10,000 young American aviators who are expected to gain the mastery of the air in the European fighting zone next spring. He joined the officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, Minn., several months ago, and during the last three months has been flying at the aviation training camp near Toronto, Ont. He expects soon to be commissioned a lieutenant. Young Mr. Anderson—he is only 20 years old, but stands nearly six feet—is well known to the trade. He was employed in the Chicago office of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. for two years, and left two years ago when his father resigned as superintendent of the Poehlmann plant range to go with the family to Minneapolis, where he remained after his father removed to Lincoln.

Rochester Man to Go.

Max the Florist, of Rochester, N. Y., is taking a vacation visiting his many friends in the neighborhood of his home city while waiting for the summons to a training camp. He has successfully passed his physical examination and is ready to go. The management of his store will be left to an assistant until he definitely knows that he will go to Europe. In the event that he does, he will sell the business.

Pittsburghers to Camp.

A number of the young men in the trade at Pittsburgh, Pa., have gone to the army training camps. Among those who left recently was Hiram Frishkorn, an employee of Beckert's Seed Store for many years. Mr. Frishkorn left to begin training September 17. Several employees of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. greenhouses also have left. Because of the shortage of labor, the growers in and near Pittsburgh are considering the advisability of hiring women to replace the men.

J. W. Ross' Sons in Army.

Earl and Whitty Ross, who were associated with their father, J. W. Ross, in the J. W. Ross Co., seedsmen, florists and nurserymen, Centralia, Ill., have joined the army. Earl is with the national army, and left for a training camp September 5. Whitty is with what was formerly the Ninth I. N. G., which has been taken into the federal service. The departure of the two young men left Mr. Ross alone to take care of the business.

Follows Grandfather's Footsteps.

Stiles D. Woodruff, son of Watson S. Woodruff and grandson of Stiles D. Woodruff, the founder of the firm of S. A. Woodruff & Sons, seedsmen, of Orange, Conn., left September 3 for the training camp at Ayer, Mass. With another Orange youth, Mr. Woodruff was given a rousing send-off by the citizens of Orange. And not the least proud of the young men was Watson S. Woodruff, the father, who, by the way, is a member of the exemption board which made the selections. But for the war, Mr. Woodruff would have been graduated with the 1918 class of Yale University. In 1916 he was a member of the famous Yale Battery, which spent the summer in training at Tobyhanna, Pa. Six months ago Mr. Woodruff joined the Second regiment of the Connecticut Home Guard. It was an unusual coincidence that Mr. Woodruff left for war fifty-five years to the day after his grandfather and namesake left to fight for the Union in the Civil war, during which he was engaged in the battles of Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, being taken prisoner in the latter battle and spending some time in the famous Libby prison.

Five More from Denver.

Denver florists continue to go to the army training camps. Five more of the young men in the trade have left for Camp Baldwin, near the city, where they will undergo preliminary training and then will be sent to Linda Vista, Cal. They are Joseph Whalon, formerly of the Alpha Floral Co., who is in the artillery division; William Cash, formerly rose grower for the Mauff Floral Co.; Clyde Bengley, formerly with the Elitch-Long Greenhouses, and Waldo Kerl and Frank Dykstra, formerly employed at the Park Floral Co. greenhouses.

To Become an Aviator.

Charles Windram, well known among the trade in Cincinnati, O., leaves for Philadelphia September 22, to go into training for the aviation service. He successfully passed his physical examination September 17, and spent the week arranging his affairs before joining the service.

Will Aid Wounded.

Don Wadsworth, who formerly was with Martin & Forbes, Portland, Ore., has joined the army hospital corps and is in training at American lake, Oregon. He is well known in the trade there, his father formerly being the mum grower for Martin & Forbes. The latter now is working at the shipyards, helping Uncle Sam build a merchant fleet.

Evansville's Contribution.

A number of young men in the trade in Evansville, Ind., have gone or are going to the training camps preparatory to making the trip to Europe. Waldemar Niednagel has been called and expects to leave for camp October 3. George and Herbert Blackman already are at the Louisville camp. David Elsperrmann has been selected, but does not know the date he will be ordered to go.

Votaw Joins Marines.

Howard Votaw, for several years a member of the Chicago Florists' Club and widely known among growers and supply dealers of the Chicago section as the manager of the florists' department of Darling & Co., fertilizer manufacturers at the Stock Yards, has enlisted in the marines and is at a training station in South Carolina.

VALUE OF PIGEON MANURE.

Will you let me know what would be a fair price for pigeon manure that has been gradually collected for fifteen years? Would such fertilizer be good as a top-dressing for carnation soil that was poor when the planting was done?

C. W.—N. Y.

Without knowing just what condition the pigeon manure is in, I can give you no definite answer as to its commercial value. If it is dry, so that it can readily be ground up, it is worth considerably more than if it were fresh and more or less moist. Its fertilizing value should be about the same as any guano, providing it has been dry all the time, and it should be used in about the same way. I should consider $1 per hundred pounds a fair price for any that is dry.

A. F. J. B.

Washington, N. J.—Alonzo Jay Bryan, Jr., is the name of the 8½-pound boy who has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo J. Bryan. As the family already has a girl 8 years old, Alonzo, Jr., was gladly welcomed.

INDIANA ASSOCIATION

HOOSIERS MEET AT COLUMBUS.

New Insurance Plan Progresses.

An interesting meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at Columbus, Ind., September 11, the members being the guests of Charles S. Barnaby, William Irwin and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. An informal reception at the commerce rooms was followed by the business session.

After the routine business had been transacted, the following Evansville florists were elected to membership: C. E. Gysemans, E. L. Fenton, Carl Elsperrmann, C. L. Niednagel, Emil Niednagel, E. L. Lutz, O. J. Kuebler and A. J. Kuebler. Leo Rickenbach also became a member.

A. Rasmussen, as chairman of the insurance committee, gave his report of the work of the S. A. F. Herman Young in his report stated that the laws of Indiana were rigid, and that before incorporation it would be necessary to write forty million square feet of glass. He added, however, that the prospects seemed bright, as the movement had met with great enthusiasm. Literature on the subject had been mailed out, and after five days checks for more than $1,000 had been received.

The question was brought up as to whether a person carrying policies in two different companies could realize full value on both. The laws of Indiana permit full valuation of both policies, providing there is no clause in the policies stipulating adjustment between companies. There is no such clause in the proposed mutual casualty association.

Coal and Co-operative Buying.

A. F. J. Baur and Irwin Bertermann, a committee appointed to communicate with the Indiana Floral Festival Association, gave their report. The festival association, although having ceased to exist, has quite a sum in its treasury, and it was felt that the members would be glad to turn this over to launch the new insurance company. Final action was postponed for another month, as some of the members of the dissolved association were out of the city.

Secretary Steinkamp read a letter which had been submitted to the governor, urging him to use all methods possible to solve the coal situation. This was considered such a well written and forceful epistle that members wished to have it sent to President Wilson and other authorities. President Bertermann announced the following committee to report on final resolutions at the next meeting: E. E. Temperley, chairman; Charles Pahud, Henry Rodenbeck.

A new subject for discussion was introduced by Charles Barnaby. He believed that through closer coöperation the florists throughout the state could be greatly benefited in the matter of buying materials. Glass, in particular, was an expensive item, and by purchasing through the secretary, in large quantities, it was felt that better prices would be quoted. The secretary was advised to investigate this matter.

The next meeting, October 16, will be held at Evansville, Ind., under the auspices of the Evansville Florists' Club. Everybody is asked to remember this date and be on hand for a rousing good time.

Attention was called to two vases of the new E. G. Hill rose, Columbia. The blooms were exceptionally fine, with good foliage and long, rubbery stems. The bud is a little better than semi-double, and is of a pleasing shade of light pink. It has all of the good qualities of its one parent, Ophelia, with the beautiful color of its other parent, Shawyer, and with a fragrance superior to either. Mr. Rasmussen, chairman of the committee to report on this new rose, gave it high honor.

The Tour of Inspection.

After adjournment, a banquet was served at the St. Dennis hotel, whence all journeyed to the Irwin garden. Mr. Irwin, a millionaire, has left nothing undone that would enhance the beauty of his place. There is an Italian sunken garden of fine stock and rare masonry. One member of the party, who had traveled extensively, said that he had seen only one place that could compare with the Irwin garden. A quaint Egyptian well was an interesting feature, and there were numerous statues of Greek philosophers, sculptors and writers.

Four small greenhouses are conducted in connection with the estate. There are novel chrysanthemums in one, grapes in another, orchids in a third, and the fourth is devoted to miscellaneous potted plants.

The Orinoco Nurseries were interesting. Several acres are devoted to hardy perennials, and there was a wonderful field of white phloxes in full bloom.

Charles Barnaby's greenhouses and store were also visited. He has excellent Chatelaine begonias, fine asters and Easter lilies for this time of the year.

Returning to the Chamber of Commerce rooms by motor, farewells and thanks were said to the hosts. Among those present were: Harry Pahud, Henry W. Sheppard, William E. Barnaby, Edward J. Sheppard, Henry C. Rodenbeck, Carl Sonnenschmidt, Lynn Barnaby, Nixon Gano, Henry F. Freese, Herman Junge, Charles Pahud, A. D. Warren, W. A. Barrick, J. E. Stuart, Joseph H. Hill, C. O. Wilcox, Anders Rasmussen, E. H. Mann, O. E. Steinkamp, Irwin Bertermann, E. E. Temperley, Warren J. Huckleberry.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

A CONTRACT WITH AGENTS.

I note in The Review of September 6 that G. W.—N. D. is seeking an agency contract. Here is the one we use and find it covers our needs. Besides our agents feel that they have a business proposition on their hands, and there is no misunderstanding in our dealings. You will note that we have made four separate classes of orders, with the commission to be paid on each. They are loose cut flowers, designs, decorations, such as store, church and house, and plants. Our reason for these distinctions is that in decorations and plants some of the territory we cover is on the interurban electric line, and some on the railroad only. We can handle the interurban business with practically no expense for packing, etc., so can afford to pay more commission on such orders. These contracts are bound in books with duplicate copies, the latter being perforated so that they may be easily torn out and given to the agents. The originals are retained in the books, and thus are not easily mislaid or lost.

The Flower Shop, per W. G. C.

CONTRACT.

This Agreement, made and entered into this day of, 19...., by and between W. G. Coupland, doing business under the firm name and style of The Flower Shop, of Coffeyville, Kan., party of the first part, and of, party of the second part,

Witnesseth, The party of the first part hereby appoints the party of the second part his agent to take orders for cut flowers, funeral designs, decorations of all kinds, and pot plants, and agrees to pay the party of the second part a commission upon all orders secured by him as follows: Cut flowers per cent; funeral designs per cent; decorations per cent; pot plants per cent.

Price lists for all goods to be furnished by party of the first part and commission to be paid upon the basis of the last price list furnished.

The party of the first part further agrees to give prompt attention to all orders received from the party of the second part and to deliver all goods to the common carrier in good condition, and upon delivery to the common carrier the responsibility of the first party ceases.

The party of the second part hereby accepts the appointment as agent of the party of the first part upon the terms above stated and in consideration of the commissions to be paid agrees as follows: To use his best efforts in securing orders for the party of the first part and to handle the goods of the party of the first part exclusively; to keep on display in his place of business a sign stating that he takes orders for cut flowers, floral designs, decorations and pot plants; to be personally liable for all orders forwarded to party of the first part and to pay for the same on the first day of each month, irrespective of the date of ordering; to pay all telegraph, telephone, express or freight charges on goods ordered, except express or freight charges for floral designs or emblems amounting to over $5, which will be paid by party of the first part.

It is further agreed that the party of the first part may solicit orders, either personally or by mail, in the territory occupied by the party of the second part, without any liability to the party of the second part for commissions on orders so obtained.

This agreement contains the whole contract between the parties hereto and may be canceled by either party by giving ten days' notice to the adverse party.

This agreement signed in duplicate the day and year above written.

DAHLIA FETE ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO DAHLIA SHOW.

Fusion of Bodies Brings Best Show.

The second annual dahlia show, which was staged at the Palace hotel, San Francisco, under the auspices of the Dahlia Society of California, was a more brilliant success than its predecessor, and that is a significant assertion when the signal success of last year's exhibits is taken into consideration. It is necessary to use the plural when speaking of the 1916 shows, because there were two. Meanwhile those two organizations have combined as the Dahlia Society of California, which has made toward greater harmony, and is partially responsible for the larger and better show this year. Besides, the management had last year's experiences to profit by and improve upon wherever it seemed advisable.

Conditions were favorable with the exception of a street car strike, which undoubtedly kept many people away, especially in the evenings. The attendance gave no ground for complaint, however, as at times the show rooms were crowded, despite the fact that there was nearly double the space used last year. A 25-cent admission was charged, and if there was a shadow of a doubt left last year regarding the charging of admission, it has been dispelled in face of the conclusive evidence at this show that San Francisco bay people will pay to see a flower exhibit, properly staged and properly advertised.

Judges and Committeemen.

The displays filled the hotel ballroom, the corridor leading to the ballroom and some adjoining small rooms. The dahlias made a splendid showing. A sudden rise in temperature the day before the show opened was rather trying for some of the exhibitors, but they all made out wonderfully well. The large average size of the blooms caused much comment. The improvement in the amateur displays was especially noticeable. New seedlings were numerous, some of them possessing exceptional merit.

To facilitate the awarding of the prizes, three sets of judges were named. Arthur Hill, Geo. Walters and V. Podesta judged the exhibits in Class A, open to all. R. Lohrmann, William Kettlewell and F. D. Pelicano judged Class B, for semi-professional growers, and Class D, for school children. A. J. Neutraumont, A. Twitchett and L. R. Kessing judged Class C, for amateurs. The exhibits were in place early on opening day and the judges had completed their work early in the afternoon, the new plan working out nicely.

The exhibition committee consisted of C. S. Quick, Leslie E. Doolittle, Pierson Durbrow, Mrs. E. Lymbery, Mrs. W. E. Estes, L. R. Kessing, Mrs. Jessie Seal, R. C. Delameter, F. C. Burns, H. T. Henning and C. Goecker. Angelo Rossi was to have managed the show, but he was unable to officiate on account of his absence in southern California.

The Awards.

Frank D. Pelicano was awarded the prize for the most meritorious exhibit, which was a silver cup donated by C. C. Morse & Co. In this same class, Mrs. Jessie Seal's exhibit came second, and the Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm third.

Twelve peony dahlias—Miss Amy Hodgins, first; Miss Edna Spencer, second; F. C. Burns, third.

Twelve cactus—Miss Amy Hodgins, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second; Jessie Seal, third.

Twelve show—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Jessie Seal, second; Star Dahlia Garden, third.

Twelve collarette—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Miss Amy Hodgins, second; Mrs. Edna Spencer, third.

Twelve pompons—Mrs. Edna Spencer, first; Jessie Seal, second; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, third.

Six, single—Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second; C. S. Quick, third.

Twelve hybrid cactus—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Miss Amy Hodgins, second; Jessie Seal, third.

Fifty blooms, one variety—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Frank Pelicano, second; L. E. Doolittle, third.

Twenty-five blooms, one variety—Frank Pelicano, first; R. Lohrmann, second; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, third.

Twelve blooms, one variety—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; F. C. Burns, second; R. Lohrmann, third.

Three-year-old seedling—R. Lohrmann, first; F. C. Burns, second; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, third.

1917 seedling—Star Dahlia Farm, first.

Collection seedlings—F. C. Burns, first.

Single bloom—F. C. Burns, first; R. Lohrmann, second; L. J. Fenton, third.

Six yellow—Jessie Seal, first; F. C. Burns, second.

Six pink—Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second.

Six red—Jessie Seal, first.

Largest dahlia in show—Star Dahlia Gardens, first; Mrs. A. Davidson, second; L. J. Fenton, third.

Basket of dahlias—Jessie Seal, first; T. A. Burns, second; F. Pelicano, third.

Most original special exhibit—Dr. Kuykendall, first.

Most original floral design—Miss Amy Hodgins, first; Mr. Buchner, second.

Collection California dahlias—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; F. C. Burns, second.

Special exhibit awards—N. F. Vanderbilt, Mrs. C. M. Hunt.

In the semi-professional class Mrs. A. Davidson took one first premium, two seconds, three thirds; L. R. Kessing, two firsts, two seconds; Mrs. W. E. Estes, one first, two seconds, two thirds; C. Elliott, one first; Dr. L. Michael, one second; C. Salbach, one second, one third; J. H. Streeter, one first; Mrs. E. L. Spacher, one first; A. Twitchett, one first, one second.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilium Candidum.

Lilium candidum is of French origin. In the main those from the north of France, with thick scales and bulbs built well up in the center, are the best. They carry broad leaves and have wide-petaled flowers on strong stalks. The large, flat, thin-scaled bulbs often sold are not worth growing. Insist on getting north of France bulbs, and you are all right.

Do not try to grow single bulbs in 5-inch or 6-inch pots. Use 7-inch, 8-inch or even 10-inch pots and stand the bulbs as closely as they will go. Merely cover them with soil; use some sand below them. Place them in a coldframe, remove sashes and fully expose the plants. Protect them, however, from heavy rains. Leave them in the open until the plants have had several good freezings; then stand them under glass protection. Treated like longiflorums, you cannot grow candidums successfully. They need a lower night temperature when being forced, 50 to 52 degrees at night being ample. For outdoor culture plant them four inches deep and, whether to be potted or planted outside, do the work as soon as possible, as candidums are already making roots and leaves.

Paper White Narcissi.

We are likely to have a good supply of Paper White narcissi this season, and they undoubtedly will sell at higher prices than ever before, as we only seem likely to be able to get a fractional supply of Dutch bulbs. I do not think anything is gained by keeping the bulbs dry for months after being received. The earliest batch, if placed outdoors and given a coating of sand, will be all right for at least a couple of months, or, if you have cold cellar space, put all the bulbs in flats as soon as you can.

To say that these Paper Whites will come on too early is pure nonsense. Last season bulbs put in flats in October gave us flowers until the first week in May, which is surely a sufficiently long season.

Hydrangeas.

Often the lifting of hydrangeas is delayed until frost has scorched the plants quite badly. A far safer plan is to pot or tub the plants now. They always lift with good balls and rarely wilt after potting if well soaked with water. Plants potted now and placed in the full sun will make many roots before cold weather, no matter whether they are the old otaksa or the newer French varieties. If you want some handsome single heads of hydrangeas for early spring blooming, place cuttings singly in small pots now. Use a mixture of half each of sand and loam and keep the cuttings close until rooted. Both types of hydrangeas make handsome single heads if propagated in this way now.

Pansies and Myosotis.

The present is a splendid time to transplant goodly batches of seedlings of pansies, violas, daisies and forget-me-nots, either in coldframes or outdoors. I prefer wintering outdoors, using a well drained piece of land and giving the plants a mulch early in December. By carrying a certain proportion over in coldframes, an early crop of bloom is secured. There is always a strong call for small boxes or baskets of these little plants in early spring. The sooner the transplanting is completed now, the stronger your plants will be and the better they will winter.

Columbus, O.—C. S. Barnaby was judge of the "city beautiful" contest at Shelbyville last week.

THE STATE FAIR FLOWER SHOWS

NEBRASKA STATE FAIR.

The Nebraska state fair, held in Lincoln, September 3 to 7, was a whirlwind success. Never before in the history of Nebraska fairs was the interest of the exhibitors shown as keenly as this year.

The trade displays were staged in Agriculture-Horticulture hall. This permanent building, erected expressly for the display of the products of the earth, is one of the best show houses in the country. It is not only light, but its crowning feature is room.

On entering the building the visitor found himself in a spacious garden, with the patriotic colors hung overhead in great stretches. The central feature of the garden was a large fountain that spouted some twenty feet high, to fall among the rocks and on the aquatic plants that set the pool off most wonderfully. Radiating out from this pool were garden walks, bordered by the well arranged groups of decorative plants.

Lewis Henderson, of Omaha, scored highest with the best collection of greenhouse plants, Frey & Frey second and Hiltner Bros. third, both of Lincoln. Frey & Frey carried honors with their display of blooming plants, Henderson second and Hiltner Bros. third. Henderson returned to Omaha with the blue tag for his collection of ferns, while Hiltner Bros. came in second, followed by Frey & Frey. The prize money for the best collection of foliage plants went to Henderson, Frey & Frey and Hiltner Bros. in the order named.

In addition to the general display of plants, the display of cut flowers called forth much comment. The huge display ice chest was packed with the choicest of cut flowers and designs. Frey & Frey were awarded the diploma on the best collection of cut flowers and Henderson on the best collection of plants.

WISCONSIN STATE FAIR.

Trade Entries Finest Ever.

Last week the state fair was held at Milwaukee, bringing in thousands of visitors from all parts of the state, including many florists. Milwaukee members of the trade did their bit toward making the fair a success by exhibiting specimens and groups of plants and cut stock. This year there was more enthusiasm than has obtained in the past, and from comments by members of the trade the exhibition was the best so far. There is still room for improvement, however, and it is to be hoped that next year will see more retailers exhibiting and competing for the prizes offered. We can think of no cheaper way of advertising, and an exhibition of this nature cannot help but benefit the entire business.

The judges appointed to make the awards to florists were N. Zweifel and J. G. Heitman, Milwaukee, and J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis. The awards were well distributed, and following is a list of the classes and the winners in each:

Collection of plants, not less than twenty-five varieties, to cover not less than fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth

Co., second; A. F. Kellner Co., third; A. Klockner, fourth.

Palms, covering not less than fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; A. F. Kellner Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

Ferns, covering not less than fifty square feet—A. F. Kellner Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third; Edwin Hamme, fourth.

Foliage plants, covering not less than fifty square feet—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; A. F. Kellner Co., third; A. Klockner, fourth.

Plants in bloom, to cover not less than twenty-five square feet—No first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; A. Klockner, third.

Specimen nephrolepis—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; A. Klockner, third.

Specimen palm—A. F. Kellner Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Holton & Hunkel Co., third.

Wreath, not less than 21-inch frame—J. C. Arnold, first; E. Eberhardt, second; E. Hamme, third.

Basket of cut flowers—E. Eberhardt, first; E. Hamme, second; J. Arnold, third.

Twenty-five pink roses—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.

Twenty-five white roses—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.

Twenty-five red roses—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Twenty-five any other color—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Twenty-five Easter lilies—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Twelve chrysanthemums—C. C. Pollworth Co., first.

Pansies—Wm. Toole & Son, Baraboo, Wis., first.

Perennial phloxes, not less than five named varieties—A. Klockner, first.

Helianthus, named varieties—Wm. Eschrich, third.

Delphiniums, named—A. Klockner, second; Wm. Eschrich, third.

Gaillardias—A. Klockner, first; W. Eschrich, second; E. Eberhardt, third.

Hardy perennials, correctly named—A. Klockner, first; W. Eschrich, second.

Asters—A. Klockner, first.

Two hundred gladioli—E. Eberhardt, first; W. J. Moyle, Union Grove, Wis., second; Wm. Eschrich, third.

One hundred and fifty dahlias—E. Eberhardt, first; Mrs. F. D. Goodearle, Whitewater, Wis., second; A. Klockner, third.

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

The premiums at the Minnesota state fair flower show, held during the week of September 10, were divided among four Twin-City florists, Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, and the Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, Swanson's, Inc., and Herman Swanson, of Minneapolis. Aug. Swanson, of Minneapolis, was the judge of the exhibits. The awards other than those published in the last issue of The Review were as follows:

Blooming plants, covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Blooming plants, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Ferns, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Ferns, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Caladiums, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Specimen Phoenix Roebelenii—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Any other palm—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Pair pyramid bay trees—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Pair standard bay trees—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Fern dish, filled—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

One hundred asters—Holm & Olson, first; Herman Swanson, second; Swanson's, Inc., third.

Fifty asters—Herman Swanson, first; Holm & Olson, second; Swanson's, Inc., third.

Twenty-five asters—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Herman Swanson, third.

Twenty Mrs. Charles Russell roses—Swanson's, Inc., first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Twenty Kaiserin roses—Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Holm & Olson, third.

Twenty any pink roses, except Russell—Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, first; Swanson's, Inc., second.

Twenty yellow roses—Swanson's, Inc., first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second; Holm & Olson, third.

Hanging basket of foliage plants—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Window box, five feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Bridal bouquet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

Corsage bouquet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

Original design—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

Basket of cut flowers, sixteen inches—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

The Cut Flower Awards.

The exhibit of plants by florists at the Illinois State fair, at Springfield, was staged September 10, as reported in last week's Review, the cut flowers and designs following on the succeeding days. Owing to the destruction of the Dome building by fire a few weeks ago, the florists put up their displays in Machinery hall. The only firms represented from outside the city were Hembreiker Bros., of Lincoln, and Albert T. Hey. Those of the Springfield florists who exhibited were A. C. Brown, the Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, the Lewis H. Wise greenhouses, the Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Hembreiker & Cole and the Springfield Floral Co.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, was a fair and impartial judge. The bride's bouquet seemed to bother him a little bit, and, being of modest taste, he gave the first prize to the least elaborate. In a number of cases Mr. Ammann ruled out an exhibit when not fulfilling the requirements; and if there was only one entry, and it did not deserve first, he awarded it second or third premium, as the case might be.

There were renewals in several classes on succeeding days. The awards follow:

Twenty-five American Beauties—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Russell—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Richmond—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Ophelia—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Killarney—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty White Killarney—A. C. Brown, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.

Fifty roses, last season's introduction—A. C. Brown, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.

Fifty Killarney Brilliant—No first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Milady—No first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.

Six varieties of roses, twenty-five blooms each, Beauties excepted—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

One hundred dahlias—No first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. Janssen, third.

Twenty-five dahlias, double—A. C. Brown, first; no second; E. J. Nott, third.

Hardy perennials, twelve vases—No first; A. T. Hey, second.

Asters—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; A. C. Brown, second; A. T. Hey, third.

Gladioli—A. C. Brown, first.

Fifty mums, two varieties of twenty-five each—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Fifty mums, any variety—A. C. Brown, first; A. T. Hey, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Fifty white carnations—Hembreiker Bros., of Lincoln, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Fifty flesh pink carnations—Hembreiker & Cole, first; no second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Fifty light pink—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third; no first or second.

Fifty dark pink—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third; no first or second.
 Fifty Enchantress—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Hembreiker Bros., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Fifty scarlet—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Hembreiker Bros., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Fifty White Enchantress—Hembreiker Bros., first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.
 Four vases, fifty carnations in each—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 One hundred carnations, any variety, seedlings admissible—Hembreiker & Cole, second; no first.
 Standing cross—A. C. Brown, first; Springfield Floral Co., second; Hembreiker & Cole, third.
 Wreath on easel—A. C. Brown, first; Hembreiker Bros., second; Springfield Floral Co., third.
 Set piece—Springfield Floral Co., first; Hembreiker Bros., second; A. C. Brown, third.
 Dinner table—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. H. Wise, third.
 Basket of mums—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

THE STATE FAIR FLOWER SHOWS

NEBRASKA STATE FAIR.

The Nebraska state fair, held in Lincoln, September 3 to 7, was a whirlwind success. Never before in the history of Nebraska fairs was the interest of the exhibitors shown as keenly as this year.

The trade displays were staged in Agriculture-Horticulture hall. This permanent building, erected expressly for the display of the products of the earth, is one of the best show houses in the country. It is not only light, but its crowning feature is room.

On entering the building the visitor found himself in a spacious garden, with the patriotic colors hung overhead in great stretches. The central feature of the garden was a large fountain that spouted some twenty feet high, to fall among the rocks and on the aquatic plants that set the pool off most wonderfully. Radiating out from this pool were garden walks, bordered by the well arranged groups of decorative plants.

Lewis Henderson, of Omaha, scored highest with the best collection of greenhouse plants, Frey & Frey second and Hiltner Bros. third, both of Lincoln. Frey & Frey carried honors with their display of blooming plants, Henderson second and Hiltner Bros. third. Henderson returned to Omaha with the blue tag for his collection of ferns, while Hiltner Bros. came in second, followed by Frey & Frey. The prize money for the best collection of foliage plants went to Henderson, Frey & Frey and Hiltner Bros. in the order named.

In addition to the general display of plants, the display of cut flowers called forth much comment. The huge display ice chest was packed with the choicest of cut flowers and designs. Frey & Frey were awarded the diploma on the best collection of cut flowers and Henderson on the best collection of plants.

WISCONSIN STATE FAIR.

Trade Entries Finest Ever.

Last week the state fair was held at Milwaukee, bringing in thousands of visitors from all parts of the state, including many florists. Milwaukee members of the trade did their bit toward making the fair a success by exhibiting specimens and groups of plants and cut stock. This year there was more enthusiasm than has obtained in the past, and from comments by members of the trade the exhibition was the best so far. There is still room for improvement, however, and it is to be hoped that next year will see more retailers exhibiting and competing for the prizes offered. We can think of no cheaper way of advertising, and an exhibition of this nature cannot help but benefit the entire business.

The judges appointed to make the awards to florists were N. Zweifel and J. G. Heitman, Milwaukee, and J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis. The awards were well distributed, and following is a list of the classes and the winners in each:

Collection of plants, not less than twenty-five varieties, to cover not less than fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth

Co., second; A. F. Kellner Co., third; A. Klockner, fourth.

Palms, covering not less than fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; A. F. Kellner Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

Ferns, covering not less than fifty square feet—A. F. Kellner Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third; Edwin Hamme, fourth.

Foliage plants, covering not less than fifty square feet—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; A. F. Kellner Co., third; A. Klockner, fourth.

Plants in bloom, to cover not less than twenty-five square feet—No first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; A. Klockner, third.

Specimen nephrolepis—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; A. Klockner, third.

Specimen palm—A. F. Kellner Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Holton & Hunkel Co., third.

Wreath, not less than 21-inch frame—J. C. Arnold, first; E. Eberhardt, second; E. Hamme, third.

Basket of cut flowers—E. Eberhardt, first; E. Hamme, second; J. Arnold, third.

Twenty-five pink roses—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

The premiums at the Minnesota state fair flower show, held during the week of September 10, were divided among four Twin-City florists, Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, and the Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, Swanson's, Inc., and Herman Swanson, of Minneapolis. Aug. Swanson, of Minneapolis, was the judge of the exhibits. The awards other than those published in the last issue of The Review were as follows:

Blooming plants, covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Blooming plants, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Ferns, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

cago Avenue Greenhouses, first; Swanson's, Inc., second.

Twenty yellow roses—Swanson's, Inc., first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second; Holm & Olson, third.

Hanging basket of foliage plants—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Window box, five feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, second.

Bridal bouquet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

Corsage bouquet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

Original design—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

Basket of cut flowers, sixteen inches—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, third.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

The Cut Flower Awards.

The exhibit of plants by florists at the Illinois State fair, at Springfield, was staged September 10, as reported in last week's Review, the cut flowers and designs following on the succeeding days. Owing to the destruction of the Dome building by fire a few weeks ago, the florists put up their displays in Machinery hall. The only firms represented from outside the city were Hembreiker Bros., of Lincoln, and Albert T. Hey. Those of the Springfield florists who exhibited were A. C. Brown, the Brinkerhoff Greenhouses, the Lewis H. Wise greenhouses, the Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Hembreiker & Cole and the Springfield Floral Co.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, was a fair and impartial judge. The bride's bouquet seemed to bother him a little bit, and, being of modest taste, he gave the first prize to the least elaborate. In a number of cases Mr. Ammann ruled out an exhibit when not fulfilling the requirements; and if there was only one entry, and it did not deserve first, he awarded it second or third premium, as the case might be.

There were renewals in several classes on succeeding days. The awards follow:

Twenty-five American Beauties—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Russell—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Richmond—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Ophelia—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Killarney—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty White Killarney—A. C. Brown, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.

Fifty roses, last season's introduction—A. C. Brown, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.

Fifty Killarney Brilliant—No first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty Milady—No first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.

Six varieties of roses, twenty-five blooms each, Beauties excepted—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. C. Brown, second.

One hundred dahlias—No first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; A. Janssen, third.

Twenty-five dahlias, double—A. C. Brown, first; no second; E. J. Nott, third.

Hardy perennials, twelve vases—No first; A. T. Hey, second.

Asters—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; A. C. Brown, second; A. T. Hey, third.

Gladioli—A. C. Brown, first.

Fifty mums, two varieties of twenty-five each—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Fifty mums, any variety—A. C. Brown, first; A. T. Hey, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Fifty white carnations—Hembreiker Bros., of Lincoln, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Fifty flesh pink carnations—Hembreiker & Cole, first; no second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Fifty light pink—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third; no first or second.

Fifty dark pink—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; no first or second.
 Fifty Enchantress—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Hembreiker Bros., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Fifty scarlet—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Hembreiker Bros., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
 Fifty White Enchantress—Hembreiker Bros., first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.
 Four vases, fifty carnations in each—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 One hundred carnations, any variety, seedlings admissible—Hembreiker & Cole, second; no first.

TREATMENT AFTER BENCHING.

Bordeaux a Good Preventive.

When the plants have nicely taken hold of the new soil, which should be about three weeks after benching, you should give them a good application of Bordeaux mixture. A thorough spraying with this material at this time will prevent much trouble later on. The conditions prevalent immediately following the benching are especially conducive to the development of any and all kinds of fungi, from the common leaf-spot to the dreaded stem-rot. By applying the Bordeaux at this time as a preventive, you may nip in the bud a bad case of one of these diseases. Even if there is nothing threatening, no harm will be done, as it will help to sweeten things up and improve the growing conditions.

How to Replace the Dead.

Do not be discouraged if you see a plant here and there fail to grow. If you lose less than five per cent of what you plant, you will fare as well as the average. Pull up immediately such plants as you see will not live, and sprinkle some slaked or hydrated lime over the soil. That will usually be sufficient to correct conditions for the next plant you will set in that spot. Pot up about five per cent as many plants as you benched of each variety. By doing this as soon as you have finished benching, you will have plants to replace the losses early enough to have an even stand by November. Pot the plants in as small pots as practical, so they will become established as quickly as possible, and the replacing can be done before the benched plants have made much growth. A. F. J. Baur.

SALT FOR RUST.

In our carnation house we have noticed one fact we never have seen mentioned in print. The first two years we grew carnations we were troubled with rust. It was bad. Then we purchased an Evans salt sprayer to try it as advertised to keep the plants free from red spider. At once the rust disappeared, along with the spider. As soon as we awakened to this fact, whenever rust appeared we at once applied the salt spray and the trouble promptly disappeared. Growers who have trouble with rust may be interested. M. E. C.

CARNATION SUPPORTS.

The Review has received several requests this season for the address of the firm which makes a certain kind of carnation support. It is a piece of wire about eight inches long with a little curl on each end so shaped as to clasp wires running lengthwise of the bench between the rows of plants. If any reader can supply the information

The Review will be glad to pass it on to those to whom it will be useful.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

During the first part of last week roses were scarce, of poor quality and rather severely mildewed, but several later shipments were much better. Fine Sunburst and Killarney Queen roses are now obtainable. American Beauties are good, but by no means in sufficient supply to go around. Asters of second grade are plentiful and hold their own in prices, which range from $1.50 to $2.50; few of the first grade come in. Gladioli are of uniform grade and there are about enough to go around. Some shipments of French bulbs have arrived, but not enough to satisfy the demand. There appears to be considerable doubt among growers as to whether there will be enough bulbs for the trade.

There is a brighter appearance among retailers since trade improved last week. Cool days and nights are bringing entertainments into vogue again, and if this good thing continues everybody undoubtedly will be satisfied with September's business.

Various Notes.

The W. Scott Co. is remodeling its store front. From about a foot above the floor to the ceiling it will be entirely of glass, providing a splendid display space. A side room will be used for the work. In the greenhouses there is a fine stock of Begonias Glory of Cincinnati, Melior and Mrs. Peterson. Chrysanthemums, especially pompons, are in fine shape. There is an attractive lot of ferns of the Roosevelt variety.

Charles Felton received a good shipment of willow and rustic baskets from New York last week. At Mr. Felton's store an extensive line of flower holders and fancy vases is displayed. Mr. Felton reports business good. He likes to take a few friends out riding in his green "devil" when occasion permits. He showed this spirit the day of the florists' picnic, at which time he made nine persons pile in for the trip through the country.

The Palmer store on Delaware avenue is displaying fine rustic bird cages, in the conservatory, and Mr. Greiver also likes fountains.

S. A. Anderson has put in his first shipment of French bulbs. They consist of Paper White, Roman and Soleil d'Or narcissi, and early large-flowering hyacinths.

A salesman of Enomoto & Co., of San Francisco, was in this city last week offering many varieties of mums.

F. J. Baum, on Kingsley street, has a batch of 400 azaleas that are good enough to make any florist's mouth water. Last spring the azaleas were set out in the garden, where they were just a bit shaded by the buildings on the south, and sprayed occasionally.

Under this treatment they have set buds as well as any of the imported stock.

Joseph Cannon, of the Anderson staff, surprised everybody by stepping into matrimony during his vacation. The bride was Miss Celestine Kasmak, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Joe's home town. By the appearance of the store the next morning one would surely think that his fellow workmen had covered him and his bride with rice, for at least five pounds were swept up. We are not surprised by anything in these turbulent times. F. P. A.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Business continues good and all the stock that reaches the market is absorbed. Some good lilies are coming. Roses are improving in quality. Snapdragons, asters, gladioli, dahlias, centaureas and marigolds still are in the market.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Lundy and C. R. Root have returned from the S. A. F. convention in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Neiman have gone to Idaho Springs for a few days.

William Butler, of Longmont, Colo., has returned from the east, where he spent a month. He attended the S. A. F. convention in New York and the G. A. R. encampment in Boston.

Joseph Whalon, of the Alpha Floral Co., has enlisted with the artillery division of the army. William Cash, rose grower for the Mauff Floral Co.; Clyde Bengley, formerly with the Elitch-Long Greenhouses, and Waldo Kerl and Frank Dykstra, of the Park Floral Co. greenhouses, are with the cavalry. All are in training at Camp Baldwin, near Denver, but expect soon to be sent to Linda Vista, Cal., to complete their training.

Among the visitors last week were Mrs. N. Kellerup, of Leadville, Colo., and H. Hodding, of the Salida Greenhouse, Salida, Colo. R. S.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

T. J. Ludwig has purchased the cut flower department of the Livingston Seed Co., of Columbus, O., and will take charge of the entire cut flower business. The Livingston Seed Co. will devote itself exclusively to seeds and garden supplies.

A. J. Pollard, Rotarian, of Canton, has an attractive store in one of the city's handsomest arcades. Business has greatly increased during the last few months, and a bigger, better season is looked for.

Kester Bros., of Massillon, O., are busy putting in glass which a hail storm some time ago smashed. Fall stock is coming along nicely, as well as a side line of singing canaries.

V. A. Aherne, formerly of Mount Vernon, O., has purchased the flower business of the Norton Greenhouses at Akron, O., and will do business as the Goodyear Avenue Greenhouses.

McFarlands, at Akron, were busy with orders for designs. A quantity of baskets had just arrived. Baskets have become a florists' necessity, coming in every conceivable shape and color.

Adgate & Son, of Warren, O., have purchased a new truck. A bigger wartime business was the cause. Funeral work has been heavy all summer. U.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Last week saw little improvement in business conditions. The first part of the week was cool, with a slight frost in the country districts, but Old Sol bobbed up again and hot weather returned. The cold, however, failed to enliven sales to any extent.

Cut flowers arriving in the market showed much improvement in quality. Roses, especially, are good, some excellent Russells, Ophelias and Wards coming in, all of which found a good demand. Carnations still are poor, and late asters are taking their place. There is still a profusion of outdoor stock coming daily. Asters and gladioli are in abundance, with many dahlias and cosmos. A few shipments of Golden Glow mums have been received. They sell fairly well. Easter lilies have a strong demand, as does valley. There are no orchids in the market. All kinds of greens are plentiful and the demand has been large.

Various Notes.

At the meeting of the Retail Florists' Association, held at the Mission Inn Garden September 17, arrangements were made for several of the members to attend the convention of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, to be held in Detroit, Mich., October 2 and 3. President F. H. Weber is making the arrangements and any other St. Louis florists who wish to go should telephone him.

The Grimm & Gorly organization held a get-together meeting at the Mercantile Club September 18, at which plans for the coming season were discussed. Practically all of the thirty-five officers and employees were present. After the meeting luncheon was served.

The opening of the new Frank Mercantile Co. store last week created considerable business for the florists. The first floor of the store was filled with baskets and vases of all descriptions, many of them being ordered by telegraph. The Mullanphy Florists had the store decorations.

William Young, of the Young Bros. Floral Co., says that business has been good at the new store, 286 De Boliver avenue, although the store has not yet been completed.

President W. A. Rowe, of the County Growers' Association, has appointed A. P. Scheidegger, S. E. Cerny and George Hartmann as a publicity committee to cooperate with the publicity committee of the St. Louis Florists' Club and the National Flower Show committee.

George H. Pring, who has charge of the orchid houses at the Missouri Botanical Garden, and Mrs. Pring, are enjoying a vacation in the east. They will visit New York, Washington and other cities before they return.

Miss Rose Boyle and Mrs. Lily White, formerly with Grimm & Gorly, are now with the floral department at the Grand Leader.

The retail department of the Sanders Nursery Co., which is under the management of Oliver K. Sanders, has been improved with a new National refrigerator, much larger than the old one. The show house in the rear of the store is stocked with fine decorative plants.

Now that vacation time has passed, the summer schedule of the wholesale houses, which called for early closing and a half holiday Saturdays, has given way to the regular schedule. All of the houses are ready for a busy season.

P. Patton, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. force, has completely recovered from his recent illness and is back at the store.

Harry Schlechter, of the George H. Angermueller force, has received orders to be ready to leave for a training camp on a 24-hour notice. Harry says he will be ready quicker than that.

Members of the St. Louis Florists' Club who attended the annual Shaw banquet at the Mercantile Club September 12, were Jules Bourdet, August Hummert, J. J. Windler, W. C. Smith, W. A. Rowe, Frank Windler, W. W. Ohlweiler, F. C. Weber, Jr., H. C. Irish and J. J. Beneke.

Roland Hammer and Frank Sanders, who are at the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., write that they are making good progress in the art of making war, and are confident they will receive commissions.

It was reported last week that the C. Young & Sons Co. will erect a new range at Olivette, to replace the old one which will be torn down. The new range was erected a year ago.

The fall opening of the Famous Barr department store called for an elaborate floral decoration, which was made under the direction of Mr. Kohrs, manager of the store's floral department, which is now located on the first floor.

Visitors last week were Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Morris Le Vine, of Lion & Co., New York, and A. F. Longren, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia. J. J. B.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

The demand for flowers last week was steady and there was plenty of good stock to meet it. Roses are in good supply and the choice flowers sold rapidly. Among the roses that arrived were some excellent Ophelias, Hoosier Beauties, Russells, Mocks and Kaiserins. The carnation cut is increasing rapidly and soon these flowers will be important factors in the market. Easter lilies are plentiful. Many excellent late asters are coming. Among the other offerings are cosmos, rubrum lilies and gladioli. Wild smilax had a heavy demand last week. Fall openings in several of the stores created considerable business for the florists.

Various Notes.

Charles Windram has enlisted in the army aviation corps. He passed the physical examination September 17, and will leave for Philadelphia to enter a training camp September 22.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange had a good lot of Harrisii lilies last week.

J. E. Rutenschroer has been sending many good dahlias to C. E. Critchell.

P. J. Olinger spent part of last week at his greenhouses at Newcastle, Ind.

George Klotter sent his first carnations of the season to L. H. Kyrk this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mann, of Richmond, Ind., spent September 8 and 9 in this city.

C. E. Critchell furnished quantities of wild smilax to the retailers who have had the decorations at the stores during the fall openings.

E. G. Gillett was in receipt of excellent cuts of Russell roses last week.

T. B. George is moving to Woodburn avenue.

Frank Huntsman, a former Cincinnati florist, died last week. His family has the sympathy of many friends in the trade here.

E. G. Gillett left September 19 on a business trip through the northern states.

The Wm. Murphy Co. has been receiving some excellent Kaiserin, Hoosier Beauty and Mock roses. C. H. H.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are beginning to take their place again in the window displays of the florists. Last week the yellow varieties began to come into the market. This week the yellow blooms are more plentiful and the early white varieties have begun to appear. Asters have not been of such good quality. Some other early fall flowers are beginning to appear. Growers report that their plants are in fine condition. There seems to be a generally optimistic feeling in the trade as to the outlook for the fall and winter season.

Club Meeting.

The September meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club was held September 13 at Rover's hall, Elizabeth avenue, Newark. The committee in charge of the outing in August reported that it was a success financially as well as socially. The publicity plan discussed at the S. A. F. convention in New York was talked over, and some of the members were in favor of the club making a donation. However, definite action was postponed until the next meeting.

Following the business session, refreshments were served. Afterward there were games.

Various Notes.

Ernest Radany, 596 Central avenue, reports that daily business is about the same as it was a year ago, but that Sunday sales are much larger.

D. E. Davis, at Grove and Central streets, East Orange, reports that while the summer has been slow for the growers, the outlook for the fall is bright.

McLaughlin & Murphy, 181 Clinton avenue, have had an unusually large amount of funeral work recently. Weddings, also, have helped business with them. R. B. M.

TOLEDO, O.

Metz & Bateman, known as leaders in floral ideas, are well pleased with the season's business and, judging from present appearances, it looks good for the winter.

Schramm Bros. have a fine stock at their combination greenhouses and show-houses. Funeral work has been satisfactory.

Mrs. E. Suder says she would not miss the St. Louis show for a great deal. While not so great a traveler as of yore, she delights in mixing with the fraternity. Mrs. Suder reports a busy season, with a bright outlook for an abundance of plants and cut flowers.

J. L. Schiller anticipates an extraordinary sale of primroses and cinerarias, especially the former, this season and believes all who have well-grown plants will easily dispose of them at better prices than usual. W. M.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The first frost of the season hit Pittsburgh September 11. A great deal of the outdoor stock suffered from the cold, which lasted until Saturday. The cut flower business last week compared favorably with the same week a year ago. The supply business is exceptionally good, the firms handling accessories reporting that sales have been large.

Roses of all varieties, including American Beauties, asters, gladioli and lilies, are in good supply. A few yellow chrysanthemums are coming in. Carnations have not yet made their appearance, while valley is entirely out of the market. Some florists are using artificial valley.

Hill Brothers in Smash-up.

In an automobile accident on the Twenty-second street bridge last week D. H. Hill escaped with bruises, but James Hill, a brother, suffered a fracture of the skull and was not expected to recover. The driver of the car in which the Hill brothers were riding, in an effort to avoid striking a girl crossing the bridge, lost control of the machine, causing it to leap on the sidewalk and smash into the guard rail. The automobile was wrecked against the rail, and stopped within a foot of plunging seventy-five feet into the Monongahela river. The rail broke, but the rubber tires caused the machine to rebound and stop on the edge of the bridge. James Hill was thrown out on his head, the girl was fatally injured by a glancing blow from the machine, and a pedestrian on the walk was found with broken legs and badly bruised face. The driver and D. H. Hill were more fortunate.

Various Notes.

Hiram Frishkorn, who has been with Becker's Seed Store for a number of years, left September 17 for one of the army training camps. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. also lost several of the young men from its greenhouses. A number of local growers are considering the plan of hiring women to replace the men who have gone to war, and to help solve the problem of a shortage of labor.

The Adams Express Co. put an embargo on shipments September 14 and 15. This action caused the wholesalers considerable trouble, it being impossible to get all the orders shipped. The receiving houses are jammed with freight. The cause of the congestion was said to be shortage of cars. Clarke.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

Business is showing improvement, and while there was no great rush last week, there was considerable funeral work, with other calls for flowers. Excellent roses are coming now. Richmond and Milady roses are in demand, while Killarney and White Killarney are of good quality and sell well. Mrs. Hearst and Ward roses are good. American Beauties are short-stemmed, but have excellent blooms. The supply of chrysanthemums is not yet large. Bonnaffons are about the only variety that have appeared. Cosmos remain good and sell well. Outdoor stock is becoming scarce. Sweet peas continue good. Lilies, both Easter and rubrum, are scarce. Orchids are practically out of the market. Some good gladioli still are obtainable.

Various Notes.

The windows of the retail stores are reflecting the arrival of a new season. A number of attractive and elaborate displays were staged last week.

The Mazey Floral Co. has been making a number of improvements to its greenhouses. Stock here is in excellent condition.

The Minnesota Mushroom Club had an interesting exhibit at the state fair of more than 300 varieties of mushrooms gathered in and near the Twin Cities.

E. M. P.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business continues good, with funeral work plentiful. Flowers are in fair supply, especially asters. Roses are improving in quality. Carnations have short stems, but the blooms are fairly good.

Various Notes.

The chrysanthemums and carnations at the range of Julius Niednagel & Sons are in fine condition. About 18,000 carnation plants have been benched. Business is reported to be good. Waldemar Niednagel leaves October 3 for the training camp.

Theodore D. Kuebler is adding more glass to his range. His mums are especially fine. Mr. Kuebler attended the monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana at Columbus last week. Mr. Kuebler presented the names of Ernest Lutz, of Boonville; Otto Kuebler, of Newburgh, and C. I.

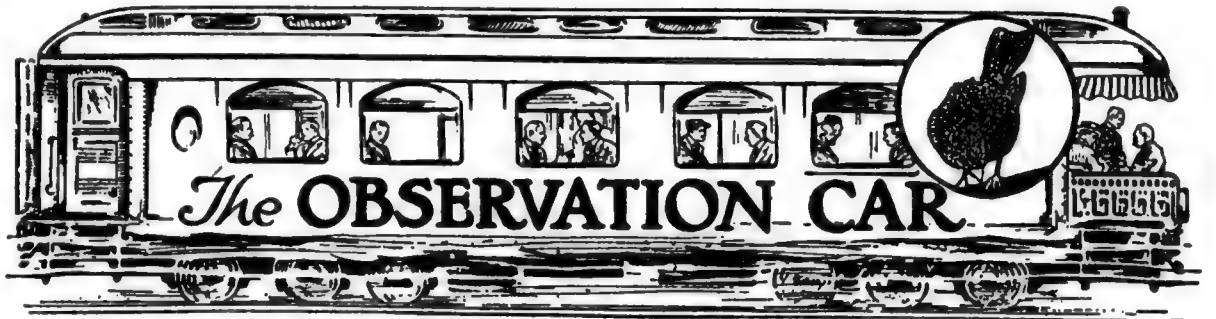

Niednagel and E. L. Fenton, of Evansville, for membership. They were elected by a special ballot. The club holds its next meeting in Evansville.

The Blackman Floral Co. is enjoying a brisk trade. A visit to the greenhouses found the chrysanthemums and carnations in good shape. A house of Russell roses, too, looks exceptionally well. Walter, son of George Blackman, has gone to the training camp at Louisville. Herbert Blackman also has gone into training.

Karl Zeidler's new greenhouse is completed. His carnations, mums and roses all are looking well. Mr. Zeidler was chef at the convention of stationary engineers at Cook's park, September 12 and 13, and on the river trip aboard the steamer Joe Fowler. The delegates declared the "eats" were fine.

J. C. Elsperrmann has completed one house and will tear out another old one, which will be rebuilt this fall. David Elsperrmann's claim for exemption from service has been denied. He has not yet been notified when he will leave. Mrs. J. C. Elsperrmann is visiting relatives in Chicago.

Ernest Lutz, of Boonville, has purchased fifteen acres of land adjoining Maple Grove cemetery on the concrete road, and will enlarge his business. The planting of some hardy stock has been started, but until the question of water is successfully settled, building will not be begun. In the meantime Mr. Lutz expects to grow asters, gladioli and vegetables. When the city water mains are extended to his property Mr. Lutz will construct greenhouses. The place will be known as Maplewood Gardens. E. L. F.

The dean of Dayton, O., florists and seedsmen, F. W. Ritter, is touring Ohio and Michigan in search of business and pleasure, accompanied by R. J. Schieble, the Miamisburg wholesaler.

Much interest attaches to the injunction suit instituted by Joseph A. Borirard, of Berkeley, Cal., against a chemist whose factory emits fumes and smoke that ruin the stock in Mr. Borirard's nursery nearby.

E. G. Hill is in the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago, where he is to undergo an operation in the course of the next few days. It is expected he will be able to return to his home at Richmond, Ind., during the middle or latter part of October.

The formation of a cooperative buying plan whereby Hoosier florists can purchase supplies at quantity prices, was one of the things discussed at last week's meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana. It is particularly in the matter of greenhouse glass that the interested florists would pool their orders and then have the glass jobbers bid on carload lots.

Talk about sticking close to your work, when S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, goes home to Lansdowne he turns in at 11 Violet lane!

Twenty-three years as secretary of the Philadelphia Florists' Club is the record of David Rust, and, take it from Mamie, one cannot be rusty and become secretary of that aggressive body twenty-two times straight!

The chances are that neither the high cost of living nor the cost of high living worries Henry Kusik, of Kansas City, at present, for Mr. Kusik went hunting last week and brought home almost enough ducks to affect the provision market. There were 175 of 'em, all fat and toothsome.

Do you find amusement in the discovery of persons whose names correspond with the character of their occupations? Well, Mrs. Lily White and Mrs. Rose Boyle, formerly with Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, Mo., recently became associated with the floral department of the Grand Leader department store of that city. And then there's Miss Violet Rose, who manages the Orchid Flower Shop in Philadelphia.

OBITUARY

F. C. Bartels.

F. C. Bartels, superintendent at the J. M. Gasser Co. greenhouses, Rocky River, O., was murdered in the kitchen of his home at 3 p. m. September 15. Robbery or revenge are the motives accepted for the perpetration of the bloody deed, circumstances strongly favoring the former.

Saturday being pay day, Mr. Bartels as usual drove down to the bank at Rocky River for the pay roll. Returning, he went into the house to put the money in the safe until the closing hour, but instead laid the bag containing $700 upon the mantel and hurried back to his office in the greenhouses, which is about 200 feet from the dwelling. In a short time, attracted by the scream of Mrs. Bartels and a workwoman employed by her, he ran to the house to investigate and upon entering, encountered a masked man with revolver in each hand. The whistle was blown, but unfortunately the entire force was engaged in the far end of the place and when foreman Al Lingruen and one of his assistants rushed into the house they found the body of their chief in a pool of blood. The murderer escaped. Death must have been instantaneous, as three bullets had been fired into the body in the region of the heart and a fourth, indicating that a struggle had taken place, was lodged in the ceiling.

Mrs. Lingruen, wife of the foreman, who occupies part of the house, heard the shots and on opening the door leading to the death room, saw a man clad in overalls leave the side porch, dash through an opening in the fence and dash off along the orchard. Mrs. Morrissey, the workwoman, saw a man masked with a red bandana come in at the side door, but at first thought it one of the employees playing a joke on her. But the intruder uttering no word and threatening her with the weapons, she became frightened and ran upstairs, alarming Mrs. Bartels, who was busy in the attic. The stranger followed to the foot of the stairs, but going back to the room containing the safe met Mr. Bartels as he came in and, after a brief struggle, shot him to death, leaving, in his haste, without the coveted money.

The murderer is still at large and, although the authorities are working diligently upon the case, no clues have as yet been established. Evidently the deed was done by one familiar with the house and grounds and acquainted with the time and method of paying the men.

F. C. Bartels was 62 years of age and a florist of lifelong experience; a hard worker, always striving for the best, and a recognized master in his profession. Besides a host of warm personal friends, he leaves a widow and two married daughters to mourn his loss.

J. McL.

Dayton, O.—A building on South Broadway owned by the Miami Floral Co. was destroyed by fire August 25. The loss was $500.

Corry, Pa.—A. W. Warren says business has been good and he adds, "We are going to do business as long as The Review carries our ads." His specialty is young stock for the trade.

Deer Park, Ala.—The season has been a dry one, with less than the normal growth, but conditions were better in August and L. H. Read & Co., who grow seeds and tubers, feel much encouraged by the progress their crops have made.

Houston, Tex.—E. L. Kiley, who, in common with other florists, has had to face the greatly increased cost of fuel, has something which, if it works out in practice, will prove even better than a coal mine. He has a secret formula for the preparation of a substitute fuel he claims will give as much heat energy as can be obtained by spending three times the money for coal. If the world were not skeptical, he certainly would get rich quick.

Gainesville, Fla.—The law of this state requires inspection of mailed shipments of plants and plant products before delivery to the addressee in this state. Hereafter facilities for such inspection will be maintained at Jacksonville and Tampa, in addition to Gainesville. Therefore all postmasters in Florida have been notified to send to Gainesville, Jacksonville or Tampa, whichever is nearest, parcels received containing plants or plant products which are subject to terminal inspection. The addressee is notified in each case to supply the necessary postage.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Miss Pearl Ross has purchased the Blossom Booth of Miss Emily Bostwick and will conduct it in the future.

Memphis, Tenn.—The concern known as Johnson's Greenhouses has modernized its store with a completely new equipment of store fixtures, including a 9-foot refrigerator. All fixtures were furnished by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

Houston, Tex.—"There is not much business here except funeral work, and not much of that," says Walter Westgate, of the Roselynn Nursery & Floral Co.; "but I am talking 'good business' and am most optimistic as to fall and winter business. Money is tight, and sometimes a man has to hustle if he wants to pay cash for everything."

Muskogee, Okla.—The coal question does not worry florists in this section. Last season the Muskogee Carnation Co. used coal to heat its 75,000 feet of glass, because the city's pipe lines were not large enough to carry the natural gas required, but now the pipe lines have been enlarged and the greenhouse boilers connected up with the gas supply used by practically everyone in Muskogee. Two boilers of sixty horsepower each will operate with natural gas at 6 cents per thousand cubic feet.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

William Mathews derives much pleasure from reading the report of the S. A. F. meeting in The Review; his son Harry also agrees that it was most lucid.

William Pfeifer, of Utica, was benching his carnations at the time. They are grand stock, as usual.

Brant Bros., also of Utica, were busy with their roses, which are first-class plants, highly promising for an early crop. Several Uticans were in the mountains and missed the S. A. F. dates.

A. D. Carpenter, of Cohoes, N. Y., has been awarded the palm for having the most up-to-date greenhouse establishment in this vicinity.

The seed store of the H. Gordinier Sons Co., of Troy, N. Y., was burglarized September 2. Some cash was taken, but the culprits were arrested the next day.

J. G. Barrett, of Troy, reports the usual run of funeral work, showing no falling away in that branch of the business.

"We were busily engaged during that time," was the reply of Robert Bard, of Syracuse, to the inquiry of why he was not at the convention. "No matter what the date, something turns up to prevent my attending." A pair of live owls was quite an attraction in the store, which is always kept clean and inviting.

W. E. Day, of Syracuse, observed that the state fair does not help the trade to any extent. Business has been quiet in Syracuse all summer, but will be brisk from now on.

Frank Friedley, of Cleveland, opines that, owing to the scarcity of palms, ferns will be in increasing demand, and he has prepared to meet it. It is noted that many of the leading hotels are being decorated with nephrolepis of various kinds.

Carl Hagenburger, of Mentor, O., though extremely busy, spared the time to attend the Cleveland Florists' Club meeting and be elected president.

W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo, took a long vacation. Barney Myers, of Palmer's, at Lancaster, is planning to compensate for the loss on Holland bulbs, quite a task when one grows for two big stores and a local demand, in addition, but, in his own language, "it is the supreme test, and we will meet it."

NOTICE.

It is impossible to guarantee the insertion, discontinuance or alteration of any advertisement unless instructions are received BY 4 P. M. TUESDAY.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 58 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Officers for 1918: President, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; vice-president, Jules Bourdet, St. Louis; secretary and treasurer as before.
Thirty-fourth annual convention and Fifth National Flower Show, St. Louis, Mo., April 6 to 15, 1918.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

Don't object to paying for good packing—but insist on having good packing.

How long will it be before the trade is looking to California and the south for palms, instead of to Belgium?

THERE will be a large increase in the production of the so-called French hydrangeas this year, because of their amenability to early forcing to take the place of azaleas.

THE man who does things a little more painstakingly than his competitors never has to seek long for customers. Those who grow plants for the trade would do well to remember it.

THE question of getting the usual supply of Manetti stocks this autumn is beginning to worry the rose plant specialists. Labor shortage in England has reduced the quantity available for export.

THE S. A. F. publicity program was the subject of a leading article in last week's issue of Printers' Ink, the most widely read publication for advertising men. The article was perhaps the first of the many publicity by-products of the undertaking.

"THE luxury trades are unusually active," reports a big commercial agency; "the people have money and are buying things they want." As everything else costs more than usual, including flowers in a good many places, there seems to be no reason for not charging what things are worth.

PLEASE NOTE.

Each week a number of letters containing advertising instructions reach The Review while the paper is on the press—just a few hours earlier and they would have had attention a week sooner than is possible.

It is the aim to give prompt service, but to secure it advertisers should note: "It is impossible to guarantee the insertion, discontinuance or alteration of any advertisement unless instructions are received by 4 p. m. Tuesday."

THE THING THAT COUNTS.

You hire a boy to work in the greenhouses by his appearance and the size of his ambition. But when you hire a foreman it is his record of achievement—of "things done"—that influences you in your choice.

When you advertise in a trade paper, you select the medium that has a record of achievement—of "things done." That is why The Review carries so much advertising—it achieves the object of the advertiser. Like this:

Please discontinue our advertisement for field-grown carnation plants, as we are all sold out, thanks to The Review.—Hall's Greenhouses, per E. E. H., Clyde, O., September 13, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain that he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OPTIMISM.

The 1917 report on general business conditions by a leading banking institution contains an item to the effect that "dealers in articles of luxury report a heavy trade, and in this respect repeat the experience in England arising out of the larger earnings of the people." Here is information that should tend to set at ease those who have feared a possible slackness in the florists' business on account of the economy wave of wartimes. Another thing of optimistic character is the forthcoming publicity campaign of the S. A. F., one of the aims of which will be to educate the public to the idea that flowers should not be regarded wholly as a luxury, but as a necessity, and that as long as gifts are gifts, flowers are suitable for all occasions.

THE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The finance committee to raise about $40,000 for the first year of the national campaign of publicity for flowers has been appointed by President R. C. Kerr, of the S. A. F., and will at once begin the task of securing the money. Subscriptions of fixed sums per year for four years are to be asked, the plan presented to the S. A. F. convention contemplating that the publicity campaign be continued for at least that length of time.

The committee, through local committees and florists' organizations, will, no doubt, secure the money. The value of publicity has become a known factor in the business of selling flowers and each florist believes in it. There is one point, however, that should be emphasized so that the succeeding years' subscriptions will be forthcoming. That is that the contributor, especially the retailer, should not expect too much.

It is doubtful if he will feel the immediate effects of this national campaign. Practically no one, even though he be induced to buy flowers by the magazine advertising, is going to walk into a local flower store and say that the advertisement he saw in such-and-such a magazine influenced him to make that particular purchase. The test of the efficacy of the campaign will be at the end of one or two years. Then when florists go over their books and discover that business has been increasing, a large part of that increase can be laid to the publicity campaign.

While its promoters have been comparing the campaign of publicity for flowers with the advertising campaigns of breakfast foods, musical instruments, and the like, it would appear that a better comparison would be to that of the advertising of the Southern Cypress Association. This association is exactly what the S. A. F. publicity committee is, an organization designed to give publicity to the uses and value of a commercial article. Each manufacturer of this article contributes a certain sum annually. This money is spent in promoting the uses of cypress lumber, not an individual manufacturer's product, nor for the benefit of any individual dealer, but for the cypress mills as a whole.

That is exactly what is intended by the publicity committee of the S. A. F., to increase the sale of flowers to the benefit of the florists' trade as a whole.

There are, of course, other features of the plan which will be helps to the florists. Cards, stickers, banners and the other kinds of advertising matter florists use will be available at cost.

This publicity campaign is a move in the right direction, but the contributor should not make the mistake of expecting a too definite or too quick return for his money.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The middle part of last week found trading in the wholesale cut flower market slow, both as concerns the city and out-of-town buyers. With September 15, however, noticeably augmented buying on the part of local trade was noticed. City trade held up well over September 17 and although there was a slight falling off September 18 there was no great reason for complaint on that score.

Shipping trade has not been up to expectations. Outdoor flowers, which are still abundant, may be held partly responsible, as well as the fact that increased supply of stock all over the country has caused some out-of-town buyers, who when stock elsewhere was scarce bought in Chicago, to place their orders in other markets.

The weather, on the whole, has continued favorable to the growers and increased supply and steadily improving quality is to be noted.

American Beauties continue scarce and in good demand. Buying was especially heavy because of the Hebrew holidays. The quality, on the whole, is good. Of the other varieties of roses Russell continues as the leader, followed closely by Ward and the red roses. Ophelia is plentiful and of good quality, but is not selling so well as heretofore. Rose crops have increased rapidly and the supply has become larger than the demand.

Carnations are arriving in more plentiful numbers and the quality also is improved. Growers are now commencing to cut their indoor stock. As asters recede the demand grows better.

Here is a Full Line of Popular Roses

Note that in addition to a large supply and fine quality we offer a complete list of varieties:

Chrysanthemums also are more plentiful and some fine stock is to be seen. Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Smith's Advance and October Frost are the varieties arriving. The demand is fair.

Good asters are in shortened supply, but there is still plenty of inferior stock, not fit to ship. Gladioli are plentiful, but are finding only a fair sale. The quality of a large part of the stock is too poor to command respect. Orchids are still scarce, but the supply is expected to be a little more plentiful from now on, as one large grower is commencing to cut a bit more heavily. There are plenty of Easter lilies. Some fine, long-stemmed rubrum lilies also are arriving.

Some good southern smilax is now coming in.

Poehlmanns Get Big Refund.

It is not every day that the mailman brings a check such as was received by August Poehlmann last week, namely $21,833.49. The sender was the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. The check was the result of three and one-half years of litigation and represented overcharges on coal and manure shipments for the last four years as claimed by August Poehlmann and upheld by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Various Notes.

Frank Thatcher, nephew of A. J. Rossi and formerly employed by Pelicano, Rossi & Co., San Francisco, has joined the staff of George Wienhoeber.

A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., is in Detroit.

C. J. Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., spent a day last week visiting violet growers at Rhinebeck, N. Y. It was his annual trip. In addition to looking over the establishments of those who ship to this house, he called on a number of growers shipping to other markets, to get a line on the general situation. He noted that a number of growers who planted carnations last year have gone back to violets this season. He found a few empty houses, but it appears to him that the district will produce at least as many violets this year as last, the plants in general being in good condition.

George Wienhoeber, H. N. Bruns and A. C. Kohlbrand were in a party that enjoyed good fishing at one of the Wisconsin lakes during the closing days of last week.

G. M. Reburn started September 18 on a western trip that he expects to last to the holidays.

C. S. Clausen, who divides his attention between pickles and gladioli, shipped about 7,000 spikes per day from his farm at Wichert last week. As they cleaned up steadily, he gave the word to "cut a few extra" for Saturday, when the shipment was 15,000 spikes. Mr. Clausen has invested a considerable sum in the newer varieties of gladioli for cutting and appearances are that he is being well repaid this season.

Mrs. Russell has been the most satisfactory rose of the summer, according to Mrs. C. A. Samuelson, whose experience in retailing is about as wide as that of any florist in the city. She says nearly everyone likes Russell, only a few objecting to it because it does not open after being cut. Second in popularity, says Mrs. Samuelson, is Ophelia,

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

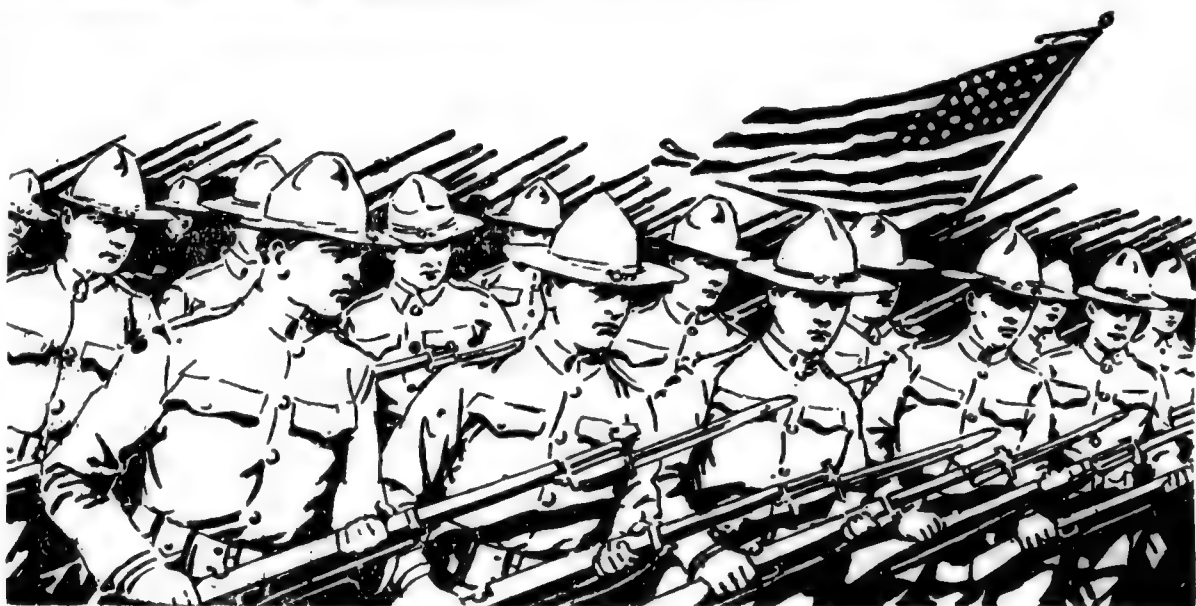

Business has assumed a normal tone, with stock slightly in excess of the demand. Asters are still abundant and of excellent quality, but gladioli are rapidly growing inferior. A few carnations are coming in and are eagerly picked up. Dahlias have begun to cut a larger figure in the market, some choice stock being offered. As there are no chrysanthemums as yet, tritomas, marigolds and heleniums are much sought for decorative purposes. Local valley is again to be had and is superior to the grades purchased in distant markets during the last month.

Roses are in strong supply and are of especially good quality for this time of the year. In size, color and substance the stock arriving savors of October rather than of the present month. The splendid growing temperature during August is responsible for this extremely favorable condition.

Various Notes.

A. A. Hart, for many years in business on Lake avenue, has definitely decided to discontinue. An east side vegetable grower has bought the glass and will start at once to remove it.

An interesting figure in local circles is W. C. Detling, proprietor of the Sunshine Flower Gardens, Greenwich, O., from which point he daily consigns outdoor stock to the Cleveland market. He has a large acreage devoted to asters, gladioli and sweet peas, and gathers only the best flowers for the market, packing them with utmost care. This

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Conditions are unusual in the cut flower market. The supply of flowers consists principally of dahlias and roses, in so far as high-grade stock is concerned. There are also some asters of quality and Easter lilies. There are not many flowers of other kinds. The demand is just beginning to spring up, but is not sufficient to make the rather short supply of flowers apparent. The Jewish New Year caused a good demand for bright-colored flowers of quality, such as Beauties, Russells and fancy dahlias.

The congested condition of the express service is a serious drawback to both the cut flower and plant business. The Adams Express Co. is more over-worked now than at the holidays. The American Express Co. is in such bad shape that express was declined September 14, 15 and 16, in order to make it possible to catch up with the business.

The Express Trouble.

The Steamer Waaldyk.

The latest advices from the Holland-

America Steamship Co. are that the steamer Waaldyk sailed from Rotterdam September 8, not September 5, as was first reported, with 26,000 cases of Dutch bulbs for this country. It is believed here that this steamer will arrive sometime next week; that these bulbs will be practically all that Holland will send to America this season, and that they will represent about one-half of the number required to fill the orders. It is further stated with confidence that the remainder of the bulbs are to be retained in Holland to make cattle food for the coming winter, by order of the Dutch government, the embargo being

A Visit to Norwood.

Fred Berger had never seen the Robert Craig Co. place at Norwood, and, being a progressive florist, Mr. Berger determined that the middle of September should not pass without his seeing that great plant-growing establishment. Therefore, despite a blowout and a cranky motor, he went. Mr. Berger's first impressions of Norwood were genuine surprise and pleasure. When Cornelius Vanderbreggen threw open the doors of house after house filled with highly colored crotons, which had leaves all the way down to the pots, Mr. Berger's face wore a delighted smile. Thus encouraged, Van told a story of his visit to the New York convention. Over there he had been accosted by a florist who asked whether the Craigs could duplicate their croton exhibit, to which Van had replied that the exhibit could be duplicated 100 times over, and this amazed the visitor exceedingly. However, there they were in all their glorious beauty, from the little chaps through all the sizes up to the wonderful pedestal-grown specimens.

Mr. Berger recognized an old friend in the new Nephrolepis Norwood. He told Van that when the older fronds had been removed from Norwood to encourage the formation of runners, he had used these fronds effectively in his work. Perhaps Mr. Berger's admiration was about equally divided between a batch of nicely grown heather and a table of heavily fruited Otaheite oranges, which, while by no means new, are properly classed as a Christmas novelty. The specimen arecas were admired.

Mr. Berger showed that he is a true florist from the retail standpoint by his criticism of the begonia, not the begonia as there seen, but the begonia as a plant. He said it did not keep. No one would dispute that fact, but Van promptly came to the rescue by pointing out that the begonia in front of them—Konkurent—kept better than the old Lorraine type. At this point Robert Craig caused a diversion by appearing and remarking that they were employing seven young women as helpers in the greenhouses, an innovation.

The magnificent cyclamens and the promising dracenas divided Mr. Berger's attention until it was time to go; then, with hearty invitation to come again, he departed for the home grounds.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The wholesale cut flower market is unchanged, although the aster flood is lessening. Another week or two will see the last of them. Some of the late varieties are of splendid size and quality. These brought fine prices last week, while the small and short-stemmed stock might far better have been left at home, for it only acts like a soporific drug on an already gorged market.

The early September frost did not touch the asters, but it made havoc with the dahlias and the gladioli. But shipments of dahlias are increasing every day! Many arrive poorly packed and are unsalable. Lots of the old and small kinds also are hard to dispose of, but some of the new varieties are in demand for window display and decoration. The local supply of gladioli also continues unabated and King and America bring prices satisfactory to the growers.

Golden Glow, the best of the early yellow mums, is quite abundant. October Frost also is coming strong and last week the first flowers of Smith's Advance arrived. Valley holds firm at $6 per hundred for the best and the same top is the quotation for giganteum lilies. The short stems and mediocre blooms sell down to $3 per hundred. The supply of orchids is lighter, but prices do not go above 75 cents for a few selected gigas. Oncidium is welcome and never overabundant. Its value for window decoration always is appreciated.

Carnations are lengthening their stems and enlarging their diameters daily. Some varieties sell as high as $1.50 per hundred. Most of the arrivals, however, are not worth over $1.

garden flowers, still untouched by the frost, are seen in the wholesalers' windows.

The rose shipments last week were light—far below the average quantity for this date. Prices for the selected stock are hardening. About twenty of the popular varieties are in the market, Ophelia the most universally appreciated.

Various Notes.

Arthur Cowee sends word from Berlin, N. Y., that the frost September 11 was the worst his section ever has had so early and that it practically ended the gladiolus season there.

The weather is scasonable again after a spell of the coldest early September temperature on record. Much damage was done by the frost, the dahlias suffering especially. This early freeze will doubtless affect the exhibitions at Bronx park, September 22 and 23, and the show of the American Dahlia Society, September 25 to 27, at the Engineering building, 25 West Thirty-ninth street, in conjunction with the American Institute. President Vincent, who was in the city September 18 on his way to lecture at New Haven, says he still expects this show to surpass all its predecessors.

The exhibits of Geo. L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., in the windows of Alexander McConnell's store on Fifth avenue, are attracting much attention. His largest and handsomest flower he has named the Millionaire, an appropriate name when one considers that he asks $10 for a single root. Mr. Stillman reports the frost last week destroyed $1,000 worth of his stock.

David Clarke's Sons say the fall season is opening favorably, and many wedding decorations are booked for October. Fred Lentz is back from his summer auto trips south and through New England, with Mrs. Lentz and relatives. Young Mr. Clarke is in the engineering department of the army.

Warendorff is making many improvements in his handsome headquarters in the Ansonia.

Frank Millang, Jr., was appraiser last week in the valuation of a 500-acre farm.

cerning Sunday closing of the wholesalers and the possibility that some of them will open again. The majority of the wholesalers are in favor of continuing the plan which has worked so well this summer.

The plant auctions opened September 18. The offerings are from local growers. MacNiff had a fine lot of large palms, which the enterprising retailers were not slow in absorbing.

W. A. Finger's Elsie Burgess dahlia is said, by the United Cut Flower Co., to be a splendid shipper and keeper and is especially popular. Mr. Pappas, the manager, has returned from a visit in Canada, combining business and pleasure. He says that at the Dale Estate and J. H. Dunlop's the report is that

The Market.

Business remains about the same as last reported. The first frost early in the week was followed by warmer weather, and retailers found it hard to resist the fine quality of the stock arriving. The supply of American Beauties has shortened and the pinch is felt. Russell sells readily; Ophelia remains scarce and high in price. The Killarneys are a glut, not being popular these days. Gladioli and asters are in excessive supply, and their demand is weakening. Lilies have become quite plentiful, but are not in extra demand. The first mums arrived last week and were quickly picked up by the buyers. Short snapdragons are in oversupply. Dahlias are better, but are carried in stock by only a few retailers. Valley and orchids are scarce and the demand for them is good.

The Market.

Business has been active during the last week, thanks particularly to several large funerals. The prices of flowers compare favorably with those of a year ago.

Outdoor stock is too plentiful, but sells rather well, according to the quality. Gladioli are diminishing in supply, though there are some good ones left. The aster crop is now in full swing, and the quality of the later varieties is better. The supply of roses is larger, the exception being White Killarney, which hardly meets the demand. Harrisii lilies are plentiful and have sold well for funerals. Auratum and rubrum lilies are also plentiful, but the demand is not large. Sweet peas are not arriving in quantity and the quality is not good. Carnations are rarely seen now. Coreopsis, red and yellow daisies, candytuft and Golden Glow are included in the outdoor stock.

Orchids are scarce, but there is little demand. Valley is practically unobtainable. Chrysanthemums are arriving more freely, but do not move well, except the pompons. Dahlias are coming in satisfactorily and include good varieties. All kinds of greens are plentiful, including good galax and leucothoe sprays. The sale of ferns and palms has been larger during the past few days.

Various Notes.

E. F. Kennon, of the Climax Mfg. Co., Castorland, N. Y., was a visitor last week.

A number of Rochesterians visited the New York state fair at Syracuse during Increase Your Profits

Stop the losses from withered flowers due to lack of preservation. If you could sell all the blossoms that now wither in stock and are thrown away, think how much you could increase your profits.

You can do just that with

McCray Florist Refrigerators

The McCray patented system of refrigeration maintains a cool, even temperature, and keeps your flowers always fresh and salable. Your losses from withered stock are done away with.

The McCray is handsome, too. And its plate glass doors and sides display your flowers in the most attractive way. The different compartments vary in size to accommodate different lengths of stems.

The woodwork may be had in any finish to match your store's interior decoration. The linings may be either heavy plate mirror or white enamel, as you desire. Both are handsome and easy to keep clean.

The Battle Cry of the Florists—"MOULD-PROOF LEAVES!"

DO YOU SELL THEM? YES.

The Dr. H. Dux Co.'s "Superiora" Brand Magnolia Leaves are the best and the only quality for which we have guaranteed for the past six years—and they are better now than ever. They will not mould, which makes them therefore also the cheapest leaves on the market. They are endorsed by 32 of the leading wholesalers in the United States and Canada. Enough said.

the week of September 10, and reported a good horticultural display.

James Vick's Sons had a large exhibit of cut flowers and bulbs at the fair, including nearly every annual and perennial in bloom at the time. The display was in charge of the Misses Fuller and Burns, Charles H. Vick and George Case.

Sympathy is extended to Miss Hattie B. Ellis, of H. E. Wilson's, in the death of her youngest sister, Mamie.

George T. Boucher reports business good. He has been exceedingly busy with wedding and funeral work.

Horace J. Head, of the Wilson Floral Co., has been on a vacation, visiting with friends at Hilton, N. Y., and in Canada.

The Edwin C. Kaelber window display this week is odd, but attractive. It consists entirely of African marigolds in baskets tied with gold fiber chiffon. Mr. Kaelber reports business to be good.

The first monthly meeting of the winter season of the Rochester Florists' Association was held in Musicians' hall. Plans were outlined for the coming season, and there was a report of the peony show held at Convention hall, by Secretary A. H. Secker.

The window of H. P. Neun was unusually attractive. A handsome basket, arranged with purple and white asters, stood on a green velvet rug. Vases and baskets of African marigolds made a stunning combination. H. J. H.

For Sale—A Nursery Business with a Prosperous Past and an Extremely Bright Future

In a large eastern city is a nursery business that has been so profitable that its owner now wishes to sell out and retire. It has been successful for 40 years, has a live mailing list of prospects who re-order time after time; orders showing a comfortable margin of profit are now booked for 1917 fall, and 1918 spring delivery; contracts aggregating several thousand dollars are now under negotiation.

The establishment is centrally located, and offers an opportunity for some far-seeing man to secure a business that will pay him big dividends, without the investment of a large amount of capital. If interested, ask us for information.

DETROIT IS CALLING

The latchstring is out, Mr. Florist. You're wanted at Detroit October 2 and 3 for the special meeting of the F. T. D. No convention in the history of the F. T. D. has ever given promise of so much of inspiration, so much of practical strength, so much of power for the good of the F. T. D. service and the trade as a whole.

If you're not a member of the F. T. D., you're wanted anyway, as well as the 500 members listed below. You'll return home happier, stronger and wiser. Remember, hospitality is a habit with Detroiters—and there is only one Detroit. Work, recreation, entertainment, welcome—who could resist that combination!

The Market.

It was hoped that the cold wave which hit New England September 10 and 11, and caused destruction among tender vegetable crops, would kill off sufficient outdoor flowers to brace up the market, but, while many gladioli were killed, asters survived nearly everywhere. Dahlias were practically wiped out, but they have never amounted to much as market flowers in Boston. Asters continue abundant and of splendid quality and many have to be cleared at low prices. Gladioli are on the wane and prices have improved a little. Roses are in heavy supply, but are not moving any better than a week ago. American Beauties sell slowly at $10 to $15 for the best grades. Hybrid teas go all the way from 50 cents to $8 per hundred, a few fancies making $12. The quality of roses shows a marked improvement with the cooler weather.

More carnations are coming in, but they are, in the main, small and short-stemmed. Longiflorum lilies are less abundant, but colored speciosums are in good supply. White speciosums are selling better than the colored. Golden Glow remains the leading mum, but some Early Frost and Advance are also seen. Cosmos is plentiful, but moves slowly. A variety of annuals still come in, but the season for these will soon close. Valley is scarce, high priced and of indifferent quality. Cattleyas are a little lower. Few gardenias are seen. Asparagus is selling rather poorly.

At Natick, Mass.

Robert Montgomery is one of our best rose specialists and his houses can always be found in apple-pie condition. Some growers may have longer and wider houses, but I doubt if they can show any finer houses of roses than are to be found there. The leading varieties are Hadley, Richmond, which is still considered a profitable rose; Russell, which succeeds well here; Ophelia, a prime favorite; Dark Pink Killarney and Double White Killarney. Yellows have been dropped as unprofitable. One house here is on its seventh year and it would be hard to find better plants than it contains. Rather more space is now devoted to carnations and some flowers had already been picked. Varieties grown are Benora, Rosalia, Nancy, Pink Delight, Matchless and Beacon.

50 years' experience in the florist business guarantees efficiency to take care of all orders. 20 per cent allowed.

Close to Mr. Montgomery's domain is James Wheeler's range. A space 60x150 in the large house is planted to yellow marguerites. All are in solid beds, are starting to bloom freely and look well. Carnations are already in good crop and 1,000 to 1,500 blooms are picked daily. Nancy and Benora are planted heavily. Other sorts are Pink Delight, Rosalia, Alice, Albert Roper, Doris and Matchless. Pachysandra terminalis, Evonymus radicans and E. vegetus and Taxus cuspidata were being propagated in quantity under glass and thousands were noted outdoors.

At Robert T. McGorum's establishment, on Highland street, roses are principally grown, Hadley, Russell, Richmond, Ophelia, Sunburst, Killarney and White Killarney being the varieties. All were in fine condition. Some good seedlings of Mr. McGorum's growing are being tested. Several houses are planted to mums, chiefly Golden Glow, Bonaffon, Patty and C. Rager. Candytuft is planted in two of these houses for a Memorial day crop. One house is devoted to carnations for home trade. I noted a nice batch of Exacum affine, which sells well here as a Christmas plant.

cessful water lily specialists, had charge here prior to the time that William Anderson assumed the superintendency, nearly sixteen years ago. The estate, on well elevated ground, covers over 1,000 acres, and magnificent views have been secured by cutting vistas through the woodlands. Scores of acres have been planted with oaks, white pines, Douglas firs, hemlock spruce and other evergreens. Many of these plants are now twenty to twenty-five feet high, some even more. In addition, practically all evergreens, both old and new, have been planted in groups, including all the new introductions of Wilson and Purdan.

Kalmias in many thousands have been planted and whole hillsides were a purple mass of Scotch heather, which here seems quite at home, and seedlings were springing up in thousands. A comparatively new feature here is a circular lilac garden about one and one-half acres in area, containing fifty of the finest varieties, several plants of each sort. A similar garden is devoted to ornamental malus. Around the kitchen garden a magnificent hedge of hemlock, some ten feet in height and almost as wide at the base, is to be seen. In the terraced formal gardens were some magnificent specimens of Taxus cuspidata ten to twelve feet across and nearly as high, and equally fine plants of the variety brevifolia. A hedge of Taxus cuspidata showed the value of this yew as an evergreen hedge plant.

In the walled-in garden a central pergola, covered with rambler roses and some of the newer Chinese clematis, celastrus and vitis, made a delightful promenade. Here also were fine collections of rock and herbaceous plants. Species of roses and flowering shrubs, great numbers of Darwin and cottage tulips and other bulbs are grown here for spring flowering. Grass walks are laid out among the evergreens, among which narcissi and other bulbs are naturalized in hundreds of thousands.

Quite a large nursery is operated to work up stocks of many new and rare deciduous and evergreen trees and shrubs. In one batch I noted sixty varieties of new cherries from Japan. In frames were many thousands of 1 and 2-year seedlings of Lilium regale, which is a great favorite. The new and rare plants, mainly of Chinese and Japanese origin, would need much space to even name.

In the greenhouses plants and flowers somewhat out of the common are grown, and well grown in every case. One house is largely devoted to acacias. Some are planted out, others grow in pots or tubs. Mr. Anderson pointed out some Acacia pubescens which he had successfully grafted. Daphne indica, such climbing roses as Cherokee, Red Cherokee and single White Banksia, stephanotis, Bouvardia Humboldtii, eucharis and camellias, being mostly planted out. Gardenias, etc., are all done well. Excellent houses of peaches, nectarines, and black and white grapes were noted. On the wide, covered-in piazza of the mansion were numerous beautifully flowered Campanula pyramidalis, one of the most stately and satisfactory of all flowering plants for late summer.

Anyone desiring to see an extensive, well planted and well kept private estate, containing in itself a veritable arboretum of plant treasures, should visit the Bayard Thayer estate. Certainly, Mr. Anderson, the able superintendent, has done a wonderful work, which must be seen to be truly appreciated.

Various Notes.

The sincere sympathy of a host of friends is extended to Robert Montgomery, of Natick, in the death of his only daughter, Margaret, September 14, after a long illness. Interment was September 17, and among the numerous beautiful floral tributes were a number from friends in the trade, including one from the Boston Coöperative Market, of which Mr. Montgomery is a director. What makes it specially hard for Mr. Montgomery is the fact that his wife has for some time been seriously sick at the summer home in Maine.

The Montrose Greenhouses are cutting a fine crop of Ophelia and Killarney Brilliant roses. These two varieties have been planted much more heavily this season. Stanley is also being largely grown, but, while it realizes a fancy price, it does not prove so profitable as some other sorts.

The schedule of prizes for the vegetable exhibition of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, to be held at Horticultural hall October 9, has been issued and contains seventy-five classes. A splendid show is assured, in spite of the fact that frost has already seriously damaged tender vegetable crops.

Paul F. Brigham, of Westboro, is sending to Herbert T. Capers a fine lot of Golden Glow and Early Frost mums. Among his leading carnations this season are Benora, Pink Delight, Mrs. Ward and Matchless.

William A. Hastings is at his post again, looking quite fit. He is receiving fine carnations from John A. Nelson, Framingham, and excellent pansies from C. T. Beasley & Co.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. is making a most attractive dahlia window display at its store in Faneuil Hall square. The recent severe frost cut down most of the dahlias at this concern's Wellesley farm.

In the Park street store of T. F. Galvin, Inc., I noticed some fine spikes of Amaryllis Belladonna and some nice baskets of orchids. Delphinium spikes dotted through baskets of roses looked quite effective.

Norris F. Comley, of Lexington, this season is devoting fifteen houses to roses, in no less than twenty-four varieties. At present he is cutting fine Beauties, Red Radiance, Mock, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Stanley. The little yellow Tipperary sells well.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, are already sending in some fine carnations. They are growing, among other kinds, Belle Washburn, Rosalia, Nebraska, Pink Delight, Benora, Ward and Matchless. One large house is devoted to mums. Freesias, mignonette and Godfrey callas are other crops.

W.N. Craig judged the exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society at Providence September 13, in the Narragansett hotel. Dahlias and gladioli were especially well shown.

Martin Wax enjoyed his late vacation immensely. He spent three weeks at Jackson and two weeks at Mount Kineo. He is a keen angler and had splendid sport. Wax Bros. have a fine dahlia display in one of their show windows, as has been their custom each fall for several years.

A number of bulb specialists have received shipments of French bulbs, but much uncertainty exists as to whether any Dutch stock will arrive or not. While we can probably get along without Dutch bulbs, they will be sadly missed in the late winter and early spring.

John McFarland, of North Easton, sends in fine daily shipments of lily of the valley. His houses of chrysanthemums and poinsettias look extra well.

well. September orders have been ahead of those of a year ago and Henry Penn looks for a good fall and winter trade. He strongly approves of the S. A. F. publicity campaign and will help it in every way possible. W. N. C.

BALTIMORE.

The Club Meeting.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held its regular meeting September 10. President Henry Bauer and Richard Vincent, Jr., gave an account of the New York S. A. F. convention. Mr. Vincent, who was one of the judges of the convention garden, told of the exhibits. His opinion was that the wisest and best thing accomplished by the convention was the raising of the $50,000 fund for publicity, and he recommended that the local club follow the example of the S. A. F. and appropriate a fund for local publicity.

The question was raised, and discussed at length, as to whether it would not be better to have one club meeting a month instead of two, as called for in the by-laws. The purpose aimed at was to have a larger attendance at the one meeting, but the consensus was that it would be better to have the usual number of meetings and make them more interesting; and the following committee was appointed to formulate a program for the coming season: Isaac H. Moss, Albert Fiedler, R. A. Vincent, W. F. Ekas, C. M. Wagner. As this is a "live wire" committee, we can look forward to some interesting meetings during the winter.

An invitation to visit the Vincent dahlia show October 3 was accepted by the club. October 3 will be gardeners' day, so the club will attend in a body.

Henry F. Michell was a visitor at the meeting and spoke on the bulb question. He said seventy-five per cent of the company's order for bulbs from the other side had, at that time, been eight days in transit, so that he felt confident that they were then past the submarine zone and would arrive safely.

Another question brought up at the meeting was the proper price to charge for wintering plants. Those who cater to this branch of the business said they were going to charge twenty-five per cent more than last season; this seems to be a reasonable increase, and certainly is a step in the right direction.

The coal question came up again, and those who had not yet procured their supply said that the best quotation they could get on anthracite was $9.25 per ton.

Various Notes.

Everyone sympathizes with John D. Halliday, whose summer home at Glencoe was destroyed by fire September 5. The blaze was discovered at 3 a. m., and as there was no fire protection it was a severe loss, the property being only partly covered by insurance. Mr. Halliday was fortunate, however, in getting his wife and two children out safely.

Business at the stores and wholesale houses has fallen off considerably during September and everywhere one sees signs about "wet paint." In the Feast & Sons store they are putting on a coat of white. Mrs. Hill was busy finishing a handsome wreath of pink asters and Sunburst roses. She said that business was dull, with a war wedding once in a while and funeral work, but that it had been the best summer for business in her experience.

At Mary Johnston's store vacations are over and everyone is getting down to work. Robert Johnston is going to make his aquatic window better this season than ever.

Cook back from her vacation and most sanguine over the outlook for the coming season.

One of the prettiest windows I have seen for some time was that of James Hamilton. The main feature was corn-flowers arranged in fine baskets.

Robert L. Graham is rebuilding two of his houses. His chrysanthemums look especially well.

The Leo Niessen Co. is handling some really fine roses for this season of the year. They receive two consignments of dahlias each day, which assure their customers of good, fresh stock.

At the S. S. Pennock Co. store there are still plenty of gladioli and some fine indoor asters. Mr. Perry says that everyone is complaining about the dull times in September, yet it is wonderful how much stock is moved daily. It seems that the unprecedented business during the summer has spoiled the retailers. They cannot get used to a dull spell, but now that the Jewish holidays are here and All Saints' day is not far off, it will not be long before business will be booming again and everyone will have all he can attend to. Tate.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

The supply and quality of asters are better than in many years, and during the last few weeks fine flowers have been available. They sell for from $1.50 to $3 per hundred. Roses show great improvement both in supply and demand. They range in price from $1.50 to $6 per hundred. Carnations are coming in better quality, but the supply is not yet large. The prices last week were $1 and $1.50 per hundred. Lilies are not in oversupply. Easter lilies bring $1 per dozen; rubrums range from $5 to $8 per hundred.

Dahlias continue on the short side, and are in little demand. Cosmos sell poorly, but are in fair supply. Snapdragons are still available. Good gladioli are popular, but the supply is limited. Sales of pot plants are in-

Pahud automobile at Edinburg while returning home from Columbus last week. They made the return trip by interurban, and the machine was towed to Indianapolis the next day.

Among the visitors last week were Robert Newcomb, C. O. Wilcox, John Michelsen, Joseph Hill and Meyer
Heller.

The largest part of the Heller Bros.
Co. establishment at Newcastle, Ind., will be planted to tomatoes and cucumbers this year, only Russell and Ophelia roses being retained.

The Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co. has built up a good business in goldfish. The fancy aquarium in the store is one of its attractive features. Last year the company sold 3,000 fish.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. had an attractive window last week, the feature of which was a white electric fountain, which sprayed water over a dancing nymph. Around the fountain were small white urns filled with small palms.

Joseph Mock and Oscar Carlstedt recently motored to Chicago.

Paul Berkowitz, representing H.
Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

Clarence R. Greene, of the Hensley
Flower Shop, has been busy recently with bouquets and decorations for soldier weddings.

Hartje & Elder have been cutting some good carnations.

Owing to the illness of Governor
Goodrich, quantities of cut flowers have been ordered recently to the hospital where he has been sick with typhoid fever.

E. E. Temperley has received the papers exempting him from the army.

Lennis Elder has been elected to membership in the Gardeners' Association, and has been made chairman of the committee to investigate the Florists' Mutual Casualty Association for the gardeners.

E. E. T.

Mitchell, S. D.—Hans Jensen, manager of the Gurney Greenhouse Co. establishment, has returned from Yankton, where he had charge of the company's Yankton range during the absence of Manager Topp, who, with his family, has been on a vacation in the east.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

It is said that the largest operators in bulbs at Ollioules, France, now are Holland houses.

STILES D. WOODRUFF, of Yale, son of Watson S. Woodruff, Orange, Conn., has been drafted into the army.

It is reported that Norval Kirby, formerly with Peter Henderson & Co., New York, will open a seed store in Philadelphia.

THE Formosa longiflorum bulbs began arriving a few days ago and the first shipment has been distributed on advance orders. Chicago jobbers received the first shipment this year practically one month later than usual.

As passed by the Senate September 10, the war revenue bill carries the tax on parcel post shipments, including catalogues, but is silent with regard to the other postage increases contained in the bill as it passed the House.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Stricker Seed Co., of Asheville, N. C., that on and after January 1, 1918, the name of the business will be changed to Asheville Seed Co. There will be no change in officers or directors.

THE frosts of September 10 and 11, which were reported to have done considerable damage to seed crops in Michigan, Wisconsin and northern Iowa, did not strike the region near Clarinda, Ia., reports L. E. Finley, of the A. A. Berry Seed Co., Clarinda.

THE Royal Commission on Paper, representing the British government, has placed further restrictions on the printing of catalogues and advertising literature. For the season ending January 31, 1918, the quantity is limited to one-third by weight of paper what was printed in the same period last year.

A FRENCH steamer reached an American Atlantic port, as the censor likes to have it called, at the end of last week, carrying a notable quantity of French bulbs, the candidums and other miscellaneous items being included with what is thought to be the season's concluding shipment of Paper Whites and Romans.

GOOD SEASON FOR BULBS.

"This has been a most successful season," says James A. Brown, of Capitola, Cal., "and we are already booking orders for callas and Purity freesias for 1918 delivery.

"Planting of bulbs is in full swing and although all bulblets possible to secure are being put in, the acreage will not be so large as expected. Freesias in particular lifted this year with a small number of bulblets on them, due to the cold weather last winter. More callas were lifted this year than usual, which means that there was a good supply of planting stock to be had, but it also will cause a light crop next summer, as there are few left to lift and those planted this year, although a heavy planting, will not be old enough to lift for two and three years. Darwin tulips did extra well this year with us and we are planting extra heavily in them this year."

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

"On account of the war gardens, the sale of grass seed is not so large as usual" observed Manager Rotherham, of Wood & Co., Cleveland; "otherwise our seed business has been phenomenal." A pile of cases filled with Paper White narcissi elicited the information that 70,000 of the bulbs, Soleil d'Or, double Roman and Paper White, were sold at retail last year, and that the same number or more are expected to be disposed of this season. The stock has arrived in fine shape. Wood & Co. also are large retail coal dealers at East Cleveland, and are refusing orders for coal, being now short over 500 tons on EARLY MORNING STAR. Deep orange scarlet or flame color in standard, with rich orange pink wings. Under glass it is magnificent. The flowers are large and of best Spencer form and borne in threes and fours in wonderful profusion. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY SONG BIRD. The flower is the same color as "Florence Morse Spencer." The placement of the flowers is splendid for packing and the flowers are borne on long stems in threes and fours. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY MELODY. This is a deeper shade of pink than "Early Song Bird" on white ground, closely resembling "Countess Spencer." The effect is very floriferous. The flowers are borne on long stems and mostly four large well-waved blossoms to each stem. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY SNOWFLAKE. This is the best Early Flowering White Seeded Spencer. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY HEATHER BELL. The flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long stout stems and are of beautiful bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY SPRING MAID. Light pink on a cream ground. It is a most effective flower and carries a great wealth of blossoms borne in fours on long stems. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

contract, with none in sight. Mr. Wood is summering in the Canadian woods, at Muskoka lake.

The Botzum Bros. Co. seed store, of Cleveland, is, with many others, wondering if the Holland and French bulbs will arrive. In instances where the French bulbs were not ordered in combination with the Dutch, most have arrived and are of good quality.

G. Johnson, of Johnson's Seed Store, Cleveland, is visiting the concern's seed farms in Michigan, leaving the business in the able care of Junior Johnson.

A. C. Kendel's store at Cleveland has passed through a veritable whirlwind, in the words of Manager Bailey, who added that they are already contemplating the transfer to the splendid new building, to be ready a year hence. Commenting on the criticism made in a trade journal regarding publicity, it was observed that, as seeds are a necessity and flowers a luxury, it followed that different courses must be taken in that respect. Mr. Kendel is taking a short rest. As secretary he reports that the American Seed Trade Association is in a prosperous condition.

Manager Manley, of the Harvey Seed Co., Buffalo, N. Y., observed that they were all "up in the air" as regards the seed situation for the coming year. "We have just released several bushels of black wax beans at $1 per bushel," said he, "presumably for packaging, but we shall hold on to all we have left, as it looks as though the new stock will be scarce. The supply from our home state will hardly cut any figure." There is a brisk demand for seeds of all kinds for fall sowing.

The Theilmann Seed Co., of Erie, Pa., has done a big business and reports a good supply of locally grown cereals, but prices are expected to remain firm. The market gardening trade is improving. Good prices are obtained for crops, despite the successful war gardens. W. M.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

For so early in the season, the advance in business has been remarkable. Not only are the retailers busier, but the shipping business to outside points also has greatly increased. Chrysanthemums are now well in their stride and will continue to improve, unless bad weather sets in. A large number are being grown this year and at present it looks as though prices would continue reasonable.

Roses are better than at the last writing and the demand is increasing accordingly. In almost every other line stock has shortened up considerably. Asters are practically over, gladioli are almost gone and both field and indoor carnations are on the short side, while centaureas, with the exception of the blue cornflower, are not plentiful. Orchids are practically out of the market and there has not been such a shortage of cattleyas for several years. The smaller spray orchids are selling at prices hitherto unheard-of. Some Lælia crispa blooms have found a fairly good market, but odontoglossums do not seem to be popular. Valley is short in supply; greens are plentiful; ferns are scarce.

Various Notes.

George W. Smith is working long shifts at the new nursery at Sherman, and things are shaping nicely for the season's business. He has purchased a new roadster for Mrs. Smith, but in her absence we notice he is trying it out himself. Mrs. Smith is taking a mountain trip with friends.

Reports are good from the Santa Cruz Evergreen Co., the season starting in well, according to B. Tassano. N. Gondolfo starts north this week on a business trip.

John C. Chase, of Derry, N. H., started for home this week. Mr. Chase has had quite a visit here and says he leaves with regret and hopes to return next year.

H. Reeve Darling, of Darling's Flower Shop, reports a good start for the season's business. He is already wearing off that coat of tan laid on at the beach. The transference of the ice-box and other changes in the store give it the appearance of being much larger and lighter.

Good funeral work and several decorations provided the activity at Frank Lichtenberg's last week, according to J. Gordon, who says all hands have been busy. The store is undergoing a renovation and redecoration, the scheme being an attractive one in red and black, quite distinct from anything seen here.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, is calling on the trade this week.

R. Overstreet, of J. W. Wolters' force, reported good funeral work for last week.

The Flower Gardens, the new name of the Roserie Flower Shop, are cutting many thousands of dahlias daily, which meet with a fine demand, both at their own retail store and at those of others. Some changes have been made at the Roserie store, and business is keeping up well for the season.

An increase in shipping business was noted at the S. Murata & Co. store during the week.

Walter Armacost & Co. are going largely into the plant business again this year, the stock including, among other items, about 13,000 fine cyclamens. The plants are looking exceptionally well this season, as, indeed, is everything at the place. The extremely high cost of material on the coast may prevent any additions to the range just at present, but the firm has secured plenty of land for extension.

The L. A. Floral Co. reports a large increase in shipping business. Paul Miller has left and expects soon to be sent to camp.

J. Roller, of the California Cut Flower Co., reports retail business fine on Seventh street. The large new blocks of business houses going up there are nearing completion; in fact, some of them have opened. This should bring a large transient business.

The Broadway Florist continues to enjoy big business in the better class of funeral work.

Russell Boaz, formerly with the Germain Seed & Plant Co., but now with the American Chemical Co. as fertilizer salesman, has received a little daughter to keep his son and heir company.

Howard & Smith are finding an exceptionally brisk demand for their sweet pea and aster seeds, the magnificent varieties they grow at Montebello being superior to some of the market strains. Fred Howard takes a deep interest in the improvement of all classes of florists' seeds. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

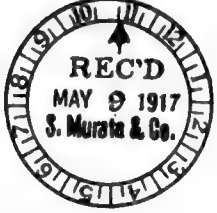

With asters receding in supply, chrysanthemums are rapidly becoming the dominant feature of the market. The cut is increasing daily and the shipping season soon will be at its height. Violets are still soft for shipping, but many are sold locally. It probably will be the middle of October before the shipping season gets well under way, or at least until there is rain to harden the blooms. There is little change in the rose situation, except that the offerings are gradually improving. Ophelia shows up well and so does Russell, while new-crop Cecile Brunner roses leave nothing to be desired. More good American Beauties could be used to splendid advantage.

Carnations have been a negligible quantity for some time; the quality seems to improve but slowly. Good stock should be plentiful in the near future, however. As far as the orchid, gardenia and valley problem is concerned, there is little comment to be made. Some days there is enough valley to fill the requirements quite nicely, but the receipts are rather spasmodic. Gardenias are hardly so good in quality and the shortage of orchids is still acute. The downtown retailers have promises from the growers that there will be more orchids in a week or ten days, and this furnishes a ray of hope, but the storemen are tired of waiting. Cut cyclamens are plentiful and meet with a strong demand. The potted plants have a good sale, also. The supply of zinnias holds on remarkably well, rivaling dahlias, chrysanthemums and other seasonables in the daily sales.

Various Notes.

Several large consignments of Formosa lily bulbs have arrived from Japan. They are higher priced this year than usual, on account of the increased freight rates.

Eugene Dailedouze, of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived in San Francisco a few days ago and has been visiting the nurseries in the bay district before leaving for Los Angeles and other points in southern California. He is accompanied by Mrs. Dailedouze.

C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka and San Jose, has been spending several days in the city.

Mrs. Wessell, bookkeeper for Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been south on an automobile trip, in the course of which she visited her brother, A. J. Rossi, of the company, who is recuperating on a ranch near Santa Barbara, Cal.

Large truck-loads of asters, dahlias, delphiniums and other flowers are being received daily at the store of MacRorie & McLaren, from the Lake Merced nursery, which is devoted exclusively to outdoor flowers. Thirty-five new seedling dahlias were shown in the window a few days ago. The company has a fine cut of giganteum lilies and is making large shipments to other sections of the Pacific coast, as well as supplying local demands. Walter Hofinghoff reports considerable activity in landscape work. He left the end of the week for Stockton on a large parking job and while away will visit a large estate near Sacramento, Cal., which he is laying out.

John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, went to St. Louis, Mo., to attend the park superintendents' convention. He is accompanied by Mrs. McLaren. He writes about

The Market.

Heavy rains have paralyzed the outdoor flowers. Sweet peas were the first to suffer and are now off the market. Asters, which usually are at their best at this season, are now so badly damaged by the excessive rain that they are practically useless. With these two standbys off the market and the greenhouse stock not yet in, florists are somewhat at a loss to find enough variety to suit the whims of the customers. Gladioli are still good and, owing to the absence of peas and good asters, are pushed to the limit. Lilies of all varieties are on the market, but first-class stock is not plentiful. Local valley and orchids have not yet put in an appearance. Carnations are not of good quality, and are scarce, at that. Potted ferns are coming in nicely and are some relief.

Greens are none too abundant. Greenhousemen state that greens are not a profitable crop, especially smilax, which is being discarded by some of the growers. Wild huckleberry and sword ferns are used extensively and blend harmoniously with the autumn flowers.

Various Notes.

A. J. Hart, who has been with the Acme Floral Co. during the last two years, has purchased the S. L. Harper place on Pacific avenue and planted it to lettuce. Mr. Hart has not severed his connection with the Acme Floral Co., but will operate the new place as a side interest.

A. G. Seamons and his son Joseph have returned from a two weeks' trip east of the mountains, in Mr. Seamons' car. Mr. Seamons called on florists in the different cities.

J. L. Bourne, of the Bourne Flower Shop, Yakima, stated that business has improved fifty per cent over last year.

it appeared that the blooms would be in good shape. All growers were urged to enter their blooms this year, as the prizes were worth competing for. There were fifty-two trophies offered in the various classes, including twenty-nine bronze medals. The show was in the Rhodes Bros. roof garden. B. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The weather has continued cool, with considerable rain, the ground finally having become soaked after the long drought. Asters suffered somewhat, but it is expected they will revive. Sweet peas have disappeared from the market. Gladioli are becoming scarce. Lilies still are plentiful. Roses are of better quality, as are carnations. There are some chrysanthemums in the market, but it will be several weeks before they are plentiful. There are a few good blue delphiniums, a color that is welcome. Business has been about normal, with the usual run of funeral and wedding work.

Various Notes.

The county fair at Gresham last week was of interest to the trade, H. A. Lewis, the nurseryman, and Mr. Gill, the dahlia grower, being interested in the management, while members of the Portland Floral Society contributed the flower beds, which were planted in July and were in fine condition. They contained dahlias, marigolds, geraniums, heliotropes, cannas, roses and other flowers. A. J. Clarke, J. Feser and J. H. Wood acted as judges and awarded prizes to O. E. Panzer, the Mountain View Floral Co. and William E. Dungey. The Gill Bros. Seed Co. had a fine exhibit of dahlias and the Mountain View Floral Co. showed roses.

Representatives of the supply houses, who have visited Portland, say their orders have been of good size, denoting that the trade expects a good business this fall.

Growers are becoming alarmed over the bulb situation. The supply of Formosa lily bulbs from Japan is a month overdue. Paper White and Roman narcissus bulbs are on their way, some already having been received. Two growers have received word that Dutch

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

The American Association of Park Superintendents at Monks' Mound State Park, September 11.

THE nursery trade, or at least the wholesale end of it, is steadily approaching a businesslike standard of credit and terms of payment.

THERE is a considerable shortage of rose and fruit tree stocks in England, but the British government refuses to consider the application of the Horticultural Trades' Association for permission to import stocks from France.

PARK SUPERINTENDENTS MEET.

St. Louis Host of Association.

At the final session of the American Association of Park Superintendents, which held its convention at St. Louis September 11 to 13, officers for the ensuing year were elected and Hartford, Conn., was selected for the 1918 meeting. The officers elected were as follows:

President, J. F. Foster, Chicago, Ill.; vice-president, John Berry, Denver, Colo.; secretary-treasurer, Roland W. Cotterill, Seattle, Wash., the latter being the present incumbent; directors for three years, George H. Hollister, Hartford, Conn., and L. P. Jensen, St. Louis.

After the close of the convention September 13 the delegates and their families were taken for an automobile trip through the south St. Louis parks and the Missouri Botanical Garden. After luncheon at the World's Fair pavilion in Forest park, the party were entertained at the Municipal theater.

Sessions at Planters Hotel.

The convention was a success in every particular. Arrangements for the sessions, which were held at the Planters hotel, were made by a local committee consisting of E. Strehle, L. P. Jensen, E. P. Griffen, Julius Koenig and W. W. Ohlweiler. The delegates found the meeting room decorated with plants and cut flowers from the Forest park greenhouses, while on either side of the president's table was a large vase of yellow Queen Helen cannas.

The sessions of the convention opened September 11 at 10 a. m., with President John F. Walsh, Jr., of New York, in the chair. The delegates were welcomed to St. Louis by John Schmoll, director of public welfare. President Walsh made the response. The usual routine business was then transacted.

In the afternoon the delegates were the guests of the East St. Louis Park Department on an automobile trip through the East St. Louis parks. The trip ended with a luncheon at the St. Clair County Club.

The Addresses.

The morning session September 12 was taken up with addresses. Nelson Cunliff, commissioner of parks and recreation, St. Louis, was the first speaker. Papers on "Tree Work in New York City," by Prof. Laurie P. Cox, of Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., and on "National Parks," by Horace M. Albright, assistant director of the National Park Service, Washington, D. C., were read. A visit to the north St. Louis parks followed. In the evening the delegates were guests at the annual Shaw banquet at the Missouri Botanical Garden.

During the meetings Secretary Cotterill reported that fifty new members had been added during the last year, making the total membership 208. Forty-nine cities were represented at the convention. It was decided that the association issue a monthly publication to be known as the American Park Superintendent, of which Mr. Cotterill will be editor.

At the close of the convention the association thanked the St. Louis committees for the entertainment provided, and the local florists, whose automobiles

Oak Brand Shrubs

Berberis Thunbergii

(Grown from Cuttings)

OUR Berberis are grown from cuttings. After carefully comparing them with stock grown from seedlings, our customers are almost invariably impressed with the very obvious superiority of the grown-from-cuttings stock.

Greater uniformity. Greater shapeliness. Greater sturdiness. These are the three points that particularly appeal to them.

The Park Superintendent of Baltimore recently paid us a visit, looked over our Berberis, and immediately ordered a carload of them.

Oak Brand Shrubs

Berberis Thunbergii

(Grown from Cuttings)

OUR Berberis are grown from cuttings. After carefully comparing them with stock grown from seedlings, our customers are almost invariably impressed with the very obvious superiority of the grown-from-cuttings stock.

Greater uniformity. Greater shapeliness. Greater sturdiness. These are the three points that particularly appeal to them.

The Park Superintendent of Baltimore recently paid us a visit, looked over our Berberis, and immediately ordered a carload of them.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The supply of stock last week showed a tendency to shorten. There was a sufficient supply to take care of ordinary orders, but there was no surplus that had to be moved at bargain prices. Business in general has not been so good as it should be at this time, and there seems to be the need of an impetus, which, undoubtedly, could be supplied by concerted effort.

The supply of roses, while good, was not large enough to fill every order, and although the shortage was not acute it could be felt to some extent. The smaller supply was not marked enough to raise prices to any appreciable extent, although the quality is good enough to warrant better prices than have been received. Asters are still in good supply and are selling well. The trade, however, is anxiously awaiting the carnations, which will not arrive for several weeks yet; that is, in sufficient quantity to cut any figure in the market.

Last week the weather man predicted a frost, but his prophecy came to nothing, for which we are duly grateful. There is a quantity of stock out in the field and a frost at this time would do considerable damage.

Various Notes.

Lubliner, the Florist, in the Plankinton Arcade, was more than busy this month with opening decorations for new stores in the same building. The Brickner Garment Shop opened September 5 and the decorations were supplied by Lubliner. September 10 Lubliner decorated the new establishment of Bedell, of New York. Over 200 plants and ferns were used, as well as a number of baskets. Hanson's new fur store used a large number of baskets.

Harold Baumgarten returned Saturday, September 15, from a belated vacation spent in an auto tour of the northern part of the state. He states that he feels fine and is ready for a season's hard work.

Following are the names of some of the out-of-town members of the trade who visited the different wholesale houses last week: Mr. Hood, Spring Green, Wis.; Mrs. L. C. Stair, Mineral Point, Wis.; Louis Hartung, Two Rivers, Wis.; Mr. Clout, Fort Atkinson; Peter Philipp, Rhinelander; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Otto, Neenah, Wis.; J. E. Matthewson, Sheboygan; Chas. Cowdry, with the Janesville Floral Co., Janesville, Wis.; Miss Rehl, with the Flower Shop, Racine, Wis.; L. Turner, Sr., Kenosha; Miss Rudolph, Manitowoc; E. Amerpohl, Janesville, Wis. Sunday, September 16, J. Clarkson, Manistee, Mich., and A. Benke, Watertown, Wis., were visitors.

H. V. Hunkel brought his family home from Nagawicka lake, Sunday, September 16, after a stay since last June.

DREER'S SELECT FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

Realizing that the practical elimination of Azaleas and other imported plants for Easter forcing will create an extraordinary demand for Hydrangeas, we have made every possible effort to prepare a sufficient supply of these useful plants.

We have the largest and most up-to-date stock of French Hydrangeas in this country. Our plants this year promise to be the best we have ever offered. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders will be reserved in strict rotation. If you want some of these for Easter forcing, you should place your order at once for either October or later delivery.

The varieties named below are offered, except where noted:

5-inch pots, at $25.00 per 100;
6-inch pots, at 35.00 per 100.

Attraction. A very pretty pink, early and free.
Avalanche. A deservedly popular white variety.
Beaute Vendomoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink. The individual florets attain a diameter of four inches.
Directeur Vuillermet. Great trusses of good substantial, pretty pink, fringed, medium-sized florets.
Eclairer. Carmine-rose.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size. Color a very pleasing pink. Early, vigorous.
Galathea. Large trusses. White, changing to pink; fringed.
General de Vibraye. One of the most popular and reliable pink sorts.
La France. A new fringed white of vigorous habit and producing large trusses.
La Lorraine. Large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink.
La Perle. An exceedingly attractive white variety with large fringed flowers.
Lille Mouillere. Unique and designed to remain in strong demand for many years. One of the very best. Color, carmine.
5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
L'Islette. Rosy-carmine. Large trusses of deeply fringed flowers. A very promising and reliable sort.
5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Louis Foucard. Very free and early, deep rosy-carmine.
5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Louis Mouillere. A fine deep rose-pink. Substantial and vigorous.
Mme. A. Rich. Late, free, sturdy, good compact pink.
Mme. Aug. Nonin. An unusually pretty clear pale-pink. Growth vigorous. Foliage strong and attractive.
5-inch pots, $30.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Large white.
Mme. Legou. Immense trusses of compactly placed florets, pure white.
Mme. R. Jacquet. An unusually attractive variety of unique coloring. The flowers when opening remind one of clusters of apple blossoms.

The Markets.

Business was a bit quiet last week. Roses are plentiful and of good quality, but carnations are scarce and of inferior grade. Some good indoor asters are to be had, aside from the many poor ones offered. Easter and rubrum lilies are fine and plentiful enough to meet requirements. Gladioli still are in large supply, of fine quality and selling well. Golden Glow mums are here, but are not selling so well as might be. On the whole, there is an abundance of stock, with sales rather slow.

Club Meeting.

The Tri-City Florists' Club met in regular session at the J. W. Bettendorf conservatories, on invitation of P. J. Pearson. It was an afternoon meeting and the club members had an opportunity to view the spacious grounds and beds of flowers, including carpet designs. The conservatories, the largest private establishment in these parts, have shown up well under the careful management of Mr. Pearson and his assistants.

The meeting was called to order by President Anderson. The picnic committee submitted its final report and was discharged with thanks. After the general business had been transacted, the members partook of a fine supper. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Pearson for their hospitality, after which the club adjourned to meet at the residence of William Goos, October 11.

Various Notes.

Mrs. George Forber, of Forber & Bird, is on a visit to Madison, Wis. She will stop off at Chicago on her return home.

Miss M. A. Tierney, of the Bills Floral Co., last week had a fine window display of ferns, rubrum lilies and gladioli.

W. G.

Erie, Pa.—William Honeysett is anticipating Jack Frost by taking an early batch of cuttings. Geraniums, especially, will be doubly useful the coming winter, and he does not intend to be caught napping.

Hybrid Tea Rose LOS ANGELES

From the many complimentary letters that we have received from amateurs who have purchased the Los Angeles Rose the past spring, we are convinced that this variety will become one of the most popular Hybrid Tea Roses for bedding purposes.

Every plant sent out during the past season has been a live advertisement and we are confident that there will be a phenomenal demand for it in the spring of 1918.

We are sole distributing agents for the introducers for all points east of the Mississippi River and we are now booking advance orders.

The price for strong two-year-old California field grown plants for 1918 will be $1.50 each at retail. The general wholesale price will be $1.25 each, but we are prepared to book orders now for lots of fifty plants or more at the rate of $100.00 per 100. Delivery of these to be made as soon as stock arrives; usually during the latter part of December.

McGredy's New Hybrid Tea Rose GOLDEN EMBLEM

We are also American distributors for this wonderful new yellow rose of McGredy's which attracted so much attention in our display of Roses at the exhibition of the American Rose Society at Philadelphia, March, 1917, and which was awarded the Society's Silver Medal.

The following is the introducer's description:

"A great improvement on Rayon d'Or, the color being richer and deeper, with larger and more perfect blooms. It is so perpetual flowering that as a garden and bedding rose it is without a rival. At its best it surpasses Marechal Niel in shade. Its habit of growth is ideal: free and branching, with holly-like, glossy green foliage; delightfully scented."

Price: Strong, two-year-old, imported, budded plants, ready in December, $2.00 each.

The Market.

The wholesalers were better satisfied with the returns of business last week than those of the week previous. Roses are improving in quality and increasing in quantity. Prices of the better grades of stock are a little better than they have been. The better grades of asters and gladioli are on the decrease. Dahlias are more plentiful. The retailers have noticed an increase in the demand for cut flowers, and funeral work remains about the same.

Various Notes.

A new company has been started under the name of South Side Floral Co., at Sixty-ninth street and College avenue. It has three houses, 27x138, in which 6,000 carnation plants were set last April. The firm now is cutting an average of 200 carnations per day. Sweet peas, mums and greens also are grown.

Henry Kusik went duck hunting last week, bringing back 175 ducks, besides one duckling, and almost got himself. He reports all of his Christmas supplies on hand.

Eric Frandensen has 11,000 exceptionally fine roses in his new house.

The Forest Hill cemetery greenhouse stock looks well; the mums are especially good.

Charles Thomas is planting many hardy perennials. He has had his store repainted inside and out.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting a fine batch of roses every day and soon will be cutting carnations.

Arthur Newell had a good week in funeral work.

W. J. Barnes had the order for a large decoration at the Emory, Bird & Thayer Co. store last week, and has a larger one for next week.

Edward Humfeld furnished the decorations for the fall opening of the Jones Store Co.

Mr. and Mrs. John McLaren, of San Francisco, stopped here on their way to St. Louis. Mr. McLaren is superintendent of Golden Gate park, at San Francisco.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and A. F. Longren, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., were recent visitors here.

Erie, Pa.—“Just a few days spent in communing with nature by the shores of Lake Chautauqua was all we could spare time for this year,” observed J. V. Laver. “Summer trade has been unusually good and we are most sanguine regarding business for the coming winter, bulbs or no bulbs.”

The Market.

Market conditions were fitful last week. During the first part of the week the supply of stock was plentiful, but there was little demand to move the accumulations. There was a lively demand later, however, and good flowers met with a fine call. The first frost of the season greatly curtailed the outdoor flowers.

The supply of roses is increasing daily, and the quality is improving. American Beauties meet with a slow sale. In the baby varieties Tip-Top and Cecile Brunner were in best demand. Carnations are arriving in larger numbers and the demand is good, considering the time of the year. Astors are dwindling in supply; the best are gone for the season. Gladioli are gradually going out, too. Chrysanthemums are to be reckoned with, although as yet they are not plentiful. There is a plentiful supply of lilies, but valley and orchids continue scarce. There are tuberoses and Japanese lilies sell well, both cut and as plants. There is nothing in the blooming plant line, except aster plants and the foliage plants, caladiums and dracenas.

The demand has centered in funeral work lately, with an occasional wedding. Counter trade has been slack. The Jewish New Year created a good demand for cut flowers and plant decorations in the synagogue.

Various Notes.

The Indiana association of Park commissioners held its annual convention in this city. The convention was opened by an address of welcome by Mayor Hosey, with a response by President Coffin.

Mrs. Frank J. Markey is seriously ill at her home on Hail avenue. Miss Markey, who has charge of the downtown store of Markey Bros., is nursing her mother.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a number of orders for the Jewish New Year celebration. John H. Doswell has returned from a trip to Richmond, Ind., where he ordered several hundred plants of the new rose, Columbia.

Walter Knecht, of F. J. Knecht & Co., has returned from his vacation, which he spent in New York city. At the greenhouses the men are cutting some fine Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer and Russell roses. The young carnation stock is doing nicely.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses, 20x300 feet, of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These had been in bloom constantly since November.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

CLOGGED BY CONDENSATION.

We are sending you a description and sketch of our heating system, so that you may be able to give us some advice. As we have trouble in draining the system evenly, we propose to abandon the old 4-inch return and install two 2-inch returns, one for the west houses and the other for the east houses. There is a fall of two feet or more from the north to the south end, for the return of the condensation. The boilers are about on the ground level, but are about three feet below the level of most of the range. There is a trap on the top of the boiler, with a receiver at the bottom. According to the manufacturers' figures, the trap should be of ample capacity.

I think our trouble is largely due to the fact that we run the system on low pressure—not enough to work the trap. It takes nearly five pounds of steam to work the trap. We have a great deal of mild weather, when only a little steam is required and not enough pressure is kept up to work the trap. During such times the pipes fill with condensation, which prevents uniform distribution of the heat.

We have two boilers, each fifty-four inches by fourteen feet, and each containing thirty-six 4-inch tubes, fourteen feet long. They are called 60-horsepower boilers. They are located directly south of the houses, with which they are connected by a 6-inch main flow, as shown by the dotted line in the sketch. To the boiler is attached, also, a 4-inch main return, with which all the houses except the south two are connected. The fuel used is natural gas. The west six houses are used for carnations and require a temperature of 55 degrees at night. The east five houses are for roses and need a night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees. The north three houses should have a temperature of 50, 55 and 60 degrees, respectively, and are used for potted stock of various sorts and for propagation.

The side walls consist of three feet of wood or concrete and two feet of glass, except in the south two houses, which have 7-foot walls, with three feet

The Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler

Our WATER TUBE Steam Boiler has WATER FRONT, WATER SIDES, WATER BACK and is provided with immense SELF-CLEANING HEATING SURFACES and circulating water tubes.

The WATER TUBE PRINCIPLE is adopted from the large water tube steam boilers used for power work; flue surface used in this manner is much more effective than fire tubes.

With the water tubes the water circulates THROUGH THE TUBES, while the OUTSIDE OF THE TUBES is exposed to the heated gases.

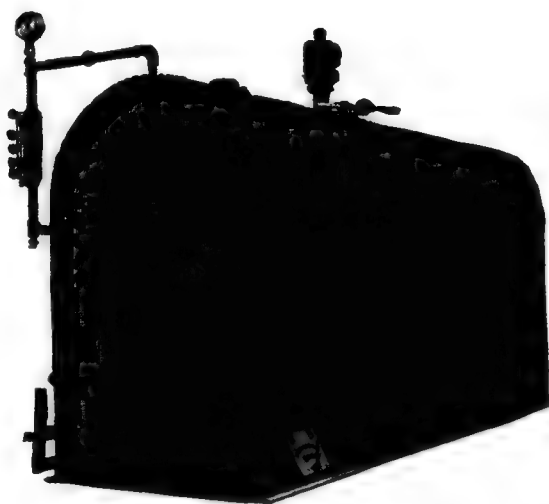

The hottest gases impinge against the crown sheet fire surface, then follow a downward course along the smooth inside surfaces, leaving the boiler at the coolest part through the rear of ashpit base.

In this manner the fire travels along six surfaces, transmitting the heat to the thin water ways, at the two sides, the top, the front and the back of the boiler, and surrounding the water tubes.

This boiler is the fastest steamer in existence.

No other boiler can equal it for fuel economy.

WHAT THE USERS SAY

Walton, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1916.

Your new No. 46 WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER is the finest steam boiler we have ever fired, and have fired eleven different makes before.

Your boiler keeps steam from 9:00 P. M. to 6:00 A. M. without attention in zero nights.

Before we had three boilers and could not control temperatures as easily as we can with yours. The water line is steady, and it holds its steam well. The little time consumed in cleaning same is wonderful, and we are very well pleased.

The other morning it went down to 4° below zero, and I fired the No. 46 Boiler at 11:00 P. M., had 10 lbs. of steam on with the draft half open, the houses all registering 48° to 52° and the rose house 60° the next morning.

give us some suggestions about the draining of the system. R. B.—Okla.

The sketch shows four houses, 21x186, in the west block, with two 2-inch flows and six 1½-inch returns. In the east block there are three houses, 21x100, heated by three 2-inch flows and six 1½-inch returns in each house. The north block consists of three houses, 21x75, heated by two 2-inch flows and one 1½-inch flow and by five 1½-inch returns. The south block contains two houses 300 feet long and respectively twenty-eight feet eight inches and twenty-seven feet four inches wide, and heated by three 2-inch flows and six 1½-inch returns.

Although it may be a little high to rate the boilers at sixty horsepower, they are certainly of fifty-six horsepower and the two of them should be able to handle the radiation for 60,000 square feet of glass, the amount in the houses, as stated in the sketch. For the purposes mentioned, 7,300 square feet of radiation would be sufficient in the northern states, where the temperature drops to 10 to 20 degrees below zero, and more than is required in Oklahoma.

So far as we can judge from the description of the piping, there is no reason why satisfactory results cannot be obtained, provided sufficient pressure is carried to enable the trap to work. Although a smaller return pipe would answer, we do not think it would help much to make the change proposed and we would advise the carrying of a higher pressure in the boiler.

To correct the difficulty mentioned, we would place valves on both ends of three of the return pipes in each house, and would take out all but one flow pipe in each house, except in the south houses, where two will be needed.

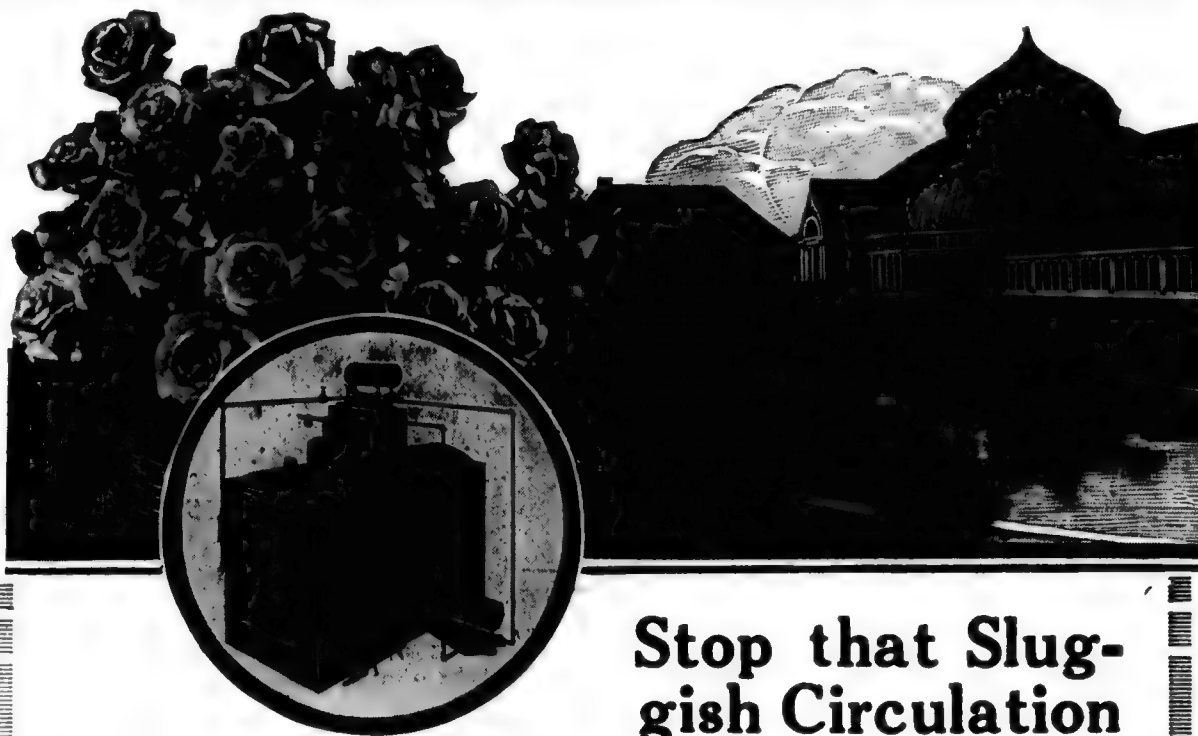

It is stated that the boiler is three feet below most of the returns. If this means that the top of the boiler is three or even two feet below the returns, a by-pass around the trap might be put in, so that a gravity system could be used in mild weather.

RUN A FLOW NEAR THE RIDGE.

Please advise me regarding the heating of a greenhouse 13½x100. The side walls are four and one-half feet high and are of wooden construction, with no glass. The ridge is nine feet from the floor. There will be three 3-foot benches, with heat under the outside benches only. The house will be heated by steam from a large central plant. I am planning to use four rows of 1½-inch pipe on the side walls, placing the top row twelve inches below the bottom of the bench. The service house, from which steam will enter the greenhouse, is at the north end.

P. A. H.—Utah.

We do not feel sufficiently well informed about the winter temperature in Utah to advise definitely regarding the piping, but we would suggest running a 2-inch flow pipe about two feet below the ridge, with which to supply the coils on the side walls. Where the temperature at night occasionally drops to 10 degrees below zero we would use three 1½-inch coils on each wall, but if 10 degrees above zero is a minimum temperature, only two returns upon each wall will be required, even with a steam pressure of not more than five pounds.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held September 12 at Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, with President James McCarthy presiding. There was a good attendance. Herbert Sage was elected an active member. One application for membership was received.

President McCarthy appointed Alex. Sherriffe, John W. Everitt and Thomas Meech to judge the exhibits. The following were awarded prizes: John F. Johnston for the best muskmelon and Robert Jones for three heads of celery. Honorable mention was awarded to William Noonan for a vase of seedling dahlias.

John F. Johnston gave an interesting account of the New York state fair at Syracuse, where he went to help the Nassau County Farm Bureau stage its exhibit. Otto Caub, of the Lord & Burnham Co., also gave a short talk.

By a vote of the society it was decided that all members who have enlisted, or who may enlist, or who have been drafted, or may be drafted into the army will be allowed a free membership for the duration of the war.

The exhibit schedule for the next meeting, to be held October 9, is as follows: P. W. Popp's special prize of $5 for the best vase of twenty-five dahlias in variety; six cactus dahlias, one color; six peonies, one color, and six decorative dahlias, one color.

The annual dahlia show will be held October 9. The schedule of sixty-one classes has been divided into six sections, containing classes for dahlias, outdoor flowers, roses, fruits, vegetables and plants. There will be an admission charge of 50 cents, the proceeds going to the American Red Cross.

Protect Your Houses Before Cold Weather Sets In

Remember—

all ordinary paint will not do. The conditions are extreme—not to say remarkable—and it takes a paint complying with certain technical requirements to give satisfaction. You will find Greenhouse White to be the paint.

The only paint that will not blister or peel is made for us by paint experts, by people who have made a life-long study of painting problems, and in buying a product which bears their endorsement you can depend upon securing a product satisfactory in all respects for the purpose intended.

Greenhouse White

There isn't a more honest Paint made than this and it is backed up by an institution whose reputation for honest dealing cannot be questioned.

Try 5 gallons and be convinced—it won't cost you much—when you consider the quality.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

having been extensively entertained by Samuel Murray, of Kansas City.

J. Varsi has sold his retail business at Reno, Nev., which he conducted during the last two and a half years, and is in San Francisco on a vacation, prior to deciding on future plans. G. Rossi & Co., of this city, were the purchasers.

The firm of J. B. Boland contemplated moving to a new location this fall, but was unable to get the location desired and so has made arrangements to continue in the present quarters on Kearny street until next July, when the other place will be available. Manager Charles Shellgrain reports business well up to normal.

Peter Ferrari is bringing in some fine Russell roses.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is beginning to cut new-crop Cecile Brunner roses, which is earlier than usual. The management hopes to have a fine crop for Thanksgiving. Several large orders of chrysanthemums were forwarded by this concern last week, which marked the beginning of the long-distance shipping season.

Albert O. Stein, who operates the stand in the Palace hotel in conjunction with his large establishment on Sutter street, reports many table decorations at the hotel.

W. Onishi, of the United Flower & Supply Co., calls attention to a shortage of box shooks here, which makes it rather difficult to get orders filled. Prices are higher than usual. He reports the chrysanthemum season starting off encouragingly. The early varieties have sold well locally and now good orders are coming in for long-distance shipments.

Golden Gate Florist is the name over a new store just opened on O'Farrell street, near Powell street. It is under the management of Miss Julia Broberg, recently from New York state. The store is small, but every foot of space is used to advantage. The lower part of the walls is a lavender gray, while the drop ceiling is cream-colored, and the same color scheme is effectively carried out in the fixtures.

A. Cooper, of the Joseph force, spent the week end in Sacramento, taking a prominent part in the Native Sons' celebration. He says the florists of the capital city were called upon to decorate a number of the floats, which furnished an outlet for many flowers.

Avansino Bros. continue to feature Baby Doll roses with good success, according to Henry Avansino.

Hassard, the Florist, of Oakland, maintained an attractive booth at the recent exhibition given at Neptune beach, under the auspices of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce manufacturers' committee.

Joseph A. Borirard has brought an injunction suit against the Catalytic Chemical Co., which operates a factory for the manufacture of dyes and dye-stuffs at Third street and Bancroft way, Berkeley. The fumes from the factory destroy the plants and flowers at his nursery near-by.

G. E. Terrill, of Lethbridge, Alberta, was in San Francisco recently on his return from the east, via Los Angeles. He sailed from here to Portland, Ore., expecting to visit other points as he proceeded homeward. S. H. G.

ingredients that are immediately
available in the form of Nitrogen, but many others that continuously become
goes on.

N. A. C. Ten-Ten Tankage is pure

animal tankage. No filler is used. It is the cheapest, safest and most quick- ly available fertilizer that you can use
as a top-dressing for Chrysanthemums,
Roses, Carnations and all other plants
that make growth previous to flowering.
Many growers are ordering carload
lots from us.

PORTLAND NEWS NOTES.

bulbs will reach New York about September 25. Most growers have planted heavily in freesias and other bulbs from California.

O. E. Panzer, George Teufel and A. F. Lalane enjoyed a fishing and hunting trip to the coast over Labor day. A broken auto wheel added to the excitement of the outing.

Mr. Boyce, of Martin & Forbes, had charge of the decorations for the Wilcox-Squires wedding. Lilies, gladioli and ferns were used.

Fred Leitz, foreman for Niklas & Son, has returned from a two weeks' visit at Walla Walla. Hans Niklas was at the range during his absence.

Mr. Young, of Young & Lester, Walla Walla, was in town recently buying stock. He reports business good in his district.

Hoffmann's old store and greenhouse at 768 Glison street is being torn down.

The Swiss Floral Co. store and greenhouse on the west side had an attractive display of ferns and palms.

Oscar Moeller opened his flower store at Astoria September 15. He was in Portland last week arranging for stock and supplies.

A. Rahn, of Spokane, was a visitor last week.

Arthur Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was a visitor last week, calling on the trade. He reports that business is good.

Harry Bamford, of Martin & Forbes, is recuperating at Foley Springs, on the McKenzie river.

Don Wadsworth, of Martin & Forbes, has joined the hospital corps of the army and is now at the training camp at American lake. His father, who was the chrysanthemum grower at the firm's east side range, has resigned and is working at the shipyards.

Rahn & Herbert have some fine poinsettias and begonias, which they will have ready for the Christmas season.

Max M. Smith is enjoying himself at Cannon beach. He has some fine chrysanthemums at his greenhouses at East Twenty-eighth and Sandy streets.

The People's Floral Shop has moved to 245 Alder street, two doors away from the old location on the corner.

Eugene Dailedouze, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was a visitor last week. He is making a tour of the Pacific coast cities.

Niklas & Son's new refrigerator is ready for the ice and flowers.

All the growers are short of help. The retailers, too, complain of a shortage, especially of delivery boys.

Albert Herbert is spending his vacation at Tacoma and other Puget sound places. W. G. W.

PANSIES.

Being a pansy fancier, I have grown for 16 years for pleasure and profit. In 1916 I spent six weeks hunting a place centrally located to grow pansies for the trade. We are located about 1600 ft. up on the north side of a mountain, which gives us long hours of sun. Our dews are like rain. Soil just suits pansies. Makes them short and bunchy and we are growing a million and giving our customers the best that money and skill can produce. Our gardens are perfect in every respect. Though it gets 20 degrees below zero at times, we can ship all winter. Our method of sprouting is not known to the trade. It gives strong, healthy, bunchy, thrifty plants. I am offering the finest plants that can be had anywhere, of the best strains, and our prices are based on good values. Steele's Giant Private Mastodon in bud and bloom, $5.00 per 1000; Giant, mixed, in bud and bloom, $4.00 per 1000; 6 to 8 at $3.00 per 1000; our Ozark Mammoth strain, large, for greenhouse use, $3.50 per 1000. This strain cannot be beat. Giant Trimardeau, 4 to 8, $2.50 per 1000. Our packing is perfect; light strong crates; can ship anywhere all winter; good service. Let us grow your stock and get quality. Our terms are cash, hence, good service.
Ozark Pansy Gardens, Westplains, Mo.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 2 1/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS. Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

Sylvania, O.—James B. Gray, who recently purchased the Cushman Gladiolus Farm, says he will specialize in sweet peas and carnations for the wholesale market.

Paterson, N. J.—The trade has been recruited from practically every walk of life and a community of florists would be able to place almost every human activity, from the cradle to the grave, in the hands of an experienced person. For instance, C. E. Walker, of Walker Bros., who specialize in dahlias, gladioli and roses, still is a pressman on the Paterson Sun, although he hopes soon to be able to devote all his time to the affairs of the firm.

EFFICIENT HOUSES

Our long experience in greenhouse construction enables us to give the best in service, material and workmanship, and the purchaser of ICKES-BRAUN construction can invest without a doubt as to the efficiency of his houses. Each detail is perfected and approved—there is no experimenting with your money.

Our new "LEAK-PROOF" gutter continues to prove its superiority. In a new range of houses recently erected, for which we furnished 11 runs 200 feet long, there was not one single leak noticeable during a downpour which filled the gutter to overflowing. Have you anything similar to show?

$ BIG MONEY $ IN GREENHOUSE CROPS

Profits in the greenhouse business are larger than ever. What does it matter if the original investment is a trifle greater? It's the percentage of profit that counts after all.

Before the advance, we contracted for a big supply of Louisiana Red Cypress lumber. We are therefore still in a position to make you exceedingly attractive prices on strictly guaranteed greenhouse work. Write immediately - before you misplace this address.

Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas

GIANT SPENCER VARIETIES

The best that can be procured for winter flowering under glass.

Five Good California Varieties

Early Snowflake, large, pure white, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., \$1.25; oz., \$2.00.

Early Spring Maid, beautiful cream-pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Melody, soft rose-pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Song Bird, pale pink, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40 c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

Early Heather Bell, rich mauve, changing to lavender, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 40c; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.25; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$4.00; lb., \$12.00.

YARRAWA

The most popular winter-flowering Sweet Pea. Color is beautiful rose-pink with a slight salmon tint. We offer a selected strain of this variety. $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., 40c; oz., 75c; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$2.25; lb., \$8.00.

Six Splendid Australian Varieties

CONCORD Spencer types

The Concord Varieties of Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas are perhaps the most advanced and finest of all. The colors are distinct, clear and true. They flower earlier than any other type, and the blossoms are of large Spencer form, with long stems. Unfortunately they are shy seeders and, therefore, the seed is scarce and expensive. We are obliged to offer in packets only this year.

Prices, any of the following:

Pkt. (50 seeds), 40c; 5 pkts., $1.75.

Concord Pink, beautiful delicate pink.

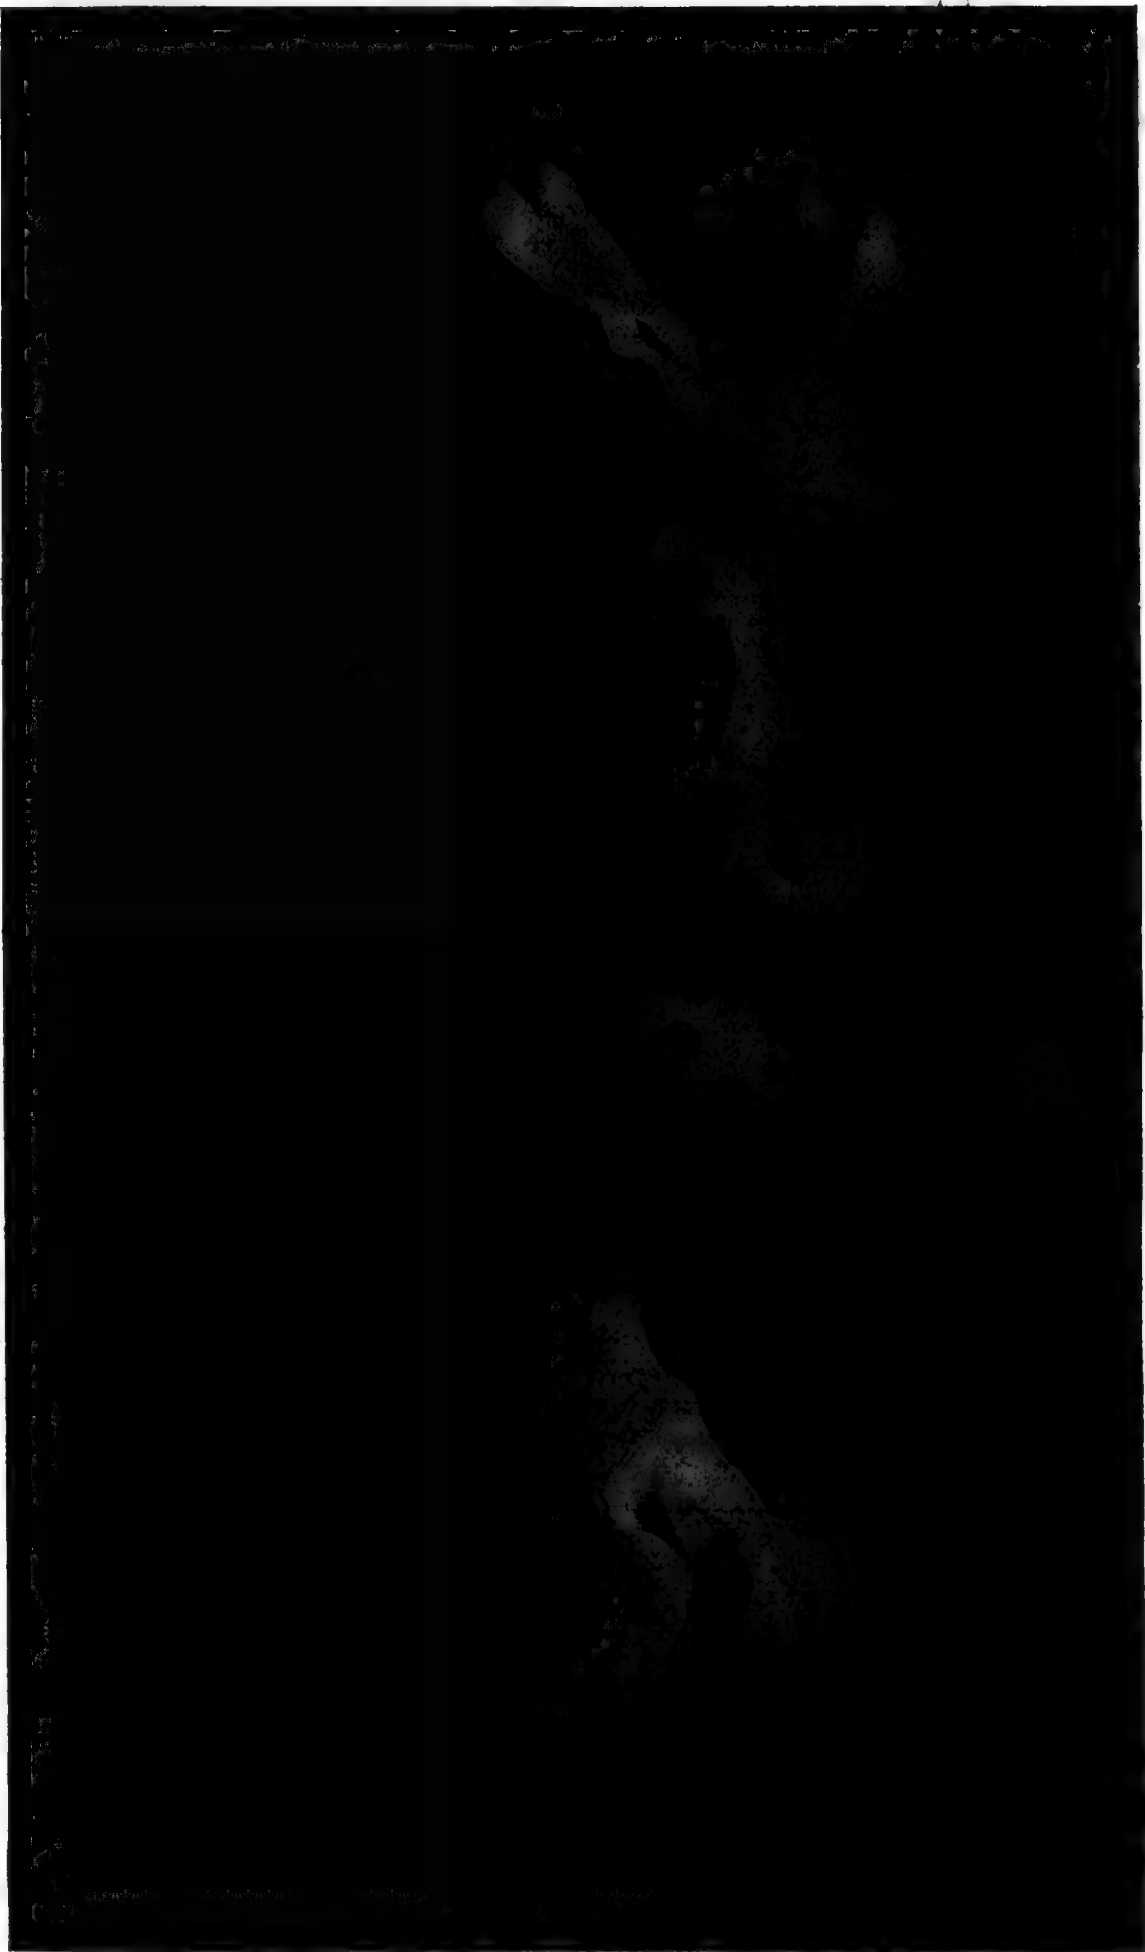

Concord Crimson, fine ruby red.

Concord Lavender, light lavender blue.

Concord White, large, pure white.

Concord Salmon, soft salmon pink.

Concord Blue, dark purple blue.

We have on hand fresh seed of Giant Flowered Cyclamen in all popular colors, also Primula, Cineraria, Calceolaria; Perennial Flower Seeds for summer sowing and Annuals for winter flowering under glass.

CHICAGO, ILL.

One of the many uses of Hill's Hardy Evergreens

A Money Making Proposition for Progressive Florists

A very good substitute for Box trees would be small Evergreens, which our American nurserymen are already preparing for this purpose. Winter boxes filled with nice Evergreens, dwarf Evergreens, which, to my mind, are even prettier because more diversified than the Box trees, would prove very attractive.

ROBT. CRAIG,
Philadelphia.

HILL'S HARDY EVERGREENS FOR WINDOW BOXES AND TUBBING

With the growing scarcity of imported decorative material, Hardy Evergreens easily rank first in the list of plants for outside Fall and Winter decoration. Realizing florists' needs, we have spared no effort to prepare a sufficient supply for all requirements. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. If you want some you should place your order now for immediate or later delivery.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANTING EVERGREEN WINDOW BOXES

- No. 1. Evergreens planted close together, all the same height, give a hedge-like appearance.
- No. 2. High at the ends and low in the center produces, with a little clipping, a graceful curved effect.
- No. 3. Tall pyramidal plants at the ends, with a lower compact line straight across, presents a good appearance.
- No. 4. Each tree planted so as to show its individuality is another plan.
- No. 5. A box filled with assorted gives a shaded color effect that is very attractive.

One of the many uses of Hill's Hardy Evergreens

A Money Making Proposition for Progressive Florists

A very good substitute for Box trees would be small Evergreens, which our American nurserymen are already preparing for this purpose. Winter boxes filled with nice Evergreens, dwarf Evergreens, which, to my mind, are even prettier because more diversified than the Box trees, would prove very attractive.

ROBT. CRAIG,
Philadelphia.

HILL'S HARDY EVERGREENS FOR WINDOW BOXES AND TUBBING

With the growing scarcity of imported decorative material, Hardy Evergreens easily rank first in the list of plants for outside Fall and Winter decoration. Realizing florists' needs, we have spared no effort to prepare a sufficient supply for all requirements. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. If you want some you should place your order now for immediate or later delivery.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANTING EVERGREEN WINDOW BOXES

- No. 1. Evergreens planted close together, all the same height, give a hedge-like appearance.
- No. 2. High at the ends and low in the center produces, with a little clipping, a graceful curved effect.
- No. 3. Tall pyramidal plants at the ends, with a lower compact line straight across, presents a good appearance.
- No. 4. Each tree planted so as to show its individuality is another plan.
- No. 5. A box filled with assorted gives a shaded color effect that is very attractive.

Recently an out-of-town customer came to Philadelphia (Headquarters city for Florists' Supplies) to buy his supplies for the season. One day he spent making the rounds—looking over the lines of all the houses—without buying.

Bright and early next morning he was back at The House of Rice, where he bought his entire order. That pleased us, of course, but no more than his complimentary remarks. In part he said, "Your place is wonderful. If every florist in the United States could see this, it would be your greatest asset, your best advertisement. Its size, system and completeness simply amazes me."

And it will astonish you too—so come to see us

We have absolutely the largest and finest equipped exclusive florists' supply house in the world—Modern in every detail.

PUTTING A PUNCH IN AUTUMN WINDOWS

Retailers of all classes of merchandise have their autumn openings, thereby formally announcing that a new season is here, and showing what they have of special interest to the public. A new season for florists is here and it is time for flower stores to do something to draw attention.

OW that "the frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock," the florist takes the place of summer as Nature's assistant in growing and supplying flowers. By an increase in business, florists' stores already have felt the effects of the arrival of the autumn season, and are planning the opening which announces that the time to buy flowers has arrived. Merchandising concerns of all kinds have had their openings, or are doing so, and the florist feels that he, too, should let his patrons and the public in general know that they can continue to have the flowers that made the home bright all summer.

While sales of flowers have increased, the full flood of business does not come until frost has killed outdoor vegetation. The reason for stating this fact, which is so well known to all florists, is to emphasize the desirability of postponing the opening until late October or November. Then stock is in better variety, and the quality is superior to what it was earlier in the season. And what is the most important, the public is in a buying mood. The appetite has been whetted by absence of flowers.

How to Do It.

To make an opening a success, several moves are necessary. There are the decoration of the show window and the store, and advertising, both in newspapers and direct. All should be so timed as to have the former ready when the latter begins to make its appeal and brings the people into the store.

Autumn windows give the decorator plenty of opportunity to make artistic displays. That showiest of autumn flowers, the chrysanthemum, is at its best, and can be used effectively, as the public always associates the chrysanthemum with autumn.

Undoubtedly, the spirit of the times will be reflected in many show windows this autumn. Already some retailers have installed windows in which patriotism is the predominant feature. Miss Columbia, garbed in flowers, and the flag made of red, white and blue blooms, flower guns and swords and the other trappings of wartime will be used as means of attracting the attention of the public to flower stores.

Put a "Punch" in the Window.

All are good and make attractive displays. But such windows do not allow of appeals for sales. They are pretty and attract much attention, but there is no "punch" there. The "punch" can be put in, but there is liable to be the criticism that sacred sentiment is being commercialized.

Window displays are designed just as much to sell flowers as to attract attention to flowers. Of course, the attention must first be attracted before a sale can be made, but the mere halting of a person before a window where he pauses, and gazing, remarks, "What a pretty picture!" does not put any money in the cash register. There should be the suggestion that flowers make the home brighter, thereby bringing the idea of purchasing into the mind of the beholder.

As has before been recorded in The Review, the effect of war in other countries has not been to lessen the sale of flowers, but to change the character of the people who do the buying. This new class of flower buyers is the so-called middle class, which is handling and, in consequence, spending more money than ever before. To attract this class, department store methods of displaying prices would prove effective. The person who does not habitually buy flowers, oftentimes would look at the display and wish to possess some of the blooms, but would not go into the store because of the belief that flowers are so high in price that they are beyond the reach of his pocketbook.

The Reason Why.

The "reason-why" window is the latest development in specialty store advertising. This is a display that impresses the person who sees it with the reason why he should purchase the article displayed. This has proved most effective, according to the experts who keep a close tab on results from given experiments.

There is a reason why persons should buy flowers. And the principal reason is that what the florist has to sell adds to the beauty of the home and the joys of life. Visualiz-

Recently an out-of-town customer came to Philadelphia (Headquarters city for Florists' Supplies) to buy his supplies for the season. One day he spent making the rounds—looking over the lines of all the houses—without buying.

Bright and early next morning he was back at The House of Rice, where he bought his entire order. That pleased us, of course, but no more than his complimentary remarks. In part he said, "Your place is wonderful. If every florist in the United States could see this, it would be your greatest asset, your best advertisement. Its size, system and completeness simply amazes me."

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

PUTTING A PUNCH IN AUTUMN WINDOWS

Retailers of all classes of merchandise have their autumn openings, thereby formally announcing that a new season is here, and showing what they have of special interest to the public. A new season for florists is here and it is time for flower stores to do something to draw attention.

How to Do It.

To make an opening a success, several moves are necessary. There are the decoration of the show window and the store, and advertising, both in newspapers and direct. All should be so timed as to have the former ready when the latter begins to make its appeal and brings the people into the store.

Autumn windows give the decorator plenty of opportunity to make artistic displays. That showiest of autumn flowers, the chrysanthemum, is at its best, and can be used effectively, as the public always associates the chrysanthemum with autumn.

Undoubtedly, the spirit of the times will be reflected in many show windows this autumn. Already some retailers have installed windows in which patriotism is the predominant feature. Miss Columbia, garbed in flowers, and the flag made of red, white and blue blooms, flower guns and swords and the other trappings of wartime will be used as means of attracting the attention of the public to flower stores.

Put a "Punch" in the Window.

All are good and make attractive displays. But such windows do not allow of appeals for sales. They are pretty and attract much attention, but there is no "punch" there. The "punch" can be put in, but there is liable to be the criticism that sacred sentiment is being commercialized.

Window displays are designed just as much to sell flowers as to attract attention to flowers. Of course, the attention must first be attracted before a sale can be made, but the mere halting of a person before a window where he pauses, and gazing, remarks, "What a pretty picture!" does not put any money in the cash register. There should be the suggestion that flowers make the home brighter, thereby bringing the idea of purchasing into the mind of the beholder.

As has before been recorded in The Review, the effect of war in other countries has not been to lessen the sale of flowers, but to change the character of the people who do the buying. This new class of flower buyers is the so-

The person who does not habitually buy flowers, oftentimes would look at the display and wish to possess some of the blooms, but would not go into the store because of the belief that flowers are so high in price that they are beyond the reach of his pocketbook.

The Reason Why.

The "reason-why" window is the latest development in specialty store advertising. This is a display that impresses the person who sees it with the reason why he should purchase the article displayed. This has proved most effective, according to the experts who keep a close tab on results from given experiments.

ing these "reasons why" in a window is perhaps no easy task, but it is safe to say that such a display would make a greater appeal—an appeal that counts—than a window that is merely pretty to look upon.

Advertising the opening is just as important as the decoration of the store, because no matter how attractive or how sales-compelling the store and window displays are, they have no value unless the public can be brought to see them. Newspaper announcements are good, providing they are of the type that will make the reader desire to visit the store. Cards sent to customers of the store make a personal appeal, particularly if the idea is conveyed that the recipient is singled out as one who will undoubtedly enjoy what the florist has to show, and that the display is made especially for him and others who are known to be lovers of flowers. The psychology of this is that we all like to be told that we have fine tastes, whether it be for clothes or flowers—the vanity that is in nearly all humans is flattered.

An Appeal to the Ego.

A card bearing some such invitation as this would prove effective:

"Knowing that you are among those who appreciate the beauty of flowers, I am sure that you will enjoy the unusual display of seasonable flowers and plants to be shown at my store November — and —. This invitation includes not only yourself, but those of your friends whom you may wish to bring with you."

There is the announcement of the opening, the subtle flattery that we all like, and the suggestion that he act as host to his friends on an occasion that will bring him and them pleasure, and, best of all, it is short. Brevity is said to be the soul of wit; it is the heart and soul of advertising.

A fall opening is designed to show customers and possible customers what the retailer has for sale. Department stores and specialty stores—the milliner, the hatter, the clothier, and the rest of the merchandisers—all discovered some years ago that this formal method of announcing the coming of a new season was profitable.

Miss Columbia in Flowers.

Recently the retail establishments of San Francisco had their fall openings simultaneously. Nearly every establishment in that city joined in the move to acquaint the people with the fact that a new season had arrived. Much time was expended on window displays to advertise the new season, and not the least attractive of these windows was that of MacRorie & McLaren, which is shown in the illustration on the preceding page. Here the patriotic idea was used, but it was done in a dignified manner, there being nothing about the display that could be construed as commercializing patriotism. Columbia garbed in flowers was the chief feature, but the flag-draped copy of the national anthem also was a telling touch. The window attracted much attention and brought many complimentary opinions from the San Francisco people.

A new season has arrived for the florist. Unconsciously the flower buyers observe that season, hence the increase in sales. An exhibition of flowers and plants, and the many accessories that enhance the beauty of the flowers, will not only be a signal to the public that the flower-buying season has opened, but will recreate the desire to patronize the flower stores, which was lost about the time Nature had her "opening."

ties that already exist. We also think our nomenclature committee ought to pass on new varieties carefully before the premiums or certificates are given, as this is sometimes the cause of duplication of varieties.

"There has been some criticism regarding the classification as adopted by our society, with the different types running into one another. We realize that the committee has a difficult task, and no doubt as the years go by there will be more problems for them to solve. The thanks of the society ought to be given to the nomenclature committee for its untiring work and energy in separating classes and naming varieties, and it is my sincere wish that the same members of the committee be retained, as they thoroughly understand the work that has been placed before them."

Secretary's Report.

"The year has been one of considerable activity," reported Secretary Dick, "although no new features have been added to the society's program. The number of members on our books at the end of the present financial year is 273. Our bank balance shows an increase over last year of $216, the total balance being $466.15.

"Arrangements have been made to hold an exhibition in conjunction with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Boston in September, 1918.

"Although the season has been a checkered one from the point of view of the cultivation of dahlias, the secretary can report most emphatically and enthusiastically of the wonderful interest at present evident in regard to dahlias, and can speak with the greatest encouragement as to the progress the flower is making, both as an ornamental cut flower and for garden decorative purposes."

St. Paul Trials.

Prof. Le Roy Cady, of St. Paul, reported that "owing to illness early in the year, no special effort was made to bring in new lots of dahlias for the trials. The season of 1916 was unusually poor and the tubers made only a little growth, in many cases not enough growth to carry them through the winter, so that there was considerable loss of varieties. As many as were brought through the winter were planted in good season in well-prepared land. A few of those planted did not have vitality enough to come out of the ground, but somewhere between 400 and 500 plants started nicely and made good growth until struck by dry weather during the last of July and August. Many of the plants have been stunted owing to drought. A frost September 10 injured the foliage on part of the plants, but most of them withstood the frost and are sending out new growth and in many cases blossoming nicely at this time. Another week or ten days of good growing weather will give a fairly good showing. This season has been unfavorable in some respects, although not quite as bad as last year. I think it would be desirable to continue the garden trials of a good number of dahlias, as they seem to create a good deal of interest. If this meets with the favor of the officers of the society I will be glad to receive tubers, either late this fall or in good time for planting next spring, of any desirable varieties."

THE DAHLIA MEETING

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY.

Holds Third Annual Meeting.

The third annual meeting of the American Dahlia Society was held at New York September 25, the forty members present being so well pleased with the way its affairs have been handled that the officers were reelected, as follows:

President—R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.

Secretary—J. H. Dick, New York.

Treasurer—F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J.

The reports of officers were so satisfactory that a subscription of $100 for a Liberty bond was ordered.

President Is Pleased.

At the annual business meeting President Vincent presented a report in which he said in part:

"We aim to get everyone that has a garden and plants flowers interested in growing a few plants of the newer and more beautiful types of dahlias, knowing that if they once do, and anything like a reasonable success crowns their efforts, they will continue to be lovers of this lovely flower the rest of their days, and will soon become members of the American Dahlia Society, cooperating with us and helping us to get other new members.

"The last year has shown an increase in membership, not the number we expected, but showing the ever-increasing interest in the dahlia; our making a straight membership fee seems to have worked successfully. Our quarterly bulletin is doing a great work.

"We are still short of the number of S. A. F. members which we hoped to obtain, and if we could have accomplished this it would have given us a standing on the board of the mother society equal to the Rose Society and the Carnation Society. Let us strive earnestly during the coming year to accomplish this, as in doing this we will help build up the Society of American Florists, as well as our own, to that point which we hope to see reached by every horticultural organization.

"We certainly must not curtail the number of types of dahlias, but rather encourage them, as we know not what the future has in store for the dahlia lover. What is wanted is to reduce, to a certain extent, the indifferent varie-

The Exhibition.

The exhibition was held in conjunction with that of the American Institute and is said to have been the best show of dahlias ever staged in America, in spite of the unfavorable season and early frosts. Probably 10,000 blooms were staged. The show opened at 7 p. m. September 25 and the attendance of the public was large the first evening.

The Banquet.

The annual dinner of the society was held at Hotel Navarre during the evening of September 25. Among those present were Messrs. Vincent, Stillman, Cottam, Hale, Duthie, Hall, Dick, Lane, Kift, Barron, Duff, Turner, Nichols, Eagleston, Miles, Rickards, Saville, Fraser, Peacock, Putz, Austin, James, Rooney and John Vincent, also Rhoda Vincent and Mrs. Rooney.

TRAMP! TRAMP! OUR BOYS ARE MARCHING

TRADE TRAINS FOR TRENCHES.

Forsake Flowers to Fight.

The trade's quota of fighting men for the new national army, which the United States is training at the various cantonments before sending the men to Europe, continues to grow. Every week a number of florists leave their occupations and go to the camps where they are given intensive training in trench digging, the use of arms and the other activities necessary in modern warfare. The Review already has printed the names of many of these florist-fighters. The Review will be glad to learn of others who have gone, or are about to go.

Philadelphian Goes to Camp.

J. M. Deutscher, manager of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, arranged his business affairs and left for the cantonment at Annapolis Junction, Md., September 18. Mr. Deutscher is now a member of the national army, chosen by selective draft. Through his position in the wholesale market, Mr. Deutscher is well known to the members of all branches of the trade in Philadelphia.

Ready for Duty.

Jack Morales, formerly with the Sunnyside Floral Co., Leavenworth, Kan., has been in training with the Forty-fifth volunteer infantry at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, since June 1, and expects soon to be ordered to the coast to embark for France. Mr. Morales was a grower. When the call came for volunteers, he enlisted, thereby becoming among the first who will reach the European battle fields.

Vegetable Plant Grower Drafted.

T. L. Cook, of Greenvew, Ill., one of the largest growers of vegetable plants in the middle west, has been called up and passed for the draft. He has asked exemption on occupational grounds, believing his services as a producer of vegetable plants are of greater value than his services as a soldier would be. Mr. Cook started as grower for Mrs. Edward Hayden and after twelve years there took over the vegetable plant department for himself. In the last six years he has enlarged it greatly. One of his orders last spring was for a million tomato plants.

Bostonians in Training.

The spirit of the Revolutionary times is being shown by the members of the trade in and near Boston, several young men from that district having joined the colors last week. William McFarland, only son of John McFarland, North Easton, Mass., has gone to camp at Ayer, Mass. Harry A. Benwell, son of Thomas Benwell, who represents A. H. Hews & Co., has joined the officers' training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y. John H. Elliott, son of William H. Elliott, and formerly in charge of the Elliott place at Madbury, N. H., is another of the prominent young men in the trade to join the army. A. Gerard Smith, of Carbone's staff, has joined the English army and now is in training preparatory to getting a chance to "go over the top."

San Franciscans Join Army.

Several members of the trade at San Francisco went into the service of the United States last week. John and Joseph Picetti, salesmen in the floral department of the Emporium, a department store, enlisted and are waiting to be summoned to camp. Both their names appeared in the draft, but they did not wait to be called for the national army. John MacDonough, formerly in the employ of the Art Floral Co., has left for the training camp at American Lake, Wash., and the chauffeur for Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., will train at the same place. Mr. Bacigalupi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, also has been drafted and has left for American Lake.

Chicago Store Closed by Draft.

The number of retail flower stores in Chicago has been reduced by at least one because of the draft—Weiss Bros., 537 East Forty-seventh street, have closed. Max Weiss has gone to join the national army in the Rockford training camp and Arthur Weiss expects to be sent on the next call. The store was opened last spring. The fixtures have been taken back by Fred Bender.

Weds on Eve of Departure.

William Clark, for a number of years connected with the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., Los Angeles, Cal., was among those recently drafted. Mr. Clark passed the physical examination and was ordered to report at the cantonment at American Lake, Wash. On the eve of his departure, Mr. Clark and Miss Olive Bronson were married, the wedding taking place September 18.

Wisconsin Man at Waco.

H. F. Vlieland, Jr., formerly of River Falls, Wis., is a member of one of the Wisconsin National Guard regiments that were taken into the federal service. Mr. Vlieland now is training at Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex. Since he went to camp, Mr. Vlieland writes, he has been too busy to do anything but keep up with the intensive training the soldiers are undergoing preparatory to being sent to France.

Edwin Nelson in Army.

Edwin M. Nelson, a member of the staff of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., left September 21 for Camp Taylor, near Louisville, Ky., where he will train with the national army. Mr. Nelson has been connected with Baur & Steinkamp for several years and is well known among Indianapolis florists.

St. Louis Contributes.

During the last five years Archie Williams was chauffeur for the Schoenle Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo. September 21 he left for Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kan., where he went into training with the national army. Undoubtedly Mr. Williams will find plenty of opportunity to guide an automobile while he is in the army, and will feel much at home.

A. Shields, Detroit, Goes.

A. Shields, formerly with the Scribner Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., has joined the colors and is now at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich., learning the methods by which modern wars are fought.

Ward Perry with Artillery.

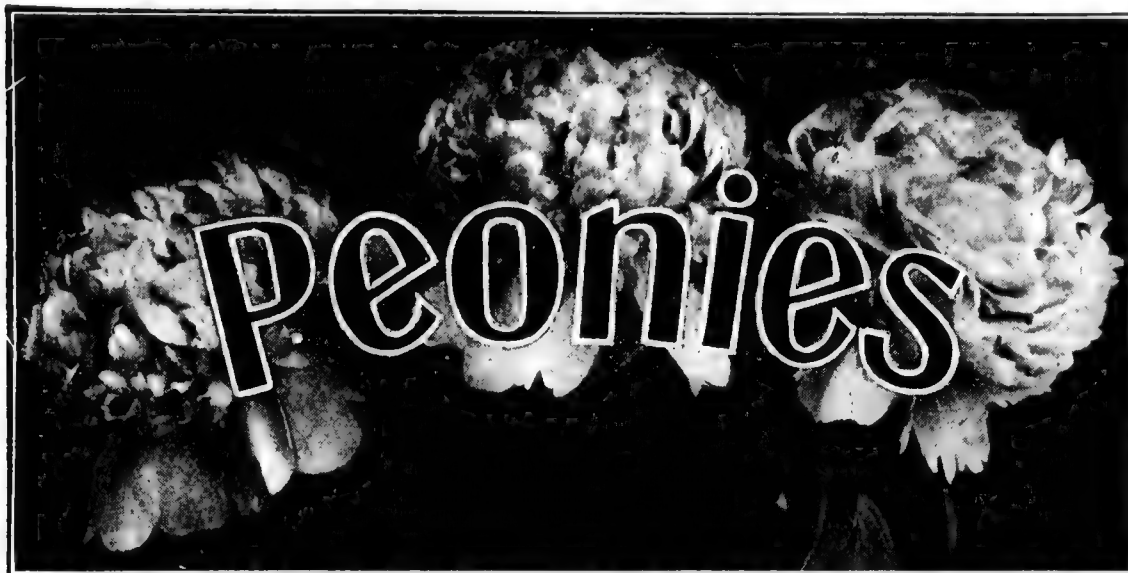

Ward Perry, a son of John J. Perry, manager of the Baltimore branch of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, has joined the field artillery of the United States army. Young Mr. Perry has gone to the training camp at Anniston, Ala., where he will learn the art of making war with big guns before going with the expeditionary force to France.

Chicagoan in National Army.

Walter Jensen, of Jensen Bros., 3335 Lincoln avenue, Chicago, was one of the members of the new national army which left Chicago September 20 for the Camp Grant cantonment at Rockford, Ill. Mr. Jensen was one of several thousand Illinois young men who had successfully passed the physical examination and has been summoned to take the necessary training before being sent to Europe.

Fort Wayne Florists Ready.

Among those at or near Fort Wayne, Ind., who have been drafted for service in the national army, but who have not yet been called, are John Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co.; Edgar Wenninghoff, vice-president of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club; William Branning, of the F. J. Knecht greenhouses; Henry Freese, of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind.

RAISING NEW PEONIES.

At a Minnesota Nursery.

In view of the youthfulness of this country and the briefness of the opportunity for horticultural progress; in view, also, of the characteristic haste and impatience of Americans and the tediousness of the process of raising new peonies, it is not surprising that the list of noted American peony hybridizers is a short one—short, especially, as compared with the French roll of honor in the same field of endeavor. Americans, as a people, are prone to demand quick results and there are no quick results in the production of good peony seedlings.

After waiting from four to six years to get blooms from seed, the experimenter must then face the solemn fact that less than one per cent of the average run of seedlings have enough merit to justify their introduction as new varieties. And even after the superior quality of some of the new seedlings is assured, the final goal is still far, far away. The hybridizer, dividing his plants into three every three or four seasons, must wait several more weary years before he can thus accumulate enough of the stock to be able to place it on the market. Not many practical tradesmen, in a comparatively new country, can afford to wait so long for returns. Neither does a new country abound with leisurely amateurs, for whom a long period of waiting would have no terrors.

Brand-new Sorts from the Brands.

Still, Americans are nothing if not enterprising and a few of them have distinguished themselves as peony hybridizers. Among those who recently have won such fame, and are steadily winning more of it, are Brands, of the Brand Nursery Co., Faribault, Minn.

The Brands seem to be among the select few who have been prosperous commercially as well as horticulturally, in this sphere of effort. And their success, apparently, is largely due to the fact that they are both scientific and practical, both venturesome and conservative, in their methods. They have conducted their peony hybridizing intelligently, painstakingly and persistently. Yet they have not allowed such experimentation to interfere with the businesslike handling of other nursery stock which brings quicker and more certain financial rewards.

Keen and Careful Selection.

It has been estimated that the total list of peonies, as commonly offered to the trade by more or less reputable growers throughout the world, comprises nearly 3,000 names, and that these thousands of names represent less than 300 distinct, worth-while varieties. C. S. Harrison, the veteran peony specialist of York, Neb., has referred frequently and emphatically to the rashness of many hybridizers in introducing varieties that are not sufficiently distinct and meritorious, and he even confesses that he himself has erred semi-occasionally in that regard. He speaks in a highly appreciative way of H. A. Terry, one of the most celebrated of peony hybridizers, but states, nevertheless, that Mr. Terry, who "gave us about 100 named sorts, should have named only a dozen."

Yet Mr. Harrison, though so candid a critic, said this a year or so ago about the Brands, of Faribault: "They are careful and exacting in their selections, throwing away perhaps 15,000 seedlings, while they choose only one from the mass. They have at least six reds which stand up with anything on earth. Their Prince of Darkness is nearly black. Mary Brand, in comparison with all the reds gathered from all sources, takes the lead. It is of the same color as the famous Karl Rosenfield, but is much larger."

A. M. Brand's Favorite.

Mrs. Edward Harding, in "The Book of the Peony," also compliments the Brands, asserting that in recent years "their seedlings—notably Martha Bulloch and Frances Willard—have aroused much admiration." The two varieties recommended by Mrs. Harding are shown in the accompanying illustrations.

A. M. Brand, manager of the Brand Nursery Co., also expresses his own preference for Martha Bulloch, saying, "It is undoubtedly our best flower." Then he proceeds to describe it thus: "It is a flower of true rose type; opens out flat; of great size and of delicate and pronounced rose fragrance. Its color is a deep, bright pink. The flowers are borne on long, strong stems and are held well erect, making it a good landscape sort as well as a cutting variety. Of late years we have not shown good specimens of this flower, because we have kept our stock closely divided for propagation. But when we did have old plants, from which to cut blooms for exhibition, Martha Bulloch was adjudged a better flower than Therese."

Other Choice Varieties.

"Frances Willard," says Mr. Brand, "is a large, creamy white, showing Peony Frances Willard, a Brand Seedling.

stamens; mid-season. A row of this variety in full bloom, on 3-year plants, fairly carries one off his feet."

Mr. Brand remarks that many observers class Frances Willard as the best of the Brand peonies. However, as already stated, Mr. Brand himself gives the highest rank to Martha Bulloch. And his second choice in his own stock is Elizabeth Barrett Browning, of which he says: "It is an immense, glistening white, with pink tinting as it opens and some petals splashed with carmine—entirely distinct from all other whites."

He describes nearly a score of other Brand varieties, including his "great reds." He probably will be pardoned for his evident, sincere pride in his reds, a pride which he thus divulges: "Nearly fifty years ago I was born among the peonies and I have lived among them ever since. I have seen many of the world's most beautiful kinds. I believe the red varieties we have produced are the greatest in their color."

Mr. Brand states that this season the firm is "sending out two entirely new ones—Old Silver Tip, a profuse-blooming, silver-tipped crimson, and Fari-bault, a madder-red, also silver-edged."

President William W. Vert announces the appointment of the following committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to the chairman, care of W. J. Thurston, manager Boston Flower Exchange, 1 Winthrop square and Otis street, Boston.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze, chairman; William H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, New York, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter, chairman; James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—N. J. Wieter, chairman; George Asmus, Thomas W. Head. Ship flowers to chairman, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee.

Peony Martha Bulloch, a Brand Seedling.

They must be prepaid to destination, and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or the fee may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, providing the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports, to receive a certificate, must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates being October 6, 13, 20, 27 and November 3, 10, 17, 24. Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

CLEVELAND SHOW PLANS.

On January of this year, when the committee of Cleveland florists was forced to give up its plans for holding an extra large flower show because the Coliseum was withdrawn from the market as a show building, the committee men selected the large ballroom and private dining rooms of the Hotel Statler as being the only place available, because the use of the armories was an uncertain matter at that time.

September 21, H. P. Knoble called a meeting of the show committees and informed them that the Grays armory could be obtained for the November show, if it was thought advisable to make the change at this time. It was the unanimous opinion of the committees that it would be a much better building for the purpose than the hotel, and the contract was signed immediately.

By this change 5,000 square feet are added to the display space, as compared with that of the Hotel Statler. It was decided to reserve the space along the two walls for commercial exhibits of growers, and an invitation is hereby extended to those desiring to occupy space for exhibiting plants, ferns, palms and any novelty.

This space will be divided into 10x10-foot units, at a cost of $50 to the exhibitor. Uniform signs and division rails will be supplied by the management. As there are only twenty spaces available, it was thought best to accept only plant and flower exhibits and, for that reason, the invitation will not be extended to florists' supply concerns.

Space has already been spoken for by growers of Cleveland and vicinity, and it is suggested that others desiring to exhibit address F. R. Williams, trade display committee, Cleveland Cut Flower Co., 231 High avenue, Cleveland.

Painesville, O.—A truckload of evergreens for Akron, a run of thirty miles, now easily accomplished, was evidence that the season of transplanting has begun. The Storrs & Harrison Co. reports a good growing summer. As usual, the frontage facing the railroad is a gorgeous mass of color, making a great showing, cannas predominating; the Kohankie Nurseries, adjoining, also make an attractive showing, being strong on phloxes.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Propagation.

Geraniums are the bedding plants of greatest value to the florist, but there are many others, such as fuchsias, verbenas, ageratums, petunias, coleus, heliotropes, alternantheras, cupheas, aca-lyphas, lobelias, etc., of which you may wish to retain stocks. In some cases a few stock plants can be lifted and potted and may give an ample supply of propagating material later in the season, but usually cuttings can be taken now. They will occupy a minimum of space. All cuttings will root without much trouble now, shade and plenty of water added to sharp, well drained sand being their requirements.

Jerusalem Cherries.

The finest plants of Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers are those which are planted out through the summer. These plants must be dug up and potted now. Try to secure a little ball with each and then, if carefully potted, well watered, shaded for a few days from bright sunshine and sprayed occasionally, they will soon stand up firm and fresh. The Jerusalem cherries stand considerable frost, but the Christmas peppers are tender and even a temperature of 34 degrees will sometimes blacken them.

Dutch Bulbs.

Even if some growers are uncertain about getting their full supply of Dutch bulbs, it will be advisable to have a compost pile ready. Soil containing about one-fourth old, well rotted manure and three-fourths loam will answer nicely. Spent hotbed manure, or the manure from mushroom beds, also makes a good potting medium and one-third of this and two-thirds loam will give good results. Use some sharp sand, especially if your loam is heavy. Do not use any bone or chemical fertilizers of any kind for bulbs, as these will do more harm than good. Mix the compost well by turning it a couple of times before using.

Winter-Flowering Begonias.

There will be no azaleas this season, except some carried-over stock, and the demand for other flowering plants should be much stronger. For the holiday trade begonias have for years been prime favorites and the coming season bids fair to find them in great demand. Lorraine is not now grown so largely as Cincinnati, but is by no means a back number and still meets with a large sale. Small plants from late cutting sell especially well. Melior is much liked by many, while Mrs. J. A. Peterson, with its bronzy foliage and deep red flowers, will be seen in greatly increased numbers this fall.

All begonias which have not had their final potting should get it as soon as possible. Give them a temperature of 60 degrees at night and only a light shade from this time on. The earliest plants will need a little staking when time permits. A good many of these should be in condition to sell for Thanksgiving. The large-flowered, handsome English varieties, like Mrs. Heal, Winter Cheer and Ensign, are gradually coming into favor as their culture becomes better understood and they bid fair to sell at splendid prices the coming Christmas.

Canterbury Bells.

As usual, the plants of Canterbury bells made more growth in September than in any other month of the year, especially if their growth was stimulated by frequent cultivation. The early part of October is a good time to pot up some of the best plants to be used for forcing. Pots from seven to nine inches in diameter will be needed, according to the size of the plants. Stand the plants outdoors when potted. If they had a ball of earth attached to the roots, they will wilt but little and a few sprayings will soon stiffen them up. Far too many plants are stood in heavy shade after potting. In some cases this may be necessary, but often it is not. If some sunshine is given, to warm the soil, root action is much quicker and wilting will soon cease.

HARDY PERENNIALS

THE AUTUMNAL GARDEN.

Avoiding Too Much Yellow.

While the major portion of the plants to be found in the herbaceous borders in late September and early October are somewhat robust in habit, they come in a fine range of colors and the hardy garden is much more attractive than for six weeks past. It is easy having too much of a predominance of yellow flowers by a too liberal use of the helianthus, heleniums, rudbeckias, heliopsis, silphiums and senecios, but by a proper interspersing of yellows among the numerous autumnal asters, boltonias, aconitums, anemones, pyrethrums, veronicas, kniphofias and other plants coming in other shades of color, not to mention a good number of low-growing plants effective in fall, the autumn hardy border is extremely attractive. The early frosts, which cut off most of the annuals, deal lightly with the tenants of the hardy border and not infrequently good flowers may be had until well into November.

Asters.

Prominent now and exquisitely beautiful are the asters, or Michaelmas daisies. These plants, so common in our fields and woodlands, have been taken in hand and wonderfully improved by English hardy plant specialists and

THOSE CHALLENGED AWARDS.

Certain awards at the Illinois state fair are held up pending action by the state board of agriculture, as reported in The Review for September 20, because some of the exhibitors protested and alleged a violation of the rules. The protestants pointed to the rule that the same exhibitor can not make more than one entry in the same class and made affidavit that Hembreiker & Cole and the Springfield Floral Co., John Bryant, manager, are in fact the same concern. As representing another point of view, Mr. Bryant says:

"I desire to call attention to Rule 10 of the general rules and regulations governing entries at the Illinois state fair, which reads as follows: 'Articles which are the product of mechanical or artistic skill may be entered by the artist, inventor, manufacturer, dealer or authorized agent.' The entries in question were made by John Bryant, artist and manager of the Springfield Floral Co. These entries were made after being assured by the proper officials that competition was open to artists and professionals, and after being urged by them to do so. The secretary's books will show that John Bryant is credited with the awards. If this show was open to artists and professionals, as the board specifies, the winnings substantiate my claim to being both. I would have the trade understand that this note is not offered in criticism of anyone. The association, the judge, the secretary and superintendent of the department are to be complimented on their great effort to make the show the success that it was."

nearly all our fine garden varieties are hybrids raised there. A few fine varieties at present are: White Queen, pure white; Perry's Pink, reddish pink, much branched; Airship, pure white, fine; Mackii, clear blue, yellow eye; novæ-angliæ Lil Fardel, bright mauve; novæ-angliæ rosea, mauve, still one of the best; Feltham Blue, clear aniline blue; St. Egwin, charming light pink, and turbinellus, lavender, much branched, large flowers. All the asters are easily raised by division of the roots in fall. They may also be propagated from seeds easily and a great range of varieties may be had from a mixed packet of seeds.

Aconitums.

While the bulk of the monkshoods have now passed, there are two varieties which are now at their best. A. Fischeri carries pale blue flowers and grows three to four feet in height. A. Wilsoni, an introduction from northern China, with large violet blue flowers, grows five to seven feet in height and is also effective at this season. While aconitums will grow tolerably well in any garden, to see them at their best one should go to Bar Harbor or one of the islands along the Maine coast, where they are a feature in almost every garden and grow with a luxuriance impossible in gardens far removed from the ocean.

GLADIOLUS SHOW AT LANSING.

Gladiolus bulb growing has become such an important part of the commercial activities of Lansing, Mich., that the bankers of that city have begun to take notice of it. Recently the Capitol National bank extended an invitation to the Lansing growers to use its lobby for a gladiolus exhibition, so that the people of Lansing might become acquainted with this industry. The show was held the week of September 10 and was a great success, so much so, in fact, that the bank management contemplates making it an annual affair.

Among the exhibitors was Earl Edgerton, who is probably the largest grower of gladiolus bulbs in the neighborhood of Lansing. He had an attractive display of all the standard varieties, and many of the newer ones, especially the Kunderd varieties. L. W. Hoisington, who also makes a specialty of gladioli, had a fine display of these flowers, together with several vases of asters and other annuals. Fred W. Baumgrass was another exhibitor, who showed some fine flowers. There were also displays from private gardens.

The lobby of the bank, which is finished in marble, made an excellent setting for the show. The Lansing florists helped with decorations. The show drew many hundreds of Lansing people, many of whom for the first time had an opportunity to know the extent to which gladioli are grown in their home city.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Two weeks have seen little change in conditions, except that there is a decidedly more autumnal aspect to things. The soldiers have left the city, and this has cut into the trade a bit, although it is more than compensated for by the opening of a well known girls' school, with its thousand or more well-to-do pupils from all over the country.

Roses are more plentiful than they were at the time of our last report, but the demand is still heavier than the supply. Carnations are showing a better quality, but there are not enough of them to cut any big figure in the market. Gladioli are scarce and asters are over with, except those that come from the north. Valley is practically out of the market.

Only one firm has its French bulbs, and no one as yet has his Dutch bulbs.

Various Notes.

Things are in good condition in the city parks, but we miss Mr. McBride, whose skill brought the parks to their present high state. Mr. McBride has left the city service and is in charge of the greenhouses and grounds of the Mount Olivet cemetery. I was especially impressed with the value of the Chinese woolflower as a bedder. This plant is justly becoming popular here.

Colocasia, or xanthosoma, is again demonstrating its great superiority to the old caladiums as a bedding plant. We saw several beds where the plants stood seven feet in height, with thirty or more leaves to the plant. In Centennial park there is a good display of blue salvias. The plants are about thirty inches in height and have been a mass of lavender-blue all summer. While it is perfectly hardy here, it was in bloom three months after sowing. Among the disappointments of the season has been a trial of pink salvias. A cross with white might produce something. I saw two good beds of the ever-blooming salvia, America, this week. I have been skeptical as to its value, but now am convinced that it is the one salvia that will please customers. Speaking of novelties, Elk's purple petunias are the best thing I have seen this year. No purple pansy was ever richer, and they are as free as an old-fashioned petunia.

CHARLES E. MEEHAN.

CHARLES E. MEEHAN is the youngest wholesale florist in Philadelphia, or for that matter in America. At least we have not heard of any who have started since Mr. Meehan did. He has just opened up for business, yet Charlie Meehan is a master salesman. He sold flowers for John Burton when he was not tall enough to see over the counter of Pennock Bros., so the story goes. Then he sold flowers from his own greenhouses, and for the old Philadelphia Flower Market, and for the company that made his name a household word. So you see he has gone steadily forward. Absolute reliability is written all over Charlie Meehan. You feel he will keep his promises, and it is this feeling and the fact that there is good reason for it that have had much to do with Charlie Meehan's success in life.

The state fair brought crowds to the city and undoubtedly helped business. There was only a small floral showing at the fair, and our florists surely are missing an opportunity to educate the public.

McIntyre Bros. had one of the best windows I have seen this summer. There was a "harbor," flanked with fancy caladiums, with a boat floating back and forth on the water. The store has had a good run of business this summer.

The Joy Floral Co. has been featuring Paper White narcissus bulbs this week.

I understand that Lischey's Gardens are selling out their stock as rapidly as possible. Mrs. J. Brown, the widow, has decided not to try to operate the place herself.

Geny Bros. have received word that it is doubtful if the Dutch bulbs will arrive.

Hamtramck, Mich.—Miss P. G. Sulewski is now conducting a flower store at this place.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

LEAF LETTUCE UNDER GLASS.

What is the best variety of leaf lettuce to grow under glass? How many can be grown in one crop, under ordinary circumstances, on a bench 4x150 feet? J. K.—Mo.

Grand Rapids is the only variety of leaf lettuce that is used to any extent for forcing. As to the number that can be grown on a bench of the dimensions stated, that depends on the character and customs of the local market. Lettuce that is sold by the pound is generally grown to a much larger size than when sold by the dozen. If to be sold by the dozen, the plants may be set as close as 5x5 inches. If the pound is to be the unit of value, the distance apart in the bench may be 7x7 or 8x8 inches. But in either case, whether the lettuce is marketed by weight or number, the spacing in the bench should vary according to the size of plants which will best suit the local demand.

Three or more crops of leaf lettuce can be grown in a season and then followed by a crop of cucumbers or tomatoes. The seeds for the first crop of lettuce are sown about August 1 to 15, in flats or solid beds. Later sowings are made weekly or at other suitable intervals. The seeds are sown thickly and only an extremely light scattering of soil is put over them—not enough to conceal them from view. In warm weather, after watering the newly sown seeds, it is customary to cover them with one thickness of moist burlap or heavy brown paper, which must be removed as soon as the seeds germinate. The period required for germination varies from two to five days.

From one to two weeks after germination, the seedlings are pricked off into flats and are spaced about 2x2 inches. About four weeks later, if the days are long and bright, the plants may be large enough for removal to the permanent beds. In order to secure a moderate rapidity of growth and tenderness of leaves, a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night should be maintained until the plants have reached the desired height. Then, during the finishing stage, the best results in the weight and quality of the plants are secured by holding the night temperature close to 45 degrees. The house should be well ventilated in the daytime, except in stormy weather. A weekly nicotine fumigation will control green aphids.

The first crop of the season is the least expensive to the grower, but also brings the smallest returns. The later crops require more time and fuel, but the greater cost is usually counterbalanced by a larger yield and higher prices.

LANCASTER, PA.

The September meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club was held at the home of Willis B. Girvin, at Leola, Pa. Thirty or forty members attended, assembling at 5:30 and inspecting the greenhouses. Carnations are extensively grown, led by Matchless, Enchantress Supreme and Mrs. Ward. The latter, however, is in danger of being discarded another season. The plants are well established and give promise of a great crop. Many chrysanthemums are grown, principally Jeanne Nonin and Bonnaffon, which are full of vigor. A good-sized house has been planted to Ophelia roses, which are in fine condition. Rose growing is a new venture with Mr. Girvin, but with good soil and the ease with which manure can be obtained from the farm there is no reason why it should not be a successful venture. A walk over the farm revealed twenty acres of fine, heavy tobacco, part of which has already been housed; also a fine block of Matchless carnation plants, which have met with a good sale.

Mr. Girvin is ably assisted by John H. Schoenberger, who is in charge of the range.

After inspection the party repaired to Mr. Girvin's residence, where President H. A. Schroyer called the meeting to order. Albert M. Herr gave a most interesting talk on the S. A. F. convention in New York, aided by B. F. Barr, who also attended. Both were pleased with the new publicity plan of the S. A. F., and in a few moments nearly $200 was subscribed by the club toward the movement.

The club decided to visit the dahlia show of the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at White Marsh, Md., October 4. The trip will be made by automobile, leaving the Chamber of Commerce building, Lancaster, at 7 a. m. sharp. All members and their friends are invited to attend. This dahlia show is said to be the greatest in America.

After the meeting the members were invited to the dining room, where sandwiches, coffee and other refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Girvin, their son and daughter, John and Leah, and Miss Lettie Nolt. The next club meeting will be held October 18.

H. K. R.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

Fall business is starting off nicely. There is no great demand yet for cut flowers or plants, but all stock is moving. Much funeral work and several wedding decorations kept the retailers moderately busy. The quantity and quality of stock are good. Chrysanthemums are beginning to come. The flowers already received are excellent. Other stock is sufficient to meet all demands, and at the same time is improving in quality.

Various Notes.

The retail stores last week showed some particularly nice decorations, both window and interior. Moore, Terwilliger & Co. used a combination of barberry, mountain ash and shrubs. William F. Holmes had a display of plants and seasonable flowers.

The H. B. Whitted Floral Co. reports

excellent business. The company's displays last week were most attractive. E. M. P.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business was quiet last week, a condition attributed largely to the change to warmer weather. Several frosts, however, have occurred, practically making an end of all outdoor stock.

There is an exceptionally good supply of roses, and the quality is excellent. There also is a satisfactory supply of carnations from the young plants, and the blooms sell well. There is a fair quantity of American Beauties, with the quality up to the standard for this time of the year. Lilies are holding their own; the demand is good. Gladioli continue to arrive in large quantities, but the quality is fast deteriorating and prices are low. Asters are still hanging on, but only the large flowers with long stems find a ready sale. Zinnias and dahlias are the best outdoor flowers. White chrysanthemums are appearing. The prices are high on these. Cosmos is making a good showing. Ferns and other foliage plants are beginning to sell well. The supply of Sprenger and plumosus is equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club was held at the store of the Flick Floral Co. September 19. Vice-president Edgar Wenninghoff presided in the absence of President W. J. Vesey, Jr. The principal business of the meeting was the discussion regarding the annual fall flower show. It was decided to hold the show November 14 to 16, at the Elks' Auditorium. Clem Lanternier was appointed general chairman in charge of the arrangements, and Miss Marguerite Flick was appointed publicity chairman. Attractive posters announcing the flower show will be gotten out, and individual mailing cards and newspaper publicity will be used, it was agreed. The October meeting will be held at the Knecht greenhouses, on Rudisell avenue.

The Doswell Floral Co. has received a large shipment of plants of the new rose, Columbia, from the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

Among those who have been drafted for the national army, but who have not yet been called into service, are John Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co.; Edgar Wenninghoff; Henry Freese, of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind.; William Branning, of the F. J. Knecht Co. greenhouses.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are cutting some fine Golden Glow mums. Their roses are arriving in fine condition.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting a large quantity of roses, with Ophelia, Shawyer and Ward in the lead. The orchids are developing in fine shape. Miss S. L. Nelson, secretary of the company, has returned from her two weeks' vacation.

Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., was the guest of relatives and friends here last week.

R. F.

Battle Creek, Mich.—F. F. Hindelang has purchased the business of J. M. De Water and will continue to sell flowers at wholesale and retail.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The wholesale cut flower business has been as dull during the last four weeks as at any time in July and August, but there are signs of its return to life. Last week the market was not overburdened with stock, the flood of asters and gladioli having stopped. Some fine asters were received and were quickly absorbed at good prices, some flowers selling for $3 and $4 per hundred. The same may be said of the new varieties of gladioli, the Kings especially being in favor.

Only a few dahlias have yet reached the wholesale market. The severe frost of two weeks ago shortened the supply, but the flowers that escaped the cold and drought are the equals, if not superiors, of any dahlia blooms that have ever been seen here. In chrysanthemums, Golden Glow, October Frost and Smith's Advance are the only arrivals to date. These are now at their best. Every retailer in the city featured mums September 22, and the wholesalers had a supply big enough for the demand. The prices fluctuated between $1 and $2.50 per dozen.

Valley is holding steady at $5 and $6 per hundred, the latter figure being for the selected. The supply and demand are about on a par. Longiflorum lilies are quoted at the same prices, $6 still being the price for high-grade stock. Orchids are now coming in abundance and prices are slowly receding, 75 cents each being the limit for the finest gigas, with a further reduction probable before the week is over. There is a good supply of oncidiums.

Carnations improve slowly in size and quality. A few flowers sold last week at $1.50 per hundred, but most of the arrivals brought from $1 per hundred down. The first violets to arrive brought 50 cents per bunch of 100 flowers. The supply, however, was limited. Tritomas sell slowly, if at all. There seems to be no demand for cosmos. The first pansies have arrived. Hydrangeas are in limited supply. There is little call for sunflowers, goldenrod and the other outdoor flowers.

Roses are not in oversupply, with the exception of the short-stemmed flowers. Among the favorites to arrive are Hadley, Prima Donna, Key, Shawyer, Russell and Ophelia roses. The Ophelias seem to be the favorites with the growers, as they are in the largest supply. American Beauty roses are improving in quality and supply, and easily lead the others. They sell up to $30 per hundred.

Various Notes.

The S. A. F. publicity plan will again be taken up at the next meeting of the New York Florists' Club, which will be held October 8. There will be exhibits of seasonable flowers and novelties.

The dahlia show at Bronx park September 22 and 23 was a disappointment, both as to exhibits and attendance.

Congestion of express shipments, with the consequent delays in the arrival of shipments, caused the wholesalers considerable trouble last week. Much of the stock was two or three days late in reaching the market, and quantities of flowers were absolutely worthless.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. opened the plant auction season last week, and William Elliott & Sons had their first sale September 25. C. C. Trepel will have daily sales at his greenhouses on the roof of Bloomingdale's, with John Cleary acting as auctioneer.

French bulbs continue to arrive.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. keeps its show windows filled with seasonable flowers. Last week there was a display of named gladioli, and this week there is a showing of dahlias.

The Uptown Seed Store is the name Max Schling has given his store on Fifty-Ninth street near Fifth avenue. It already is proving a success. Mr. Schling's new flower store at 785 Fifth avenue is open for business. It is close to one of the main entrances to Central park, an ideal location for a flower store. The new store has a depth of 150 feet and is an artistic place.

Wholesalers continue to discuss the Sunday closing movement, which was inaugurated at the beginning of the summer. All signed an agreement to keep their places open, but now one or two claim to have understood that the closing was to continue only during the summer months. The backers of the movement assert the agreement was for one year.

R. J. Irwin, with Wallace Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., left September 20 for New Brunswick, Can., where they will hunt moose. They expect to return about October 15.

The first violets of the season were received by Clarence Slinn September 21. Max Schling bought the shipment, paying 50 cents per hundred. William Gunther remarked: "Talk about early violets! I used to get them in August."

J. J. Coan, Inc., showed the first pansies of the season September 22.

Emil Amthor, for twelve years in the service of Siebrecht Bros., Inc., has been appointed manager of the store at Seventy-third street and Madison avenue.

T. H. Judd, of Danbury, Conn., was a visitor September 20. He is shipping 1,500 to 1,800 Golden Glow chrysanthemums daily to the Barney B. Jacobs Co. Mr. Judd has 40,000 square feet devoted to this variety and says he will ship 40,000 flowers to the New York market before October 15.

Walter Siebrecht expects to leave soon for Pasadena, Cal.

John Eganbrod, of Badgley & Bishop, Inc., returned September 20 from an eight weeks' western trip that extended to the Pacific coast and covered the larger cities en route.

D. Trexy is the latest addition to the New York wholesalers. He has space with Lecakes, 106 West Twenty-eighth street.

J. Austin Shaw.

Batavia, N. Y.—L. Stroh & Sons have put in a busy season touching up their modern range, and have stock in excellent shape for an expected heavy winter business.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—James G. Angel, who does business as Angel, Florist, has moved his establishment to 2500 West Eleventh street, and is rebuilding on a much larger scale. Mr. Angel recently purchased nineteen and one-half acres at the new address. Work of rebuilding has been slow owing to the scarcity of labor. Mr. Angel says he is fortunate in having secured a competent grower and expects to greatly increase his output of stock.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Comparatively little change has taken place in market conditions during the last week. Indoor stock continues to improve, while outdoor stock is getting poorer in quality and smaller in supply. Carnations are more plentiful and of better quality. Prices range from $1.50 to $3 per hundred. Roses are in strong demand, but the supply is limited. They sell for from $2 to $6 per hundred. Lilies continue scarce and asters are coming in smaller quantities. Dahlias are of better quality, but are not up to last year's standard. Gladioli are still available. Cosmos are about the only flowers in abundance and because of the short supply of other stock sell well. There are no complaints about business. Sales during the summer were larger than normal, and fall business has begun with a rush, lack of stock furnishing about the only drawback. Chrysanthemums so far have been few in the local market, but growers expect to have a large supply within the next two weeks.

Various Notes.

John Bertermann recently sold a part of the ground at the East Washington street plant establishment for $14,000. He is now the possessor of a new Premier coupe.

Carl Sonnenschmidt has gone to the St. Clair flats, near Detroit, on a fishing trip.

Robert Newcomb, representing the American Bulb Co., of Chicago, called on the trade last week. Mr. Newcomb is returning from a western and southern trip. He said that business everywhere had been good, despite the falling off of bedding stock sales.

John Chisholm, of the Circle Flower Store, will leave this week on a business trip to New York city.
